McGuire Seeking Democratic Bid

TERRENCE McGUIRE
Seeks nomination

Terrence V. McGuire, a San Rafael businessman, today announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination in the Fifth Congressional District.

McGuire, 45, said in a press statement that his decision to run was based "on a deep frustration with our political system, the lack of concern, and inaccessibility of the professional politicians with the people who elect them.

"How does a father explain to his children the corruption and lack of credibility in the government which will some day belong to the young?" he asked. McGuire said professional politicians "have made a mess of the system. It's about time the average citizen took an active interest in government," he added.

McGuire spoke Thursday night before the Marin County Democratic Central Committee, saying then he was considering entering the race.

Three others already have announced they will seek the nomination. They are Alan F. Reeves and Alan D. French of San Francisco and Lloyd F. Haroldls of Novato. Assembly-

'NOW LISTEN, SANTA'

Gregory Todd, 4, has a list of important things to tell Santa Claus. The Youngster, who met that "merry old elf" (played by Robert Cooper) yesterday at Sears in Northgate, first chastised the old man. "You forgot me last year," he told Santa. Gregory was also afraid that Mr. Claus would find out that he had not been a perfectly good boy all year. "No peeking in my closet, because it's a mess," the youngster warned. (Photo by Fred Arz)

Truckers Hijack A Crane

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Police said dissident truckers today had hijacked a crane sent to help pull a derailed Penn Rentral freight train back on the track at East Liverpool, Ohio.

"That's true, they commandeered a crane,," said East Liverpool police Lt. Orin Smith. "The freight train just jumped the track and nobody was hurt. There were 600 or 700 trucks at a truck stop near the tracks."

The crane was recovered and no arrests were made as a result of the incident—one of a number of violent actions apparently made by independent truckers trying to halt highway traffic in their protest against high fuel prices and low speed limits.

More than 85 incidents, half of them shootings, were reported in Ohio by 2 a.m. today, "but nothing has happpened since then," the Ohio patrol said. "They've apparently calmed down and gone home."

Shortly before midnight, the patrol succeeded in clearing some 500 trucks corralled in the Decima Truck Stop on Interstaate 70 near Dayton.

"They headed them up and moved them out," the patrol said.

The shutdown began early Thursday and violence erupted at the outset, as the drivers who chose to continue to operate their rigs were stoned and shot at in at least a dozen states from Colorado and Montana to the East Coast.

One truck in Arkansas was blown up. The tires of some trucks were slashed when the trucks stopped for fuel. Hundreds of truck drivers were bottled up in truck stops by protesting truckers using their vehicles to keep others from getting fuel and moving on.

Despite the violence, there were only a few scattered reports of minor injuries.

Three truck drivers were arrested in Pennsylvania for throwing rocks at trucks, and one of the leaders of the shutdown, John Sassi, was arrested in Glasgow, Del., on charges of carrying a gun. Policemen who arrested Sassi were responding to complaints he and three other men were threatening truck drivers trying to operate in the area.

A Suggestion Of Service At Napa

By ERIK INGRAM

A state health official yesterday proposed that Napa State Hospital be used for Medi-Cal psychiatric patients who are refused admittance to Ross General hospital and cannot be cared for elsewhere in Marin.

The suggestion from Andrew G. Robertson, deputy director of the State Department of Health, came at a meeting with county officials to review the latest financial crisis to hit local mental health services.

Robertson also announced his agency will audit the use of state psychiatric funds at local facilities, such as Ross General. He said Ross is not without blame in the crisis and "has tried its case in the press."

As reported Thursday, Ross General has laid off 20 employees and refused to admit medical patients to its 54-bed psychiatric ward in a dispute with the county over allocation of state funds.

Ross officials say they were promised about $650,000 this fiscal year and accepted patients on a "good faith" basis without a contract.

In November, five months into the fiscal year, Ross received a contract from the county limiting the hospital's annual allocation to $350,000 — to be paid over 12 months.

Based on the original understanding that $650,000 would be forthcoming, Ross General had already used about $300,000. When the actual allocation was made only $50,000 was left for the remaining seven months.

Marin General Hospital, meanwhile, the only other major facility offering hospital psychiatric care, is continuing to accept patients, but officials have complained of a similar financial pinch.

The state audit of both psychiatric programs and funds was requested last week by Betty L. Presley, director of the county department of health and human services.

Miss Presley said yesterday she asked for the audit to help find the causes of the financial crisis in the mental health community.

County officials have acknowledged they are, in part, at fault for the funding foul-up because of delays in submitting contracts. However, officials say Ross General may have contributed to the problem.

Robertson said his audit (to be completed by February) will determine whether Ross accepted out-of-county Medi-Cal patients without clearance from mental health officials in the

Conference Delay Is Seen

Strategy Round In Damacus

DAMASCUS, Syria (UPI) — U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger discussed the scheduled Middle East peace conference with Syrian leaders Saturday in the first visit to Damascus by an American Secretary of State since 1953.

Shortly before Kissinger arrived in Damascus, a highranking American official traveling with him said the peace conference, originally scheduled to covene Tuesday, may be postponed "a day or so" because of "procedural matters."

(Arab sources in Geneva said the issue of Palestinian representation at the session may cause a delay.)

Kissinger, on a tour of six Arab capitals and Israel, is the first U.S. Secretary of State to come here since John Foster Dulles 20 years ago.

Hundreds of plainclothes police, many carrying machineguns, guarded the airport and the streets used by Kissinger's official motorcade upon his arrival from Saudi Arabia.

Saudi sources said Kissinger tried, but failed, to get King Faisal to agree to lift his embargo on oil shipments to the United States when the Geneva conference opens.

The sources said Faisal insisted the embargo would be lifted only when Israel has started withdrawing from all Arab territory occupied during the 1967 Arab-Israeli war under an American-guaranteed agreement.

Syria, which has had no diplomatic relations with the United States since the 1967 six-day Arab-Israeli war, has expressed official skepticism about the projected Geneva conference and Kissinger's sincerity in seeking an Israeli withdrawal.

Its refusal to provide a list of Israeli prisoners except "within the framework of a plan for complete Israeli withdrawal from the occupied Arab territories" had threatened to torpedo the conference.

There was no indication whether Kissinger planned to bring up the subject of the estimated 127 Israeli prisoners held by the Syrians since the October war. There are about 300 Syrian prisoners in Israeli hands.

YOU DON'T EVEN NEED A DIME — Inspector Edward Klementovich of the Marin Sheriff's Department displays an electronic gadget, known as a "blue box" which "phone phreaks" use to defraud the telephone company. The device enables individuals to make long distance calls all over the world without paying for them.

'PHONE PHREAKS'

Telephone Company Breaking Up Calls

By GEORGE NEVIN

The Pacific Telephone Co. has come up with a new way to trap "phone phreaks," electronic wizards who up to now have been outwitting Ma Bell.

The system, which depends on tapping the telephone of anyone suspected of using electronic gadgets to avoid paying for long distance calls, came to light yesterday with the arrest of a Point San Pedro man.

Armed with a search warrant, Marin sheriff's deputies converged on the home of Sanford Herschel Kosman, 32, of 34 Marine Drive.

There, according to Sgt. Garrett N. McDonald, they discovered a "blue box," the name given by phone phreaks (as they call themselves) to a sophisticated electronic device.

Officers also confiscated a seven-page booklet explaining how to use the gadget, and arrested Kosman, a manufacturer of custom motorcycle parts.

McDonald said Kosman bought the device from an out-of-state friend for $325 and had been using it for about three weeks.

The manual describes how the "blue box," — which has 10 buttons which emit musical tones when pressed — works:

A phone phreak uses the box to beep out a number, either a long distance information number or one of the toll-free numbers in the 800 area code series.

Once hooked into the long distance equipment, the phreak punches more box buttons, disconnecting his phone from the information or toll-free number. He then punches out a new number anywhere in the world.

The phone company was powerless to catch the phreaks until recently, McDonald said, when its computerized billing equipment was modified to show when any phone was used to

It's Official: Time Change Set Jan. 6

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon today signed legislation putting most of the nation on year-round daylight saving time for the first time since World War II.

Clocks will be put ahead at 2 a.m. January 6, in an effort to conserve energy by reducing use of electricity for lighting and heating.

The legislation cleared Congress late Friday and Nixon moved quickly to sign the bill, which will keep the United States on daylight saving time until October, 1975.

Nixon signed the bill at midmorning in his White House office and issued a statement praising Congress for acting quickly on his DST proposal.

He said the change would produce energy savings equivalent to about 150,000 barrels of oil a day during winter months with "only a minimum of inconvenience and . . . equal participation by all."

Nixon urged Congress to act equally swiftly on other energy-saving proposals he has submitted even though they might "require inconvenience and sacrifice" for the public.

"I call upon the Congress to complete action before the recess on responsible bills to provide the energy emergency authorities we need to deal with the problem and to give a statutory base to the Federal Energy Administration to provide the necessary focused leadership," the statement said.

The energy legislation Nixon was referring to passed the House early this morning, but with a number of amendments not included in a Senate approved version. A conference committee will try next week to reconcile differences so that the legislation is finally passed before Congress adjourns, probably about the end of the week.

A White House spokesman said Nixon would issue an executive order later in the day to grant exemptions to certain areas.

Rep. Norman Lent, R-N.Y., who had proposed a year-round DST bill more than a year ago,

Tentative Hospital Contract Is Reached

A tentative contract to end the eight-day-old strike at 14 Kaiser Foundation hospitals, including the San Rafael facility, was negotiated early today.

Agreement on the proposed new contract for about 4,800 workers was reached at about 3 a.m. by negotiators in Oakland who had talked for almost 13 hours.

Union members will meet tomorrow to vote whether they accept or reject the new pact. Details of the contract will be released then by Hospital and Institutional Workers Local 250.

Wages and fringe benefits are the major points of the dispute that led to the strike. The union has been seeking pay and fringe benefit increases averaging 8.6 per cent, while Kaiser had offered 6.4 per cent.

Talks aimed at settling the 13-day-old butchers strike have opened at the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service in Washington, D.C. The remaining issue in the dispute is a cost-of-living pay hike.

No progress was reported in the strike of carpenters protesting a federal limit on a pay hike for them.

INDUSTRY IN SAUSALITO IS FEATURED

The Marin Living section of today's Independent-Journal focusses upon industrial Sausalito.

One story deals with a Sausalito industry of the past — whisky-making — at the old American Distilling Co. distillery and its much earlier, colorful predecessor, the John Mason Irish Malt Whiskey Distilling Co.

Another story tells about a 75-year-old manufacturing business still functioning and growing in Sausalito — the E. D. Bullard Co., specialists in the marketing of industrial safety equipment ranging from hard hats to first aid kits.

Line Will Be Open To Santa Claus

Marin children who want to talk to Santa Claus will have a direct line to the North Pole between 7 and 9 Tuesday and Wednesday nights.

On those nights the Mill Valley, San Rafael and Novato Junior Chambers of Commerce will join with the Independent-Journal in providing a holiday hotline.

The telephone numbers are 388-2900 in Mill Valley, 454-3020 in San Rafael and 892-9000 in Novato.

Kids from all over the county may call any of these numbers, according to John Leonard of the I-J classified advertising department. Volunteer Jaycees will act as Santa Claus, he said.

"This is the 16th year we've done this," Leonard said. "Usually we get around 4,000 calls."

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Ervin, Weicker Reveal Tax Returns

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sens. Sam J. Ervin and Lowell P. Weicker revealed their 1972 tax returns yesterday and both paid far higher taxes on far less income than President Nixon.

Ervin

The move came after the President made public his controversial tax returns, and the White House challenged his critics to do the same.

In a related development, Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., says a congressional investigation of the IRS — undertaken after the "enemies list" came to light — shows the IRS may have "treated too favorably" some of President Nixon's friends.

Weicker

He says the investigation by the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation, of which he is vice chairman, showed the IRS did not harass taxpayers on the enemies list.

Weicker, R-Conn., and Ervin, D-N.C., waved their tax returns on the Senate floor last night in reaction to stories that White House aides wanted Nixon to challenge his critics to reveal their income tax returns. The two senators then submitted their returns for publication in the Congressional Record.

They showed that Ervin paid $15,485.55 in federal taxes in 1972 on an adjusted gross income of $63,440. Weicker paid $14,350 on an income of $67,939.

Nixon reported a 1972 income of $268,777 — on which he paid only $4,298 in taxes.

Bus Explodes

BELFAST (UPI) — Alerted by a bus driver, police in Belfast last night cordoned off a downtown area and — while "Silent Night" echoed through the deserted streets — waited for a bus packed with bombs to explode.

The bus, hijacked by four gunmen, blew up two hours later, shattering windows and collapsing dozens of storefronts. No one was injured.

Extra Trains

MONTREAL (UPI) — Canadian National said yesterday it will add at least 50 extra passenger trains to its service on the Christmas-New Year's holiday to handle an expected 500,000 passengers.

With the first extra trains moving out as early as Dec. 20, the traditional turkey and plum pudding supplies have already been ordered, he said.

Watergate Blame

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — President Juan D. Peron suggested Friday that the U.S. military hatched the Watergate scandal as part of a campaign to discredit civilian politicians throughout the southern hemisphere.

"We have to defend politicians all over the world and especially in Latin America, where politicians have been slandered," said the 78-year-old president.

Swearing-In Delay

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Although Sen. William B. Saxbe, R-Ohio, is assured of confirmation as attorney general, he will delay his swearing-in until after the first of the year when he will be eligible for a congressional pension.

But William Hoiles, Saxbe's administrative assistant, said yesterday the delay had nothing to do with the fact that Saxbe will become eligible for the pension after Jan. 3. He described it as a "fortunate occurence and not the rationale."

At that time Saxbe will have completed five years of his first term and will become vested in the pension program.

American Killed

SAIGON (UPI) — Communist troops today ambushed a helicopter after it landed only 12 miles from Saigon and killed an American officer who stood up to show he was unarmed. He was the first American killed since the Vietnam truce.

Saigon government spokesmen said a South Vietnamese aboard the helicopter was also killed and seven other persons were wounded.

New Patent Head

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Curtis Marshall Dann, an executive of the DuPont Co. in Wilmington, Del., was nominated by the President yesterday to be U.S. commissioner of patents. He will succeed Robert Gottschalk, who resigned the post last June.

Young Getty, With An Ear Missing, Is Freed

ROME (UPI) — J. Paul Getty III, his right ear missing, was freed from five months' captivity by his alleged kidnapers today. He ate spaghetti, held a tearful reunion with his mother and then was taken to Rome for police questioning.

Police found the 17-year-old grandson of the American billionaire shivering in freezing rain by the side of a country road near the town of Lagonegro, about 100 miles south of Naples. He was clad in only a shirt, trousers and tennis shoes.

Fernando Masone, chief of the Rome Police Flying Squad, drove young Getty back to the capital hours after his release. Getty was freed two days after the family completed payment of a $2.9 million ransom.

Getty, the red-haired, freckled "golden hippie" of Rome's teen-age set, was examined by a doctor and then questioned briefly by police and the district prosecutor of Lagonegro.

"I am ill," police quoted young Getty as saying. "I want to leave here. I don't want to talk about it."

Police said they suspected a band of Calabrian drug runners organized the kidnap. Getty was abducted the night of July 9 in front of the French Embassy in Rome's Piazza Farnese.

J. PAUL GETTY III
In frail health

Police said young Getty "devoured" a plate of spaghetti with butter they prepared for him at their Lagonegro barracks. Later, a doctor examined him and the bandaged wound where his ear had been severed, allegedly by his abductors.

The doctor said apart from numbness from the cold, Getty was in good physical condition.

The boy's mother, Mrs. Gail Harris, left her Rome apartment and drove with Masone to the Lagonegro barracks. There, weeping, she hugged and kissed her son repeatedly.

"It's finally finished," police quoted him as saying to his mother.

"Paul, only now I'm beginning to live again," she was quoted as telling him. "I have always believed in you."

Police said the youth was standing in the rain under a gas station shelter. As soon as the police car pulled up to the station, he ran toward it.

"I am Paul Getty, captain," police quoted him as saying. "Can you give me a cigarette? Look, they cut off my ear."

Police quoted the youth as saying of his kidnapers: "They left me here several hours ago. I walked a great deal in the rain. I haven't eaten for several days. For five months they kept me traveling."

During the five months of negotiations, Getty's alleged kidnapers sent a human ear to a Rome newspaper and said it was his. They later sent a poor quality photograph to another newspaper showing the youth without an ear and threatened to cut him up "piece by piece" if the ransom money were not paid.

Sailors Killed On Kitty Hawk Caught In A 'Wall Of Flame'

SUBIC BAY NAVAL BASE, Philippines (UPI) — The commander of the U.S. aircraft carrier Kitty Hawk said today the six sailors killed in Tuesday's shipboard fire were caught in a "solid wall of flame" in the vessel's main machinery room.

Capt. Robert E. Kirksey told reporters the blaze broke out when fuel being transferred to oil tanks ignited and sent flames racing through the machinery room as the big ship was about 700 miles east of the Philippines.

He said when the fuel ignited, it touched off a fire that "resembled a solid wall of flame and spread quickly throughout the upper levels of the space. Within 10 minutes smoke and fumes had completely filled the main fore and aft passageway."

The six men who died were standing watch in the room when the fire broke out. A total of 39 others were injured, most of them aiding in rescue operations.

Kirksey said the fuel was being transferred from storage tanks to service tanks in the No. 1 machinery room when the fire broke out. He said an investigation was still under way to determine exact cause of the blaze.

The dead men were identified as Fireman Apprentice Samuel J. Cardenas, 20, Pueblo, Colo.; Fireman Apprentice Alan J. Champine, 18, Mt. Clemens, Mich.; Fireman Recruit Michael R. Deverichi, 19, Romulus, Mich.; Fireman Recruit Kevin W. Johnson, 17, Yakima, Wash.; Fireman Recruit Linn C. Schambers, 19, Van Nuys; and Fireman Apprentice Joseph P. Tulipana, 19, Dover, Mo.

Reporters were not allowed to see the damaged machinery room, located on the ship's fifth and sixth decks. Kirksey said no vital equipment was damaged and the 80,000-ton vessel with its 5,500 men was "fully operational."

The Kitty Hawk arrived last night at Subic, the main service base in the Pacific for the U.S. 7th Fleet, 50 miles northwest of Manila.

Pat Nixon Wins In Magazine Poll

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Good Housekeeping magazine's "Most Admired Woman" is Pat Nixon for the second year in a row. The magazine said yesterday Mrs. Nixon won twice as many first place votes as Mamie Eisenhower, the runner-up.

Rose Kennedy placed third, followed by Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir, Lady Bird Johnson, Shirley Temple Black, actress Patricia Neal, Princess Grace, and Dr. Joyce Brothers.

Julie Nixon Eisenhower finished tenth in the poll for her "spirited defense" of her father, President Nixon, the magazine said. About 1,500 of the magazine's subscribers were selected at random to participate in the poll.

Fired Detective Is Suing Macy's

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A former detective for Macy's department store claimed in a $2 million suit Thursday that his business telephone was tapped by the firm's security chief.

Alfred C. Byrd, 36, said in the suit that he was fired without written notice or a hearing.

Ten persons, some of them Macy's employees, filed a $13 million suit last week and said the store tapped their conversations.

Byrd said in his Superior Court suit that he was fired because he is black and his former supervisor disliked him.

Electrical Cuts Loom In Britain

LONDON (UPI) — Britons already suffering blackouts, strikes, three-day work weeks, slow moving trains and possible mass unemployment faced new woes today—the prospect of electicity cuts to their homes of up to 40 hours a week.

The warning came as government leaders voiced agreement that Britain was in the midst of its worst national crisis in decades. Opposition Labor Party leader Harold Wilson said yesterday, "the power crisis presents us all with perhaps the gravest situation we have faced since the war."

Ronald Richardson, deputy chairman of the government's Electricity Council, said if householders did not respond to Prime Minister Edward Heath's appeal for strict economy in the use of electricity, cuts of up to 40 hours a week would have to be made.

"Either the public—particularly in their homes—responds to the need, or they will face the fiercest and most savage cuts this country, or indeed any country has ever faced," he said.

Whether or not they are hit with the electricity cuts, Britons apparently are going to pay more taxes.

Political sources predicted Chancellor of the Exchequer Anthony Barber will double the value added tax to 20 per cent on consumer goods and raise the tax on alcohol and tobacco when he announces his crisis budget Monday.

Wilson told a nationwide television audience the country's coal miners' overtime ban, the slow-down by train engineers and the national oil shortage "have all hit Britain at a time when we were already weakened by the worst economic sitaation we have had for a generation."

Span Director Resigns Key Chairmanship

Golden Gate Bridge District Director Ben K. Lerer, citing his disagreement "with certain of the fiscal policies" of the board majority, resigned yesterday as chairman of the key finance-auditing committee.

Lerer, a San Francisco attorney, declined to answer questions by newsmen about which policies he opposed. He said only that it "wouldn't be fair to take it out of context."

Board chairman Stephan C. Leonoudakis, also of San Francisco, promptly appointed director Lowell Edington of Napa County to replace Lerer as committee chairman. Leonoudakis accepted the resignation "with regret."

Many directors long have been dissatisfied with Lerer's detailed review and sharp questioning of expenses, particularly those for the ferryboat system. He has been a bridge director for 19 years and chairman of the committee for the past five years.

Lerer repeatedly has cast minority and often solitary votes against district expenditures, arguing the spending rate soon would bankrupt the district.

Golden Gate Bridge District directors also:

FERRIES — Approved additional automatic docking and passenger loading equipment for the three new ferryboats being built in San Diego, at an added cost of $103,800 for all three vessels.

GASOLINE — Referred to committee a staff proposal to cut from three to two gallons the maximum amount of gasoline sold to motorists who run out of fuel on the span. The price should be held at a bargain 40 cents a gallon, the staff said.

JANITOR — Extended for one year a $1,712-a-month contract with Cervetto Building Maintenance Co. to serve the administration building, bunker offices and San Francisco ferry terminal.

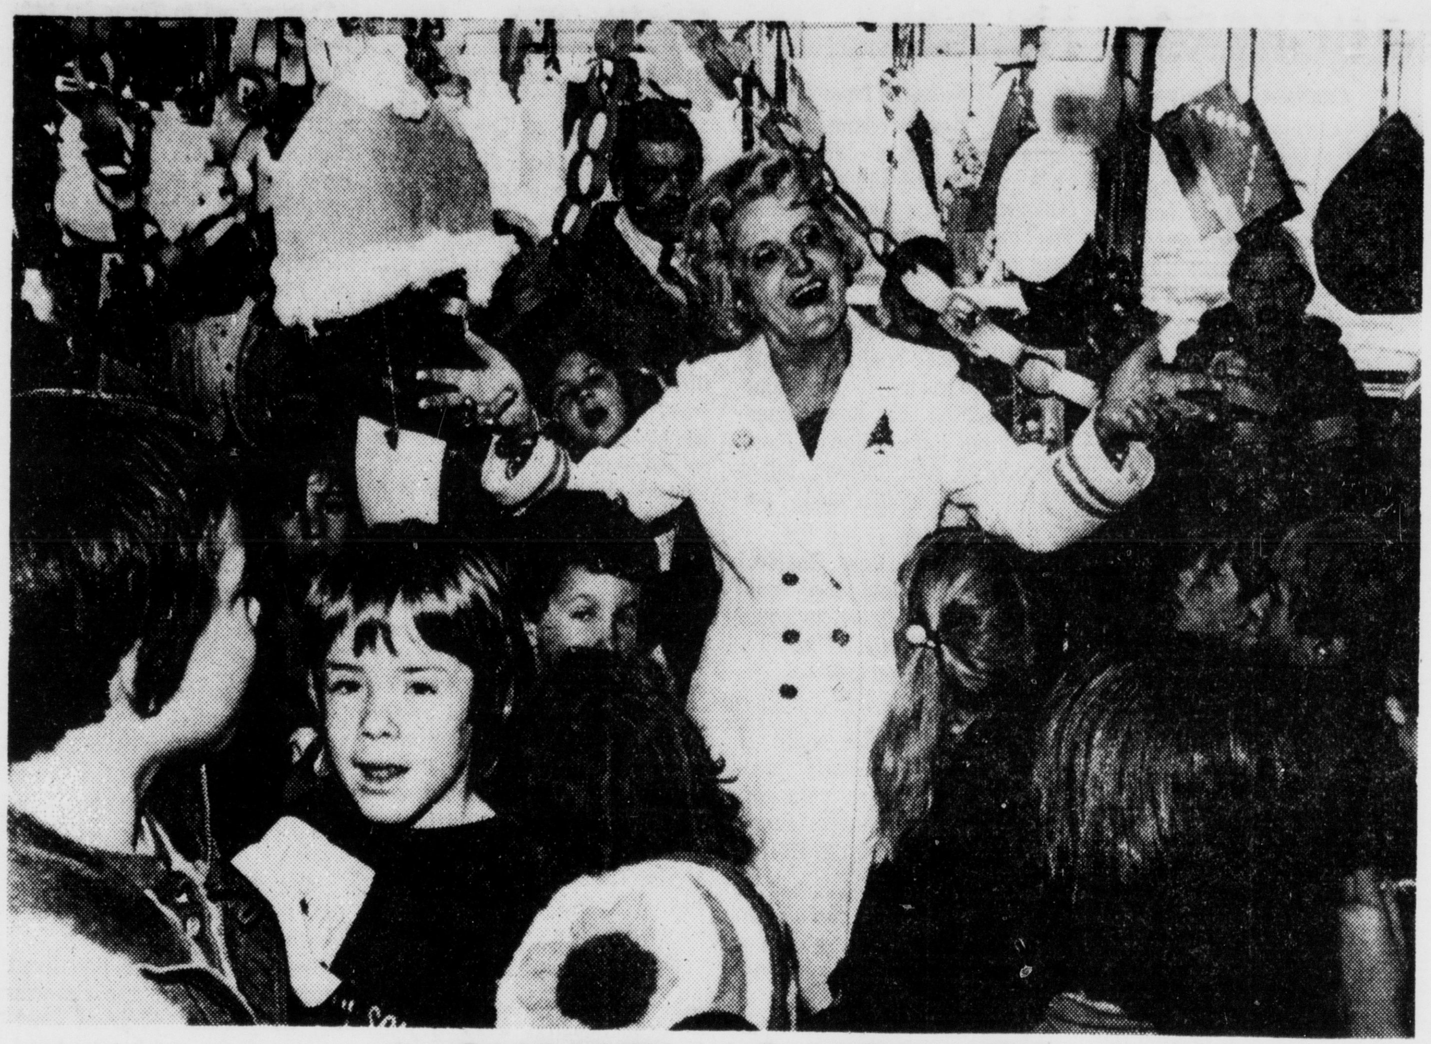
SUBSTITUTE — Appointed Dale Norton, chief of administration and security, to serve also as acting general manager when Gen. Mgr. Dale W. Luehring is absent.

SALARY — Hiked the annual salary of district Secty. Peter D. Clainos from $18,780 to $23,532, his first pay hike since he joined the district more than three years ago.

SAUSALITO — Received a proposal from the City of Sausalito that the district negotiate for land for its permanent downtown ferry terminal with both the city and lease holder Madden and Lewis.

SAN RAFAEL — Referred to committee a proposal by the San Rafael City Council that the district and city form a joint powers agreement to finance expanded parking for commuters using district buses.

ELECTION — Reelected existing officers for a second one-year term: Leonoudakis as president, Edwin Fraser of Del Norte County as first vice president, and San Francisco Supervisor Peter Tamaras as second vice president.



A CHRISTMAS VOYAGE

Edwina Cordoni, former principal of Coleman School in San Rafael, leads the school's first graders in Christmas carols after they decorated the ferryboat Golden Gate yesterday in Sausalito. The 81 students worked on the Christmas decorations since Thanksgiving. As a reward for their labor, they were given a free ferry trip to San Francisco.

Rancho Cotate Students Begin Government Program

Some 22 students attending Rancho Cotate High School will participate in a students in local government program Monday, the first such event in Rohnert Park.

The students, members of classes studying "The Maze — Study of an American City," have elected city councilmen, chosen a mayor and appointed a city manager in accordance with California election laws, according to their teacher, Don Kite.

Jeri Cochran will act as mayor, and other councilmen will be Jason Seale, Mary Brock, Tom Sheehan and Jeff Roberts. Randy Robinson was named city manager.

The students will hold an executive session at 3 p.m. at the high school and then join in a potluck dinner with city leaders at the community center. They will officiate at the first part of the real Rohnert Park city council meeting, scheduled to begin at 7 p.m. in the city hall.

The students have spent hundreds of hours preparing for the day, Kite said.

Governor Shakes Up State Panel

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan has drastically shaken up the state Air Resources Board five days before it will consider his request to change requirements that 5 million 1966-70 cars install antismog devices.

Reagan appointed four new members to the five-member board.

Reagan has asked the board to again reconsider its decisions to require installation of antismog devices on the older cars. The board has repeatedly turned down requests to scrap the program.

Reagan appointed former Republican Assemblyman Charles J. Conrad of Sherman Oaks as chairman of the board.

Conrad served 26 years in the Assembly, losing his seat in 1972. He was not known for antismog legislation.

Another new Reagan appointee to the board is a former vice president of Standard Oil of California, Augustus H. Batchelder of Santa Rosa. He replaces R. Robert Brattain of Pebble Beach, who resigned.

The other new members are David I. Kline of Visalia, who replaces resigning Allen B. Lemmon of Sacramento, and Roger L. Mosher of Palo Alto, who replaces Gladys Meade of Redondon Beach, who was fired.

The new appointees must be confirmed by the Senate.

Wrapped Package Warning Is Issued

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Christmas travelers have been warned by officials at San Francisco International Airport against carrying any wrapped gifts with them.

"Travelers who carry wrapped gifts run the risk of having to open them for inspection by the security officers," said a spokesman. "Gifts should be put in their luggage."

NO BEAR LIKE AN OLD BEAR

Elizabeth Valladarez is completely fascinated by two bears which have been around for a long time, probably long enough for her mother, or even her grandmother, to have played with as children. Shortly after photographer Jim Kean snapped the picture, the 4-year-old San Francisco girl could resist her natural impulses no longer, she reached out and petted both bears gently. The stuffed animals are part of a collection of antique toys now on display in the California Room at the Marin County Library at Civic Center.

was the only member of Congress invited to watch the signing. Nixon affixed his signature and handed Lent his pen, saying "You got the idea before the Congress did —you get the pen."

Under the legislation, year-round daylight saving will remain in effect through the last Sunday in April, 1975. At that time, the Uniform Time Act will go into effect again. Thus, most states will remain on DST through October, 1975.

Information On Robbery Sought

Corte Madera police are seeking information on Thursday's robbery of $4,000 from Sierra National Bank in the Corte Madera Shopping Center. Officers have asked that anyone who saw anything suspicious at the center around 2 p.m. Thursday contact police.

The center was sealed off by police, highway patrolmen and sheriff's officers shortly after the crime occurred, but the robber, carrying a sawed-off double barrel shotgun, escaped. He was described as 30 to 40 years old, five feet, eight inches tall, fair skinned with sandy-reddish hair and medium build.

Police said they are "pretty short on leads" in the search for the robber.

call a long distance information or an 800 number an abnormally long time period, such as 30 minutes.

McDonald said this kind of call drew the phone company's attention to a customer.

It was then, other Marin law enforcement sources told the Independent-Journal, that the phone company began its taps.

If phone company records reveal that a customer is making a lot of long calls to San Diego information, for example, a tap is placed on his telephone.

If the phreak makes the suspicious calls from a pay phone, the company will tape the telephone of anyone receiving a lot of unpaid calls from that pay phone number.

A Pacific Telephone spokesman yesterday refused to say whether the company uses taps to trap phone phreaks and referred all calls on the Kosmos arrest to the Marin district attorney's office.

Kosman was arrested on suspicion of two misdemeanors, defrauding the telephone company and possessing a device to do so.

He was released on his own recognizance and will be arraigned Thursday in Marin Municipal Court.

Victim Of Motorcycle Fall Said Improved

A Sebastopol youth's condition was reported improved from poor to fair today but he remained in the intensive care unit at Santa Rosa Memorial Hospital with head injuries suffered yesterday in a motorcycle accident.

Delmar James, 16, was injured when he fell from a cycle driven by Paul Dumont, 17, of Sebastopol, on Commerce Boulevard in Cotati. The cycle then went into a ditch.

Only Adoption

The Independent-Journal erred yesterday in a headline saying that Rohnert Park has adopted an ordinance to check recreational vehicles. It should have stated that the city's planning commission recommending adopting such an ordinance.

Pair Is Given Jail Terms, Fines

Gerry Buckley of Stinson Beach and Michael Kranzler of Berkeley received jail terms and fines yesterday in Santa Clara Superior Court after they pleaded guilty to charges of transporting LSD and receiving stolen property.

Buckley was sentenced to one year in the county jail, fined $100 and placed on five years probation by Judge John T. Racanelli.

Kranzler was sentenced to nine months in the county jail, fined $750 and placed on five years probation.

The two pleaded guilty Nov. 16 to the two counts charges that they possessed stolen airline tickets when they were arrested June 30 in the South Bay Area were dismissed by the judge.

TRUCKERS

Claude S. Brinegar said he expected dissident truckers to end their work stoppage during the weekend, but protest leader J.W. Edwards, known as "River Rat" on the trucker's radio network, sharply disputed him.

"Secretary Brinegar does not speak for the trucker," Edward said. "At this time there has been nothing settled.

"To begin with, this was not a 48-hour boycott. It was a strike to get what we have to have to stay in business. If we don't get what we need those trucks won't be rolling."

However, William J. Hill, chairman of the Fraternal Association of Steel Haulers, who represts 10,000 independent truckers, said the shutdown "has been successful" but ended Friday night.

Edwards and several fellow independent drivers met with an aide to Brinegar Friday as well as with representatives of the Interstate Commerce Commission, Federal Highway Department and other agencies, but not with Brinegar himself.

In Belleville, Ill., James R. Hoffa said if he still headed the Teamsters union, he would support the shutdown.

"I have no idea why the Teamsters aren't supporting them." Hoffa said. "If I were in charge, I'd be out front supporting them. The independents are taking the right action, even though I don't support violence or intimidation. The officials in Washington wouldn't listen if it weren't for the blockade."

Hoffa recommended the pooling of trucking equipment, limits on number of deliveries and a business week of five days as means of conserving diesel fuel.

man John L. Burton, D-San Francisco, has said he will make his candidacy official in January.

McGuire, brother of Marin County Superior Court Judge E. Warren McGuire, is a third generation San Franciscan. He attended St. Ignatius High School and was graduated in 1949 from the University of San Francisco. He later served on the university's board of governors.

He is active in Little League and Pop Warner football.

A former insurance agent, he owns a real estate business.

McGuire and his wife, Lavonne, have four children, Kathleen, Brian, Patrick and Molly. They have lived in Marin since 1951.

He has promised, if elected, to install a 24-hour "hot line" so citizens can telephone him in Washington.

The district includes all of Marin, and slivers of Southern Sonoma and northern San Francisco. The Republican incumbent, William S. Mailliard, has promised to announce soon whether he will seek reelection despite redistricting that cost him large areas that traditionally vote Republican.

patients' home counties. Admittance of out-of-county psychiatric patients must be cleared through those officials. The patient's home county is then billed for the Marin services.

A citizens' group told the county mental health advisory board Wednesday its investigation indicated that Ross General may not have followed those procedures and instead billed Marin for out-ot-county patients.

L.C. Johnson, Ross Hospital administrator, told the Independent-Journal later he could not comment until he has reviewed hospital records.

Robertson told county officials that, while the audit is under way, the county may finance hospital care from other state mental health funds allocated for other programs.

If Ross General declines to accept new patients, he continued, the patients can be sent to Napa State hospital at no cost to the County.

(Robertson said the state has abandoned plans to close down the state hospital system which he referred to as "the backbone of the state's mental health system.")

He said his agency's primary concern is to make sure all who need mental health care can get it — now and in the future.

Robertson said he was aware of the financial problems in Marin last May, when the hospitals proceeded to spend more than $600,000 more than their allocations.

He said his agency did not initiate an audit then because "we had bigger problems elsewhere in the state" and felt confident county government could work out the problem.

Meanwhile, the psychiatric ward at Ross General may be sold to a hospital corporation specializing in mental health care.

Hospital administrator Johnson confirmed discussions are underway between the Hospital Corp. of America, present owner of Ross General, and the Community Psychiatric Center Group.

Only the psychiatric ward is being considered for sale Johnson said. adding that sale negotiations were prompted,in part, by the hospital's difficulties with the county over funding.

Bel Air Woman Begins A Car Pool Operation

By REBECCA LARSEN

First there were neighbors forming car pools among themselves. Then there were groups like the Sierra Club trying to promote carpools. Now there's a company in Marin which will organize car pools for a fee.

Barbara Loomis, whose astrological sign is Libra, launched the company, Libra II, in her home in Bel Air, just outside Tiburon. She hopes to match up hundreds of drivers from all over the Bay Area.

Newspaper ads have drawn about 175 responses to her business, including even Daly City residents who live near the Bay Area Rapid Transit line.

For $5, Mrs. Loomis guarantees one match to a driver or rider within 90 days after an individual sends in his name, address, phone number, destination, arrival and departure times.

If the first match does not work out within the first six months, she guarantees to provide one more per customer. After that the driver or rider has to pay $3 more to reregister.

Mrs. Loomis is a former traveling saleswoman who came to Marin about a year ago after several years spent living in the Far East.

"I was looking for a timely business to get into and with the energy crisis, I think car pooling is just the thing," she said.

BARBARA LOOMIS
'Just the thing'

She received advice from another, similar firm which has been operating successfully for three months in the Los Angeles area.

Car Pools are a far better solution to fuel problems than public transit, Mrs. Loomis believes. "With car pooling you have the luxury of a limousine service which goes from door-to-door. It can also be a social thing that develops many new relationships for people."

What can she offer that a group like the Sierra Club cannot?

"I don't think any public organization can sustain a car pooling drive on a long term basis. This is something that has to go on and on," she said.

Mrs. Loomis will do her matching by by hand at first, using detailed maps of the bay area and an extensive filing system. If the response grows, she will lease computer time.

She does not have enough customers yet to do much matching, but she thinks that after Jan. 1, there will be more replies.

"That's when taxes come due, and the holiday bills arrive, and people start looking for an alternative to driving an expensive car to work every day," she said.

Mrs. Loomis hopes to get large companies to put her notices on their bulletin boards. "Then I'd have lots of people going to the same destination from all sorts of places," she said.

"It's an ideal business to get into during the energy crisis. I don't even need a car myself," she added. "I can pedal down to the Post Office on a 10-speed bike to collect my mail."

Nursing Homes Given A Temporary Rate Hike

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The state has approved a temporary $13.4 million rate increase for nursing homes and other private health facilities which care for state-supported patients.

Dr. J.M. Stubblebine, director of the Department of Health, said the "interim" increase would raise average daily rates per patient from $15.83 to $16.78.

At a hearing last month, some operators of nursing homes and other health care facilities cited increasing costs and sought an average daily rate of $22 per patient.

Stubblebine said yesterday while granting the 6 per cent increase, which will cost $13.4 million through June 30, the department also is starting cost audit surveys to determine the "eventual payment" levels for nursing homes, intermediate care and nonmedical out-of-home care facilities.

The increase will apply to skilled nursing and intermediate care facilities, which treat Medi-Cal patients, as well as certain facilities for the mentally ill and mentally retarded.

The last rate increases, totalling 17 per cent, were granted between January and June of 1972.

Growth Talks Monday Night

The Novato City Council and Marin County Board of Supervisors will have a meeting at 8 p.m. Monday at the Novato Community House to discuss a proposed growth control ordinance.

The city has decided to limit growth in the Novato area, including the unincorporated sectors, to 500 dwelling units a year. The two agencies will consider an ordinance to implement the policy.

Moose Conducting Christmas Drive

Residents wishing to contribute to the San Rafael Moose Lodge 1803 Christmas drive for children may send donations to the lodge at San Rafael P.O. Box 2356.

Lodge secretary T. E. Pekonen said members will distribute food, toys, candy and nuts to children at the Center Medical Group and Marin County Juvenile Hall on Christmas Eve.

Ford Will Build More Small Autos

DETROIT (UPI) — The demand for vehicles that use less gasoline has convinced the Ford Motor Co. to build 450,000 more small cars in 1974 than it did in 1973.

"An early end to the oil embargo would not eliminate the shortage of petroleum products, but it would increase the supply and improve the outlook for the economy and for sales of full-size cars," said Henry Ford II, chairman of the nation's No. 2 automaker.

"It seems certain, however, that public concern over gasoline supplies and prices will lead to continuing growth in demand for small cars," he said.

Ford predicted small cars will account for one of every two sales in the automobile industry in 1974 as demand for the economical models increases. That compares with 42 per cent this year and 38 per cent in 1972. The firm turned out 1.1 million small cars in 1973.

In a year-end statement yesterday, Ford echoed predictions of his counterparts at General Motors and Chrysler that sales will drop substantially in 1974 after three record years in a row. Ford said sales could drop 13 per cent from this year's 11.5 million cars to around 10 million in 1974, adding that the industry's move to small cars will keep sales from dropping below the 10- million mark.

Part of Ford's planned $800 million expenditure in the United States in 1974 is for conversion of three assembly plants to small car production and Ford said additional changes are being considered.

New Agency Brings Supervisors A Slap

The Marin County Grand Jury has rapped the county board of supervisors for creating the department of corrections before necessary organizational studies had been made.

The interim report, to be considered Tuesday by supervisors, said the department's relationship with other county departments has yet to be defined even though it will go into operation Jan. 1.

It noted the department was budgeted in June, a director hired and an advisory commission appointed in July — all before the department was officially established this month.

"The relationship of this new entity to the courts, the sheriff's department and the probation department has yet to be defined," the report said. "At present the director (Ralph Merola) is answerable to board of supervisors and the county administrator; because of this, no one has the authority to settle disputes" (between agencies).

The new department is slated to take over operation of the sheriff's Honor Farm next month and will offer some rehabilitation programs to jail inmates.

The grand jury recommended the board move quickly to resolve questions about the department's administrative structure and its role and establish a channel to resolve disputes between the new department and the courts, sheriff and probation departments.

Nixon Selects Ambassadors

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nominations of Viron P. Vikay, a career Foreign Service officer, and Lloyd I. Miller, a Cincinnati lawyer, to be ambassadors to Colombia and Trinidad and Tobago respectively have been announced by President Nixon.

Vaky, 48, Corpus Christi, Tex., now ambassador to Costa Rica, will succeed Leonard J. Saccio, who has resigned.

Miller, 49, chairman of the Cincinnati Transit Co. since 1956, will replace Anthony D. Marshall in Trinidad and Tobago. Marshall recently was nominated ambassador to Kenya.

THE LAST WORD

Time Can Come And Time Can Go, But Trouble Stays Forever

By BETTY FROST

Disillusioned with contemporary crises? With dwindling energy supplies, shaky political leadership and empty markets?

Let's escape in fantasy to an older world of castles and kings, and see what comfort travel can offer.

The feudal castle of Beersel was built in the 13th Century to defend Brussels from attack from Flanders. A fairy-tale castle with a moat and drawbridge, it was stormed several years ago by a group of Belgian college boys who pulled up the drawbridge and held it for a week.

Once a powerful fortress, it boasts a famous torture chamber for the enemies of the Dukes of Brabant, who were the original owners. Peaceful now in the fall sunshine, it has been restored with great authenticity, and is maintained by a non-profit organization, the Historic Homes of Belgium. The courtyard is often used as the setting for dramatic productions.

Each evening the castle was lighted by the Union des Enterprises d' Electricite de Belgique. It must be dark now, in response to power restrictions in Belgium.

IN COPENHAGEN the Amalienborg Palace is the royal residence. Each day at noon the opera bouffe ceremony of the changing of the palace guards in the vast cobblestone courtyard attracts visitors. The boyish guardsmen look so young that one visitor quipped, "No wonder they say 'God Save the Queen'."

The royal swallow-tail flag flying above the palace indicated that Queen Margrethe II was in residence. Was she watching the pageant discreetly behind the lace curtains?

Later that October day, a large demonstration against the Common Market centered near the palace, delaying homebound commuter traffic.

Now the streets of Copenhagen are empty of automobiles on Sundays.

The castle at Plon in Schleswig-Holstein was turned into an academy for Prussian princes about 100 years ago, and still continues a useful role as a private boys school. In Northern Germany, where the sun goes down early in the winter months, the cost of electricity is about four times what it is here in Marin. Long before the energy squeeze here the German people were using power economically. Plon preppies don't burn the midnight oil.

THE DOCTORS Harald and Waltraud Walter of Preetz, Germany, who have brought leadership to the School Affiliation Service Exchange program between Schiller Gymnasium in Preetz and Redwood High School since it began 10 years ago, pointed out a castle where some friends of theirs live.

To the visitors' exclamations of enthusiasm about such privilege, Frau Doktor Walter disagreed. Her friends are elderly and they most fervently wish they could move to a cozy apartment.

The Hohenzollern Castle, near Tuchingden, in Germany would delight any nature-loving Marinite because of its location high atop a wooded hill with a view of forests and valleys. Completely renovated inside about 100 years ago, its furnishings are Victorian. It was the home of the last of the German Kaisers.

One appealing drawing room, furnished in overstuffed chairs and settees covered with hyacinth blue linen, seemed so liveable one could have forgotten it was in a castle except for a seating arrangement in a turret with a view of the central court. Now maintained as a museum, it is popular with the German people, who love to hike, and walk up the steep patns to the castle for a day's excursion.

In France one soon adds "la greve" to his vocabulary. It means "strike." Because of a strike of caretakers at the Palace of Versailles, that most famous palace built for Louis XIV, was out of bounds to tourists this fall.

THE PALAIS du Luxembourg in Paris was built for Marie de Medici, Queen of France, when she was regent for her son Louis XIII. The Queen must have been an early women's liberation partisan, because close to the Renaissance-style castle are many statues of former queens and female saints.

What could mar the perfection of the gardens, quiet pools and works of art that lead to the Palace of Luxembourg? Vandalism, that's what. In one section of the park some miscreant had smeared red and brown paint on the priceless statues, all the more shocking since in France's well cared for parks and public buildings it was the only incidence of defamation we observed.

So much for escape. Maybe we should just say with the French, "The more it changes, the more it remains the same," or take to heart the words of Sausalito philosopher Sally Stanford, "The devil you know is better than the devil you don't know."

A Special Christmas Gift To Be Unwrapped In Sausalito Tomorrow

Marin Women

By BETTY FROST

Three months of preparation have gone into a very special Christmas gift, which will be unwrapped tomorrow for the delight of the congregation of the Sausalito Presbyterian Church and any others who would like to share it.

"Why the Chimes Rang", a film with a cast of 30 Marin children ranging in age from 2 to 14 years of age, will have its premiere showing at the church at 4:30 p.m. tomorrow.

Responsibility for the production rests with Barbara Nelson and Paula Fancher, although the two Sausalitans are quick to point out that the children, their parents, other church members and indeed the whole community participated.

In September Mrs. Douglas Fancher wrote the script, adapting a Christmas story by Robert Alden, to the movie medium.

"It is the story of a mountain village where the church chimes ring only on Christmas Eve when an unselfish gift is given at the altar. They had not rung for years, but as the plot unfolds a child's unusual gift activates them," Mrs. Fancher explained.

MRS. GENE Nelson, who directed the movie with Mrs. Fancher, also did some of the camera work. Douglas Fancher also filmed some scenes. All of the filming was done in Sausalito, and much of the action takes place within the 70-year-old church on Bulkley Avenue.

Filming began in October and was completed just before Thanksgiving. Problems included bad weather which delayed outdoor shooting, retakes as the young actors settled into their roles, and handling crowd scenes.

"However, we have saved the out-takes, those scenes not suitable for inclusion in the finished product, because they are so marvelously funny," Mrs. Fancher said.

"Just as we were finishing the last scene, one of the stars, Rebecca Barnes, 8, came down with tonsilitis. We wondered if we would have to write her out of the script," Mrs. Nelson said.

"A dream sequence about pirates made on location atop Wolf Back Ridge was a near disaster. After waiting for the rain to clear we took the children to the setting, and a malfunction of the camera, caused another postponement. Then it rained for another three weeks," Mrs. Fancher said.

ON THE plus side Mrs. Nelson observed," It is a valuable thing for adults to work with children, and a spirit of great comraderie and cooperation is developed. We found that some of the children show great promise. The performances of 6 and 7 year olds was remarkable."

"Such a film can be saved for years and provides a part of the church history," Mrs. Fancher added.

The directors agreed that they had learned that good organization is most important, because it gives the child actors confidence.

For the half-hour show, the Presby Kids Productions company had a budget of $150. The directors said individuals had donated the costumes, supplied camera equipment and some of the film.

GENERATION RAP

by Helen and Sue Bottel

Pam's Parents Should Relax Tight Controls, Ignore Gossip

RAP:

I've got a friend I'll call Pam. About a year ago her parents made her break up with this dude and she almost had a nervous breakdown. When she got out of the hospital, she had an "I don't care" attitude which I set out to change.

After she "came back to life," we were still best friends. Then someone called her folks and told them I was hooked on drugs and laid out of school almost every day to get high. The first couple of phone calls they ignored, and then it began to get to them.

Meanwhile, a mysterious caller informed my mother Pam was a put-out with the guys and a regular sot. Mom doesn't believe anything until it's proved, so she told the caller politely where to go unless she had facts.

Well, Pam's parents made her break off with me, but six months later I persuaded them to let her come to a party I was giving, for her 17th birthday.

Both my parents were present the entire time, two other parents dropped by, and Pam's mother called twice. But someone just couldn't resist telling her that the party wasn't chaperoned and it was loaded with dope and booze.

The adult chaperones all said they were surprised at how well-behaved we were, but Pam's mother heard the wrong side.

Some gossiper or gossipers are having a darn good time ruining Pam's and my friendship. What can we do? — HELP

HELP:

Seems to me Pam's parents are overly anxious to believe stories which could easily be proved lies. Or are they over-anxious — period?

If you two could get your parents together for a talk, your problems might be solved. — HELEN

HELP:

Why not snoop around and try to locate the gossiper? That shouldn't be hard: after all, how many stinkers do you know who are so jealous of Pam's friendship with you that they'd like to break it up? — SUE

HELEN AND SUE:

Why is it that when you're overweight and not reducing, everyone wonders why you don't have more will power, and makes you feel worthless for not going on a diet?

Then, when you go on a diet and try desperately hard to resist food, everyone offers you fattening things, and gets their feelings hurt if you refuse them?

Like I was at a girl friend's and she'd just made a pudding-cake. I say, "No thank you" and she thinks I'm saying her cake is no good. Like the gang ordered pizza sent over the other night and when I wouldn't eat my share they made me pay for it anyway.

Please tell people to help someone on a diet. Not make it tougher for them. — LOSING BATTLE

DEAR L.B.:

You've already told 'em thanks — they needed that. — HELEN AND SUE

DEAR RAP:

I have some old eyeglasses and wonder if you have an address where I can send them. I've heard of an organization that uses them for poor people. — FOUR EYES

DEAR F.E.:

Send your old eyeglasses to Eyes for the Needy, Short Hills, N. J., 07078. This non-profit group can use not only glasses of all kinds, but also unbroken plastic or metal frames with lenses, old silverware, watches and jewelry containing precious metals. — H AND S endeavor in film-making for the women. Two years ago they had made "Our Gift to Jesus" for the church. "In that one a donkey from the Marin County Humane Society was the star," according to Mrs. Fancher.

They also did "Escolito Escapades", a movie sequence incorporated into the jinx productions of 1973 for the Sausalito Woman's Club.

Barbara Nelson studied drama at New York State University at Alfred, N.Y., where "a powerful drama coach" encouraged her. She is a member of the Ross Valley Players, the Masque Unit, and the Actors Playhouse of Marin. She has played major roles in the productions of these organizations. Her experience has given her a background in film-making and drama, and she enjoys working with children in education and church work.

Barbara is the wife of Gene Nelson, KSFO radio show host, who has contributed his expertise to "Why the Chimes Rang". Their son, Christopher, 10 is one of the actors.

AFTER THIS experience, Barbara is thinking of writing a book about filming with children, and would like to continue working with children and movie-making, perhaps in a school situation.

Paula Fancher is a graduate of the University of California at Berkeley, where she majored in psychology. She claims she doesn't know anything about drama except what she has learned from Mrs. Nelson. She does like to write, and now she is interested in learning more about photography.

She is the wife of Douglas Fancher, sales manager for Annex Motors in San Rafael. Fancher's hobby is movie photography. They have two children, Christian, 3, and Justin, 2.

The directors were hard at work during the week, synchronizing the sound with the finished film.

"We violated a cardinal rule of drama by having two directors," Mrs. Nelson said, "but it has truly been a joint effort."

After tomorrow's premiere, a second showing of the Christmas story will be given at 7 p.m. Christmas Eve at the church. Both programs are open to the public.

SEW SIMPLE

Some Ideas For Holiday Gifts

By EUNICE FARMER
Distributed by the Register and Tribune Syndicate

Looking for last minute Christmas gifts? Have you considered giving a beautiful piece of fabric to friends or family? Everyone loves a fabulous piece of fabric for a coat, skirt, dress, pant suit, or whatever, and it would surely be an original idea. Many of you who have access to great fabric shops can really give someone a thrill who hasn't such resources at their fingertips.

Beside fabrics, there are all sorts of notions that make small stocking gifts as well as the important items such as a really fine pair of nine-inch cutting shears, velvet needle board, etc. that anyone who sews would treasure. To top the list, how about a gift certificate for your favorite home seamstress so she can buy the sewing machine of her choice after the holidays.

Sewing machines are so expensive that they take lots of comparison and shopping for that one that gives exactly what you want. I personally know of many who have received sewing machines which their husbands purchased, not knowing what they were getting, who disliked sewing from that point on.

Let's face it, we sewers need all the help we can get and I can't think of a better beginning than a fabulous sewing machine. Remember, buy a sewing machine the way you would buy a new car —shop them all and then try them before making a purchase.

DEAR EUNICE,

I have just completed a bias cut skirt designed by Anne Klein, with two deep folds in the front of the skirt. It looked so graceful in the picture but it is a disaster on me. I can't get the skirt to hang smoothly from the waistband. Instead it draws and pulls across my waistline and hips, and causes a roll of fabric to form under the waistband. I followed the directions carefully and my waist measurement was the same as the pattern. — ANNE R.

DEAR ANNE,

Your problem is practically universal. It's not the waistline measurement that's important, it's that measurement just below the waistline. Most women, unless they are built like a stick, curve out just below the waistline, some more so than others. The pattern is angled in and doesn't allow for this figure roundness, thus your skirt, whether bias or straight must raise up to the place where there is enough fabric to go over this area, causing the skirt to form that fold right under the waistband.

It's a good idea to check your figure first before selecting a bias skirt or bias bodice. If your figure is full and rounded, avoid anything bias like the plague. It will only stretch and distort the garment and call attention to the areas you want to disguise.

No matter what your figure, it's always best to keep the skirt slightly larger than the waist measurement and ease the skirt to the bodice or a pre-fitted waistband.

This ease you have allowed can be distributed evenly and won't be noticed if you will machine stitch two rows of stitching, one at the seamline and the second row just above the seamline.

PULL THE bobbin threads slightly and the ease will be there, but it won't show or look gathered. Most of your ease will be on each side, front and back, and very little at the center back. If you are large in the stomach, you will need ease here.

DEAR EUNICE,

Most of the dressy patterns today call for circular fullness in the skirts rather than a straight skirt with gathers for the waistline. My problem is that the fabric I have chosen will have to be pieced in order to cut the skirt. I have checked other patterns and it seems that most of them have to be pieced. I am not used to this suggestion. Won't the piecing seam look noticeable? — MRS. L.G.

DEAR MRS. L.G.:

You are right — it's impossible to make a full circular skirt in the long length without piecing the fabric.

The only patterns that can avoid this is where you have a skirt with many sections, tapering from the waistline and flaring at the hem.

I think this seam is only noticeable while you are working on the gown. Just be sure it doesn't pucker and that you press it smooth. These flowing skirts have so much fullness that the seam is almost hidden in the folds of the skirt. It's the over-all appearance that's important, not each and every seam under construction.

Dinner Will Precede P-TA Dance

By MOLLY MARIN

The hospitality of the Christmas season is well underway this weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. John G. Eliot Jr. of Mill Valley will entertain at a dinner party tonight before going on to the Old Mill Parent-Teacher Association's "Fourth Annual Parents Night Out" Christmas dance at the Ralston White Estate in Mill Valley.

ALL FOUR children of Dr. and Mrs. Corwin Hinshaw will be in Belvedere tomorrow for a family reunion at their Belvedere Lagoon home.

The former Dorothy Hinshaw, now Mrs. Gregory Patent of Missoula, Mont., is here with her husband, a professor at University of Montana, and their sons David and Jason.

Dr. and Mrs. Horton Hinshaw of Tiburon will attend the dinner with their daughter Judy.

The Corwin Hinshaws' older daughter, Mrs. Barbara Baird of San Anselmo, will bring her daughters, Laura, Robin and Bonnie, and Dr. and Mrs. William Hinshaw have traveled from Burbank with their children Michael and Lisa for the family reunion.

JANE MARSH
On quick visit home

OPERA SINGER Jane Marsh is making a whirlwind visit to her mother, Mrs. Mary C. Marsh, in Mill Valley this weekend. The soprano, now a member of the Dusseldorf Opera Company in Germany, travels with the company throughout Europe.

An opera engagement in Pittsburgh, Pa., enabled her to come back to Marin for a four-day visit. This afternoon a group of her former classmates from Tamalpais High School days attended an open house given by Mrs. Marsh for Jane.

The singer, who made her American professional debut with the San Francisco Opera in "Magic Flute" in 1967, leaves Monday for a performance in Italy, where she will spend Christmas.

PARADISE HARBOR Yacht Club will hold its Commodore's Party tomorrow from 3 to 5 p.m. at the clubhouse in Tiburon to honor the new commodore, Ralph Neelands.

Chairmen Dr. and Mrs. Burt Richardson have asked each member to bring hors d'oeuvres for the cocktail party.

The club's Christmas tree was trimmed this afternoon when the Richardsons served hot chocolate and cookies while the club's junior members trim the tree, play guitars and sing carols from 1 to 3 p.m.

THIRTY NEIGHBORS swapped cookie recipes at the Tiburon home of Mrs. Robert Kennedy yesterday morning, Friday, Dec. 14 as they sampled one another's homemade cookies.

Dawn Kennedy had arranged plates of cookies, each with its recipe, on her buffet and supplied pencils and blank cards.

"Some spend a whole year looking for just the right recipe. After four years of swapping we have enough to make a cookbook," said one guest, Mrs. William Bergmann.

TIBURON PENINSULA Club will welcome Santa Claus (Vernon Perry) to its family Christmas party tomorrow from 3 to 5 p.m. Chairman Mrs. Vernon Perry has arranged for members to bring cookies and fruitcake, and Mrs. Brooke Halsey will pour the punch. Mrs. William Bergmann helped with arrangements.

Decorations were made by the children of members, under supervision of Mrs. Perry.

MICHELLE ROACH, godchild of Mrs. Richard Parks, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Parks in San Francisco, and she and a friend, Jackie Penna will attend the matinee of the Marin Civic Ballet's "Nutcracker" at Marin Veterans Memorial Building today.

Michelle attends the Nesta Brooking School, a ballet boarding school in England, and she and Jackie will spend Christmas in Honolulu after their Bay Area visit. Mrs. Parks is librarian of the Lori Meislin Library of the Marin Civic Ballet building in San Rafael and is former director of the Academy of Dance in San Francisco.

SANTA CLAUS will arrive by sailboat as the main attraction of the children's Christmas party which will be given by the Sausalito Yacht Club Women's Auxiliary from 1 to 3 p.m. tomorrow at the clubhouse in Sausalito.

Mrs. Lowden Jessup is chairman for the party.

SPORTS ANALYSIS

Energy Crisis And Racing

By LEW CODDINGTON

The "energy crisis," with its threat of fuel rationing and higher prices, is not worrying the Marin auto racing community a bit. In fact, some see a silver lining in the smoggy cloud.

The burdens of any national belt-tightening will fall unequally, benefitting sports cars rather than stockers or Indy types, and helping local tracks rather than regional ones. Marin stands to gain because of that.

One thing which will not happen, apparently, is complete elimination of fuel for auto racing. The Nixon administration believes that gasoline used in racing is not being wasted.

"Motor sports has been defined as an industry — a multi-billion dollar industry," said Del Owens, public relations director of the Sports Car Club of America, by telephone from Denver.

"Each industry will be asked in the coming weeks to say by what percentage it is prepared to cut down its usage of fuel," Owens added, and their recommendations are likely to be observed.

The actual amount of fuel used in auto racing is relatively low. Races are so short and infrequent that the amount of gasoline burned on the track is surprisingly small. No fuel is used for heating or lighting the track most of the time. The biggest fuel usages are by owners, carting their vehicles to and from the tracks; and by spectators, driving to the races.

IN MARIN, sports cars occupy the time and attention of most drivers and owners. They race at lower speeds and get better mileage than the turbo-charged Indianapolis monsters or the super Porsches.

"In a 30-minute race, we burn maybe six or eight gallons of gas," said Joe Huffaker, who has built many successful sports cars in his San Rafael garage.

"We burn maybe 30-40 gallons a weekend, which is probably more than anybody in the area," he continued. "Last year we ran in nine events. Our MG Midget gets 35 gallons on the street, and maybe 17 or 18 on the track, which is better than most people get going to the grocery store."

Hauling the car to and from the track probably uses more fuel than does the actual racing. Huffaker said his diesel truck gets about six and a half miles to the gallon. "We go up to Seattle twice and Portland twice a year," he said. "We may have to cut back to one."

THE LARGEST FUEL consumption is by spectators traveling to and fro. "In the event of gas rationing, people would still save up their gas to go," was Owens' optimistic forecast. "There might be car pools or public transportation, too."

"Where it will hurt," said Huffaker, "is for people to travel long distances, to Indianapolis or Ontario to see the Indy-type cars, or to points in the South to see stock cars."

Where it will help is in the pocketbooks of local track owners, including Sears Point International Raceway at the junction of Highways 37 and 121.

"If people can get up and back (from San Francisco) on half a tank of gas, then they're more likely to come to our track," said co-owner Hugh Harn. "We're as close in as we can get."

The prospect of higher fuel prices causes no fear among local owners. Much gasoline is provided free as a promotional effort by the tracks and the remainder is available at approximately pump prices, says Dick Raymond, a Novato Can-Am car owner. "We use so little anyway," adds Huffaker.

THE CHIEF problem may lie in the attitude of sponsors. The sight of a car whirring around a track in an apparently pointless figure, smoke belching from its exhaust pipes, is bad public relations.

Raymond says he had one prospective sponsor sold on backing a car until the crisis began to loom. Others, especially national radio and television sponsors like breweries and cigarette companies, are taking a wait-and-see attitude. Automotive products firms, like STP, are committed by the very nature of their products.

Ultimately, the future of auto racing depends on the attitude of "the people on the hillside," in Raymond's words. If fans buy the argument that auto racing provides great recreational pleasure for minimum energy expenditure, the sport will survive.

THERE IS another attitude in the land, though, which considers the automobile a polluter and an energy-waster, and opposes its glorification. Proponents of this hardly care that auto racing ranks fairly low on the scale of energy consumers at 93 million gallons of fuel petroleum annually. They are more concerned about the prestige which racing bestows on automobiles in general.

The automobile's place in society is due for a hard reexamination, which will affect everything from the Indy 500 to dragging the main on Saturday night.

The Marin auto racing community is not faced with that problem just now, and local owners and drivers are not losing much sleep.

As Harn says, "We are waiting for our President to lead us out of this."

San Rafael Meets Drake For Crown

By LEW CODDINGTON

Byron Stewart and Eddie Joe Chavez, with strong and steady help from their teammates, dazzled the crowd with sparkling individual performances last night to lead their schools into the championship game of the Drake Pirate Classic basketball tournament.

Stewart scored 27 points as San Rafael High toppled Novato, 57-46, and Chavez tallied 20 as the host Pirates pulled away from San Marin, 70-58, before an estimated 900 fans.

San Rafael and defending champion Drake will meet for the title at 8:15 p.m. tonight, while Novato will play San Marin for third place at 6:30 p.m.

In losers' bracket games yesterday, Ells of Richmond defeated Petaluma, 63-51, and Terra Linda outlasted Napa in overtime, 73-68. The winners were to play for the consolation title at 5 p.m. and the losers for seventh place at 3:30 p.m.

San Rafael center Stewart stands 6-foot-7, holds the ball high and releases it quickly, making his jump shot virtually impossible to stop. To his shooting, he added 11 rebounds.

Coach Bret Tovani, however, seemed happiest about his team's defense. "It took us awhile to learn to play this defense, but now the kids are

Warriors Host Bullets Tonight

OAKLAND (UPI) — With their television image tarnished, the Golden State Warriors returned from Oregon to meet the Capital Bullets tonight at 8 o'clock at the Coliseum-Arena.

Blowing a 17-point lead in the first quarter, the Warriors dropped a 109-101 decision to the Portland Trail Blazers last night in a game televised locally from Portland. In their previous appearance on TV, the Warriors were upset by the Phoenix Suns.

Geoff Petrie, who scored only two points in the first half, sparked the Portland comeback with 22 points in the second half to help sink the Warriors. Golden State's two-game lead over Los Angeles in the NBA's Pacific Division was sliced to one game.

Cazzie Russell was just about the only effective Warrior shooter. He wound up with 37 points while guard Jim Barnett added 18. Guard Jeff Mullins was held scoreless.

Portland tied the game early in the third quarter and went ahead to stay 64-63 with 8:43 remaining.

Sidney Wicks topped the Trail Blazers with 25 points.

Marin Tar Five Spanks Moffett

By TOM THOMPSON

Goliath kicked sand in David's face last night in the non-conference College of Marin Invitational, as the host Tars annihilated Moffett Field naval air station of Mountain View, 104-50, on opening night of the basketball event.

Actually what Marin sent hurtling in the Flyers' faces shouldn't be called sand — it was more like boulders. Marin dominated from the outset, grabbing a 10-2 lead in the first two minutes and increasing the bulge as the game progressed.

The only real excitement for the sparse Kentfield crowd of about 500 came when George Swift sank a field goal from underneath with 47 seconds left to play, pushing the unbeaten Tars (8-0) over the 100-point mark for the first time this year. The score at that point was 101-49.

Tonight the Tars take on Reedley at 9 o'clock. The Pirates traveled four hours from the Fresno area and lost, 86-60 to Moffett's opponent tonight at 7 o'clock, Santa Rosa.

"They're a much better team than tonight's score would indicate," said Panagakis of the Pirates. "They must have been tired after that long trip but came out and played. Even the (Golden State) Warriors have a hard time doing that."

Fourteen of the 15 players on Marin's roster scored as coach John Panagakis cleared his bench early and substituted liberally. Wil Garner topped the game's scorers with 21 points, despite playing only around 12 minutes. Three other Tars scored in double figures with Raymond Williams finishing with 11 points, while Bill Gombos and John Peloza had 10 each.

It was the second time the Tars had beaten Moffett this year. In the season opener, Marin won, 74-52.

"We knew what they could do," said Panagakis. "We knew that if we shut off number 41 (Nick Chargin), who gave us trouble in the first game, we could win." Chargin finished with nine points.

"Everyone did well tonight," the winning mentor continued. "Its a pleasure to get a game where everyone plays well."

Redwood, Wildcats Triumph

Playing "our best half of the year," Redwood High School pulled away from Livermore last night for a 91-65 victory and a place in the championship game of the Yuba City basketball tournament.

In other tournament action, Marin Catholic qualified for the consolation game of the Rose City tourney in Santa Rosa with a 61-42 triumph over St. Patrick's of Vallejo.

Redwood (4-3) outscored Livermore in the second half, 59-38, to reach the finals for the sixth time in eight years. The Giants have won three titles, and lost to Livermore in last year's finals. This year's foe will be Mira Loma of Sacramento, an 81-68 victor over host Yuba.

Neil Hennessy led Redwood's scoring last night with 25 points and John Troppmann contributed a personal high of 21. "Our bench did a fine job, too," said coach Dick Hart. Dirk Wells scored nine points and Ross Malonek eight.

The game was ruled by referees' whistles, with Livermore committing 28 fouls and Redwood 23. The Giants took advantage by making 33 of 42 free throws (79 per cent), with Troppmann sinking nine of nine and Hennessy 11 of 12. Livermore was 21 of 36.

Seals Prove To Be Tough Hosts

OAKLAND (UPI) — At home, the Califonia Golden Seals are nearly unbeatable.

Reggie Leach scored on a 15-footer with 3:07 remaining last-night to lift the Seals from a two-goal deficit to a 2-2 tie with the defending Stanley Cup champion Montreal Canadiens.

It broke a three-game losing streak and kept the Seals unbeaten at home in their last four games. The tie also gave California a 6-4-3 record at home compared to a 1-15 mark on the road.

The tying goal came at 16:53 when Leach took a pass from behind the net by Walt McKechnie and lofted it past the outstretched glove of Canadiens goalie Marcel Plasse.

Montreal jumped to a 2-0 lead on Steve Shutt's first—period goal and Jacques Lemaire's tip in on a power play at 8:57 of the second period.

Exactly two minutes later, McKechnie pushed a loose puck past Plasse and Leach followed with the only score of the final period.

Rookie goaltender Bob Champoux of the Seals faced 27 shots, the same number as Plasse. The crowd of 7,676 was the Seals biggest home turnout of the season.

California now goes on the road for a game tomorrow at Boston before meeting the Canadiens again at Montreal Tuesday night.

Score by periods:
Montreal 1 1 0—2
California 0 1 1—2

First period—1. Montreal, Shutt 4 (Cournoyer, Lefley) 8:58. No penalties.

Second period—2. Montreal, Lemaire 11 (Lapointe, F. Mahovlich) 8:57; 3. California, McKechnie 9 (Leach, McAneeley) 10:57. Penalties—McAneeley 2:13, Gainey 5:40, California bench 7:46, Savard 12:58, Montreal bench 15:41.

Third period—4. California, Leach 4 (McKechnie, McAneeley) 16:53. Penalty—McAneeley 6:02.

Pro Sports Is Big Business

By PHIL ELDERKIN
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

There is a headline in a national magazine this month which asks the question: "Dad, why does Joe Namath make more money than the President?"

And the answer isn't necessarily that Namath had a better year than Mr. Nixon. It's because Joe Namath plays for a professional sports team — the New York Jets.

Pro sports are big business — have been, in fact, for a long time now. Gone are the days when you could purchase a National Football League franchise for $2,500, which is what Art Rooney paid for the Pittsburgh Steelers back in 1933.

Gone, too, are the days when baseball's superstars would play for $20,000 a season and meal money was more the size of a teen-ager's allowance.

Today, according to Mainliner Magazine, at least 150 players make $100,000 or more in the four major pro sports — baseball, football, basketball and hockey. And that doesn't include bonus money, deferred income or a high-powered pension plan.

WILT CHAMBERLAIN
Tops at $600,000

BOB COUSY
$8,500 Pact

Mainliner says that baseball's highest paid players, by position, are:

First base — Dick Allen, Chicago White Sox, $225,000.

Second base — Joe Morgan, Cincinnati Reds, $90,000.

Third base — Brooks Robinson, Baltimore Orioles, $110,000.

Shortstop — Luis Aparicio, Boston Red Sox, $100,000.

Outfield — Pete Rose, Cincinnati Reds, $135,000.

Outfield — Carl Yastrzemski, Boston Red Sox, $165,000.

Outfield — Hank Aaron, Atlanta Braves, $200,000.

Catcher — Johnny Bench, Cincinnati Reds, $110,000.

Pitcher — Bob Gibson, St. Louis Cardinals, $160,000.

Curious about the money a player, especially a quarterback, can make in pro football? Here are Mainliner's figures:

Joe Namath, New York Jets, $250,000.

John Unitas, San Diego Chargers, $250,000.

John Brodie, San Francisco 49ers, $180,000.

Sonny Jurgensen, Washington Redskins, $180,000.

Roman Gabriel, Philadelphia Eagles, $125,000.

Fran Tarkenton, Minnesota Vikings, $125,000.

Len Dawson, Kansas City Chiefs, $100,000.

Bob Griese, Miami Dolphins, $100,000.

Bill Kilmer, Washington Redskins, $100,000.

Larry Brown, Washington Redskins, $100,000.

Leroy Kelly, Cleveland Browns, $100,000.

The Gold Standard is also high in basketball and hockey. The war for player talent which started several years ago between the National Basketball Association and the American Basketball Association has driven average salaries beyond the $40,000 level.

Wilt Chamberlain of the San Diego Conquistadors is tops at $600,000, but even players like Jim McDaniels of Seattle (who doesn't even start) is in the $300,000 class. Only a little over

AGAINST RAIDERS

An Error-Free Broncos' Plan

OAKLAND (UPI) — "We have planned an errorless game for Oakland."

That was Denver Bronco coach John Ralston's optimistic view of tomorrow's 1 p.m. match with the Oakland Raiders — a game which will decide the American Football Conference.

"We don't do anything fancy on offense," said Ralston. "Our offense is all right just the way it is. But we have made some adjustments on defense. Heck, we had to after the way we played against San Diego."

Against the Chargers last Sunday, the Denver defense yielded 341 yards, prompting Ralston to observe "if we play that way again, and Oakland plays the way it did against Kansas City, we'll lose by 70-0."

But Ralston, a man who likes to think positively, said he believes his Broncos can beat the Raiders and thereby participate in their first postseason action since joining the American Football League as a charter member in 1960.

"Oakland is an outstanding team with few if any weaknesses," said Ralston, "but we think we are a pretty good team, too. We feel we can win if we don't make any mental mistakes."

The Raiders came out hitting from the opening kickoff against Kansas City last Saturday and eventually wound up with a 37-7 victory.

"They (the Raiders) played about as perfect a game as anyone could expect," said Ralston of the Chiefs game. "That's the kind of game we have to play and I think we can do it. One thing, we came to town ready to accept the challenge."

The Raiders are 8-4-1 and the Broncos 7-4-2. The winner, or Oakland in case of a tie, will host the first round of the AFC playoffs next Saturday against the wild card team — Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Cleveland or Buffalo — while the loser goes home to think about what might have been.

The game will be televised locally on channel 4 as well as to most of the nation with the Raiders 8½ point favorites to win their sixth division title in the last seven years — one of pro football's most consistent marks.

"We've studied the Broncos closely all week," said Raiders coach John Madden. "We know they do a lot of things well. Their quarterback (Charlie Johnson) is a veteran pro and they have excellent running in Floyd Little and Joe Dawkins."

What Madden and the rest of the Raiders are looking for is another solid running performance from Marv Hubbard (850 yards), Charlie Smith (670) and Clarence Davis (531).

"They have to be as good and as steady as they were against Kansas City," said Madden. "If they are, then we can control the tempo of the game, and that in a line is how you win football games."

Little needs only 63 yards to reach the 1,000 yard mark for the second time in his career. Dawkins has rushed for 659 yards.

Oakland's Ken Stabler is primarily a short passer while Johnson, despite the zone defenses, still likes to throw long. Stabler has hit on 151 of 240 attempts for 1,858 yards and 13 TDs while Johnson has connected 173 of 324 for 2,374 yards and 19 TDs.

On paper, it looks like an even matchup, which means the game might be decided by field goal specialists George Blanda and Jim Turner. The two matched long kicks in the final minute of this year's previous meeting for a 23-23 standoff. Under the circumstances, the Raiders would accept another tie, but not the Broncos, who have to win.

Quarry Needed Fast Kayo Vs. Shavers

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

NEW YORK — Jerry Quarry had no choice.

"I knew I'd hurt it the instant it happened," said Quarry, holding his swollen left hand in a bucket of ice only minutes after his first round technical knockout over Earnie Shavers last night. "I knew I had to put him away quick."

Quarry hurt his hand after catching Shavers with a left hook on the top of the head shortly after the start of their scheduled 12-round heavyweight bout. The hook was the beginning of the end for the hard-hitting Shavers, who was trapped against the ropes and battered to the canvas. Shavers arose after taking the mandatory eight count but was immediately set upon again by Quarry before referee Arthur Mercante ended the fight at 2:21.

enjoying it," he said. (Guard) Eric Wheeler did a super job defensively, and (forward) Arthur Brooks did a helluva job on the boards in the second half."

San Rafael was only 1-3 entering the tournament, but stunned previously unbeaten Petaluma Wednesday, 65-46. "It surprised me," admitted Tovani. "We put in all the ingredients early in the year, but we didn't know when they would all come together."

Novato (4-1) was the second straight team to be knocked from the unbeaten ranks by the Bulldogs. The Hornets' Willie Barnes had 12 points and 13 rebounds, and Curtis Saine had 15 points.

San Rafael rocketed out to an 11-2 lead and was ahead the rest of the way, holding Novato to a paltry 30 per cent from the floor (12 of 40), while shooting 48 per cent (23 of 48) themselves.

Drake (6-1) had trouble with San Marin until Chavez, a quick and creative 6-1 guard-forward, broke the game open with a 12-point third quarter. He picked up loose balls, made steals, handed out assists and grabbed rebounds.

Until Chavez' outburst, Drake was kept in the game by the inside work of Dan Trimble, Andre Carson and Gary Peak. Trimble had 18 points and 13 rebounds, Carson 15 points and 15 rebounds, and Peak 16 points and eight rebounds. Chavez had 11 rebounds.

San Marin (4-3) got production of 16 points from Bruce Smith, 12 each by Bruce Vollert and Terry Kom, and 10 by David Harris. The Mustangs trailed only 30-28 early in the third quarter.

Terra Linda (3-3) saw Doug Carlisle pop in three straight shots in the overtime period to defeat Napa. He finished with 16, as did Matt Flynn. Buck McCusker had 12.

Hard-luck Napa (1-6), which lost to Drake by four points Thursday night, got 21 points from Ed Bianchi and 20 from Mat Moon in the losing effort.

Petaluma coach Mark Reischling lamented the fact that "we don't have a big board man" after Ells' 6-5 center, Willie Washington, controlled the middle and scored 14 points. From the outside, Greg Cooper fired in 23 for the Eagles (3-2).

Chris Mungle was high man for the game with 25 for Petaluma (4-2), which fell behind in the first quarter, 18-8, made a run in the third period to close the gap to one point, but fell back again.

Shrine Coaches Arrive Tomorrow

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Five of the six coaches in the 49th annual East-West Shrine football game are expected to arrive in the Bay Area Sunday.

They include East head coach Paul Dietzel of South Carolina and assistants Harold Raynond of Delaware and John Jardine of Wisconsin and West head coach Jim Sweeney and assistant Jim Stanley of Oklahoma State.

West assistant mentor Don Fambrought of Kansas will head west after his team meets North Carolina State in Monday night's Liberty Bowl and most of the players are due Tuesday.

The game will be played Dec. 29 in Candlestick Park.

Long Beach Is Battling For National Recognition

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

That classic cage matchup betwen unbeatens UCLA and North Carolina State is not the only game tonight in which Pacific Coast teams are battling for national ratings.

Long Beach State, which won in impressive style Thursday at Cannisius, is in New York tonight to battle Long Island University. Nevada-Las Vegas, looking like the West Coast Athletic Conference favorite since University of San Francisco has had its problems, gives its frosh-laden squad its toughest test yet at Oregon State.

USF, now 1-3, tries to pick up the pieces at Seton Hall and tall Stanford hosts Colorado State.

Nineteenth-ranked USC looked especially sharp in disposing of Santa Clara 85-61 last night. Gus Williams hit on 9 of 16 shots for an 18-point output. Glen Hubbard had 17 for the outgunned Broncos. The Trojans host Arizona State tonight.

A couple of Coast teams took tourney wins last night as Seattle's Frank Oleynick hit a 20-footer at the buzzer to give Seattle the 62-60 win over Penn State at the Utah Classic. The Chiefs, who rallied from a 15-point deficit, battle host Utah in tonight's finals after the Utes blasted Dartmouth 85-54.

Ron Lee's 19 points led Oregon past Princeton 54-53 in the Jayhawk Classic and tonight have to play host Kansas, which belted Washington State 66-51.

In other action involving the Pac-8, Washington ran its record to 4-1 with a 75-53 romp over Gonzaga as Ray Price hit 20 in the first half and 22 in all and Stew Morrill had 16 for the losers.

Elsewhere last night, Fullerton overcame a 29-point performance by Tommy Lipsey to edge Los Angeles State 73-69. Mighty mite Duane Bonner bombed 17 for the Titans.

Rick Reed scored 28 to lead Azusa over Claremont 70-55 and Geoff Northrup's 28 gave Pomona the 67-48 victory over Los Angeles Baptist.

Western Montana held John Hampton of Westminister, who had a 47-point average, to 31 in winning 84-75. Portland State made its record 5-1 with a 71-63 win over Western Washington. James Mason hit 7-of-9 from the field and 20 points and Frank Williams 7-for-7 and 15. Northridge fell at Idaho State 90-62 and Nevada Reno hit 64 per cent from the floor in dispatching Sacramento State 96-70.

In more action, Great Falls outclassed Chico State 93-67, Grand Canyon outscored Adams State 99-85, Pomona outshot Los Angeles Baptist 67-48, Lewis and Clark outhustled Humboldt State 97-92, Whitworth outmuscled Western Baptist 101-80, Pacific (Ore.) outlasted George Fox 69-67, and Montana State outbattled Seattle Pacific 80-73.

Some other action tonight finds Portland at Nevada Reno, Pepperdine at UOP, San Jose State at North Dakota, Bakersfield State and Los Angeles State, unbeaten Fresno State at home to Wyoming, and Cal greets Loyola.

factor in the victory of Marin Catholic (3-3), according to coach Dave Gonsalves. Sophomore Gary Johnson, starting ahead of flu-ridden Chris McCarthy, scored 13 points and grabbed 14 rebounds.

Tom Cronin, the only Wildcat senior on the floor, grabbed 19 rebounds to lead his team to a whopping 61-22 edge in that department. Terry Ahern led the scorers with 19 points, many from the 20-25 foot range.

The 'Cats were to play Cardinal Newman of Santa Rosa for the consolation title at 5 p.m. today.

PRO FOOTBALL

Rams Seeking Club Records Tomorrow

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Los Angeles Rams can set a few league and team records tomorrow at 1 p.m. against the Cleveland Browns but all Coach Chuck Knox wants them to do is win the game.

The Rams are 10-point favorites to run their record to 12-2 which would be the best ever for the club.

They have made 167 first downs rushing in 13 games and in the season's finale should easily break the National Football League record of 170, set by Miami last year.

Rookie Lawrence McCutcheon has gained 1,014 yards rushing and will probably break Dick Bass' club record of 1,090.

If the Browns fail to sack quarterback John Hadl, the total for the season in this category will remain at 15—a new low for the Rams.

Knox, the rookie coach who clinched the NFC West two weeks ago, won't even comment about the Rams' chances of going to the Super Bowl.

"We want to beat Cleveland," he says. "We're concerned about winning, not about statistics. Cleveland is a good team. It has an explosive offensive... runners like Leroy Kelly and Ken Brown...fine receivers—Fair Hooker, Milt Morin and Frank Pitts."

In other games tomorrow, Cincinnati faces lowly Houston; Buffalo meets the Jets in New York, where the Bills' O.J. Simpson needs 61 yards to break Jim Brown's single season rushing record of 1,863, and NFC eastern division attention centers on the Dallas at St. Louis and Philadelphia at Washington encounters.

Dallas and Washington are tied at 9-4 and if both win tomorrow, the Cowboys earn the title on the basis of a 34-21 point advantage over Washington in head-to-head meetings.

New England plays at Baltimore, San Diego is at Kansas City, New Orleans at Atlanta, Minnesota at New York Giants and Green Bay at Chicago.

CHARITY FOOTBALL TOMORROW

The third annual Marin County Charity Bowl football game will be played tomorrow at 1 p.m. at College of Marin, matching two teams of local ex-high school and college stars.

The Marin All-Stars will play the Kentfield Firemen, with proceeds going to the Kentfield Medical Center for Handicapped Children.

Tickets cost $1 and will be available at the gate.

Frosh Basketball

The Redwood High School freshmen basketball team (1-3) yesterday beat visiting St. Ignatius of San Francisco (1-1), 61-50, in Larkspur.

A MARIN NEED

Mountaineering School Slated

Wanted: a recreational sport geared to improving the physical and emotional conditions of participants.

Found: mountaineering as taught by Mill Valley's Anthony Sottile in the Bay Area's first mountaineering school with international scope.

His Matterhorn School of Mountaineering for beginning, intermediate and advanced outdoorsmen will cover rock and ice climbing and a combination of cross country skiing and mountaineering highlighted by trips to the Sierra and Cascade ranges, and also Mount Tamalpais.

"When you know how to do this right, you have no emotional problems, no weight problems, no anxieties and you're in excellent physical condition," Sottile began. "It's you against the mountain. You're not competing against anybody else."

The 28-session course commencing Jan. 5 costs up to $525 and is to include traveling in the wilderness in all seasons, back packing, snow camping and bivouacs. Fees do not include certain equipment such as boots, food and travel expenses.

Sessions will be held all year round throughout the week for those paying the initial $50 refundable deposit. Sottile, a 45-year-old mountain climbing veteran, said that schedules will be arranged to suit individual needs. Sessions will consist of three to five man groups plus guide.

The program, which will be affiliated with European alpine clubs will run in conjunction with guides possessing worldwide experience in mountaineering.

Sottile's purpose is to promote the sport and its safety features. "I want people to know the basics and everything else they would want or need to know about mountaineering. After all, it's a way of life. You learn self control and discipline.

"You learn about correct posture for climbing up and down — diagonally or horizontally. You learn the necessary knots for ropes. The beginners start out at Mount Tam. The intermediates go to mountains in the Sierra and Cascades. And I would take advanced students to, say Lover's Leap (near South Lake Tahoe on Highway 50)."

Adventurous persons seeking the challenges from Mount Tam to Lover's Leap can contact Sottile at 145 Marguerite Avenue, Mill Valley, 94941.

CAZZIE RUSSELL

Warriors' 6th Man Is Leading Scorer

By ERIC PREWITT

OAKLAND (AP) — Cazzie Russell, who accepted coach Al Attles' assignment and became the Golden State Warriors' sixth man, is now No. 1 among the team's scorers.

"If we had everyone healthy, I'd still like to use Cazzie as the sixth man," Attles said after Russell scored a career-high 49 points in a victory over Houston Tuesday night.

"It might not be best for the individual, but I think it would be best for the team. Cazzie and I have an understanding."

The understanding was set aside when Clyde Lee, who was starting with Rick Barry at the forward positions, suffered a knee injury four weeks ago. Russell became a starter again, and is now averaging 22.8 points a game, high for the Warriors.

Russell, the former Michigan All-America, came to the Warriors in 1971 after playing behind Bill Bradley and Dave DeBusschere with the New York Knicks. He was a Golden State starter until Barry rejoined the team last season and Attles decided that Lee's rebounding strength could best complement Barry's shooting.

"I guess it used to be a big deal to be a starter and to get introduced before each game, but it's not anymore," says Attles. "Cazzie would play almost as many minutes as the sixth man."

Russell, who was scoring almost 20 points a game before returning to the starting lineup, admits, "I used to get down on myself too much. Now, I know that whatever happens, it's not the end of the world."

Barry scored 50 points last Saturday night against Los Angeles but watched Tuesday night's game from the bench because of a sprained ankle. He is averaging 21.3 points per game.

"I suppose I got more shots because Rick was out, but I'd rather have him in there," Russell said, "because then they're going to be watching him closely, and I'm going to get better shots."

Despite the impressive statistics of each shooter, Attles says, "I'd still like to use Cazzie as sixth man, because of his versatility. He can come off the bench when Rick is having a cold night.

"Suppose they're in there together and they're both cold?"

The way Russell and Barry are scoring now, Attles shouldn't have to worry about that possibility.

SALARIES

20 years ago Bob Cousy signed with the Boston Celtics for $8,500.

Hockey salaries have gone out of sight since the established National League had to give multi-year contracts to keep its talent from jumping to the rival World Hockey Association.

Right now defenseman Brad Park of the New York Rangers probably is the highest paid star in the National Hockey League. But even if Park gets a raise, he may not come close to the figures the Boston Bruins will soon have to give to both Bobby Orr and Phil Esposito, whose present contracts will soon expire.

The real question is: Can the hockey fan who pays the freight (and freight is definitely the right word here) afford another increase in ticket prices to watch his heroes in action?

I know some wives who say he can't!

Abraham, 13, Bowls 602 Series

Marin County bowling followers should be most enthusiastic today about their game's future when considering the recent exploits of junior stars Bill Abraham and James Massara.

Abraham, a 13-year-old student at Davidson Middle School, bowled 51 pins over his 149 average last Saturday morning when he recorded a 602 series in the Juniors League at Country Club Bowl in San Rafael. He had games of 218, 191 and 193.

Meanwhile, Massara, who notched an eye-popping 670 at Nave Lanes Dec. 1, continued his domination in the Ignacio house with a 547 this week.

COUNTY CLUB BOWL will present the 14th annual Adult-Juniors Christmas Tournament next Saturday. Squad times are 10 a.m. and 1 p.m.

Juniors, paying $2, and adults, $3, bowl three games with handicap and total pins scoring used in this doubles tournament.

Rose Bowl Victory To Michigan State

PASADENA — Senate majority leader Lyndon Johnson (D—Tex.) has returned to Washington after a four-month recuperation period from a heart attack.

On the other side of the country in January, the 1956 Rose Bowl is expected to be a thriller.

Michigan State University, coached by 40-year-old Duffy Daugherty is ranked second in the nation. They run a multiple T offense triggered by quarterback Earl Morrall.

Their opponents are the UCLA Bruins. The Red Sanders coached Uclan show the old fashioned single wing from a balanced line. They are rated fourth nationally.

Early in the game, Morrall goes to the air, but Bruin halfback Jim Decker intercepts and runs to the Spartan 16 yard line. They drive to the two before UCLA fullback Bob Davenport dives into the end zone for the game's first score.

Morrall brings MSU back with a touchdown pass to Clarence Peaks. At half-time the score is 7-7.

In the third quarter, Peaks throws a halfback pass to end John Lewis for a 67-yard touchdown and Michigan State has the lead, 14-7.

However, UCLA tailback Sam Brown, a slashing runner, is hurt. Sanders inserts Ronnie Knox, the brilliant Bruin passer, who broke his leg earlier in the season. Knox immediately puts the ball in the air to Decker and Rommie Loudd. The Bruins are in scoring territory and Doug Peters, a substitute fullback, ties the game by blasting into the end zone.

A field goal could win it now as time runs out, but Spartan fullback Jerry Planutis misses one from the 24. The Bruins fail to get out of their own territory, giving the Spartans a final crack. MSU advances to the Bruins' 31 in the waning seconds. Daugherty then tabs end Dave Kaiser to try a field goal from that point. With seven seconds left, Kaiser succeeds; and Michigan State triumphs, 17-14.

SONOMA BASKETBALL

Casa Grande Waltzes; St. Vincent Defeated

Casa Grande High School of Petaluma (4-3) parlayed tremendous defensive pressure with fine outside shooting last night to take an 89-54 non-league basketball game from visiting Tomales (1-7).

In other high school basketball games last night, St. Vincent of Petaluma (4-4) fell to non-league host Cloverdale, 58-44.

From the outset of the game, the Gauchos put on a full-court press which resulted in numerous Tomales turnovers. After the Braves went ahead 3-1, Casa Grande picked off two straight errant passes to go ahead permanently at 6-3.

Tomales played the Gauchos a little closer in the second quarter, but Casa Grande's 51 per cent field goal shooting carried it to a 41-25 halftime lead. Larry Thomas did most of the damger for the Gauchos in the second period, hitting four 20-foot jumpers.

The Braves made their only run of the game in the third quarter, cutting the margin down to 45-35 at 4:34, but two minutes later the Gauchos were back up by 18 points and that was the game.

3-Year Contract For Wisconsin's Coach Jardine

MADISON, Wis. (UPI) — Wisconsin football coach John Jardine has been given a new three-year contract, university officials announced yesterday.

The Wisconsin athletic board voted yesterday to add two more years onto the one year Jardine has left on his present contract.

Jardine has been head coach at Wisconsin for four years and his teams have compiled a 16-52-2 record. He has not had a winning season yet, but the teams have been exciting and have improved and Wisconsin has become one of the top halfdozen in attendance in the nation since Jardine took over.

Jardine, 38, came to Wisconsin from UCLA where he was an assistant to former Bruin Coach Tommy Prothro.

Surprising Bills, Eagles Each Place Three Players

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Buffalo Bills and the Philadelphia Eagles, two of the surprise teams of the National Football League this season, each placed three players on United Press International's third annual NFL All-Rookie team.

The Bills, 4-9-1 last season, turned around completely this year and were 8-5 with still a glimmer of a playoff hope entering Sunday's season finale. And much of the credit for the reversal must go to the three rookies, quarterback Joe Ferguson, guard Joe DeLamielleure and linebacker John Skorupan.

Ferguson, from Arkansas, started all of the Bills' games while DeLamielleure, from Michigan State, was part of the wall which helped O.J. Simpson move to within striking distance of Jim Brown's single season rushing record. Ferguson was joined in the rookie backfield by Lawrence McCutcheon of Los Angeles and Charles "Boobie" Clark of Cincinnati.

The Eagles, 2-11-1 last season, started as many as eight rookies at one time this season and were 5-7-1 entering their final game.

Tight end Charles Young of Southern Caliornia, offensive tackle Jerry Sisemore of Texas and center Guy Morriss of Texas Christian were the Eagles selected to the All-Rookie team.

Isaac Curtis, the speedster from San Diego State who gave Cincinnati a deep threat this season, and Darryl Stingley of Purdue, one of New England's three first-round picks last January, were selected at wide receiver while Robert Woods, the New York Jets' No. 2 pick from Tennessee State, joined Sisemore at tackle.

The guards were DeLamielleure, the Bills' No. 1 draft pick who almost was forced out of a pro career with a heart condition, and John Hannah of Alabama, another of New England's No. 1 drafts.

Defensively, Denver's Barney Chavous (South Carolina State) and St. Louis' Dave Butz (Purdue) were named at end and John Matuszak, Houston's No. 1 pick in the entire draft from Tampa, and Wally Chambers, taken by Chicago from Eastern Kentucky, were chosen at tackle.

Joining Skorupan at outside linebacker was Green Bay's Tom McLeod, from the University of Minnesota, while Houston's Gregg Bingham, a former defensive tackle and the third Purdue alumnus picked this year, was chosen at middle linebacker.

The cornerbacks were Eddie McMillan of Los Angeles, chosen out of Florida State, and Levi Johnson of Detroit, taken out of Texas A&I. The Jets' No. 1 pick, Burgess Owens of Miami (Fla.) was named at strong safety and Detroit's Dick Jauron from Yale was selected at free safety.

Oakland's Ray Guy, the first punter ever drafted on the first round when he was picked out of Southern Mississippi, was selected as the punter.

Cedeno's Attorney Demands Speed-Up

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (UPI) — Quirico Perez, defense attorney for Houston Astros' star Cesar Cedeno, said he will demand a speed-up in the legal processing of his client next week before the wheels of Dominican justice grind to a halt, Dec. 21 through Jan. 7, for the Christmas-New Years-Three Kings Day holidays.

Cedeno, 23, waited out the weekend in La Fe precinct jail where he has been since Tuesday, when he was charged with "voluntary manslaughter" in the motel slaying of his girl companion, Altagracia de la Cruz, 19.

Perez said he will ask Magistrate Socrates Diaz Curiel to step up the pace of the preliminary hearing, which has held two sessions. Perez seeks to persuade the magistrate to reduce the charge so that Cedeno may be freed on bail.

"Voluntary manslaughter," tantamount to the U.S. charge of second degree murder, is not a bailable offense, but "involuntary manslaughter" is.

Police called the pre-dawn shooting "accidental," and said that the girl was killed when a .38-caliber pistol she was examining went off as Cedeno tried to get it away from her.

Police reported earlier that Cedeno had legally registered the weapon, but the prosecutor has demanded documentary evidence. Cedeno could also face an illegal possession of firearms charge.

As it is, he will most likely miss spring training because of the slow movement of justice here, criminal lawyers opined.

WEEK IN BUSINESS

Market Ends On An Optimistic Note

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Arabs sneezed late this week, and Wall Street said, "Bless you!"

Investors, deep in gloom yesterday following three consecutive sharp declines, suddenly turned optimistic after spokesmen from the State Department said there is "a slightly better than 50-50 chance" the Arabs might lift their current oil embargo in connection with the Arab-Israeli peace talks slated to begin Tuesday in Geneva.

The Dow Jones industrial average soared 15.22 points yesterday to close the week at 815.65, but the gain was not enough to put the widely watched index on the up side. For the week, the Dow was down 22.40 points.

Most of the damage occurred between Tuesday and Thursday, when the average of 30 blue chips slid 50.71 points. During that period, the market apparently reacted to actions by both the Israelis and Arabs that cast doubt on the outcome of the impending peace talks. The Dow plunged 16.93 points Tuesday.

As Walter X. Burns, Lynch, Jones & Ryan analyst, observed, Wall Street has a tendency to hit upon a single blanket cause for an extended decline, such as the one that has occurred between October and the present. The result, he said, is hypersensitivity to any slight change in news—real or imagined.

This explains why, on only a hint the Arabs may change their oil policies, the market has been capable of wild swings for the last two months—both up and down.

Standard and Poor's 500 stock index dropped 3.22 to 93.29. The New York Stock Exchange index slid 1.73.

Declines outnumbered advances, 1,345 to 466, among the 1,992 issues traded.

Sales for the week totaled 95,013,364 shares, compared with 102,622,800 a week earlier, and with 87,039,040 the year before.

The last two months of protracted decline also have exaggerated some normal yearend market habits; in particular, the custom of many investors to sell weaker stocks for tax losses.

With the list crammed full of weak issues, Robert Amster of Rosenkrantz, Ehrenkrantz, Lyon and Ross said tax selling "may be the heaviest in years," and clearly is greasing the market's slide.

A special set of year-end problems has come up for glamor stocks. Many of them are multinational, and hence highly vulnerable to the economic difficulties experienced in Britain, Europe and Japan. The group has been hard by the energy crisis, and the possibility of a recession could spell less-than-expected earnings growth in 1974.

In short, this year's glamors have gotten a bad name among fund managers and institutional traders, leading as a result to many sellers and very few buyers as the funds ready their porfolios for end-of-year reports to shareholders.

With many of the "favored fifty" stocks falling into disfavor after long years of steady advances, analyst Ralph Acampora of Harris, Upham said the so-called "two-tiered" market is collapsing.

As he put it, "The only 'tiers' left will be in the eyes of money managers left holding those glamors at year-end."

General Motors led the actives, off ¾ to 47 ½ on 1,039,400 shares. First National City was second, falling 3 ½ to 40 ⅞, on 623,000 shares, and American Telephone and Telegraph Co. followed, off ¼ to 48 on 581,000 shares.

IDEA GROWS AND GROWS

Dominic Barardi, 11, had a nifty idea to decorate his classroom at San Geronimo School with a colorful chain of paper strips stapled into links. Other students liked the idea, too, and by yesterday students from the entire school were working on the project. At last report, it was 173 meters long — just 30 feet short of the length of two football fields.

Only Six Candidates File So Far

Only six candidates have filed so far for 28 city council seats in a dozen Marin and Southern Sonoma cities with elections on March 5.

Filing, which opened Dec. 6, closes at noon on Dec. 27. Nonincumbents will not get three extra days to file, as reported earlier in the Independent-Journal. This new law will not be effective for this coming year's city elections.

As of yesterday, candidates had filed in Mill Valley, Tiburon, Ross and Rohnert Park.

City halls issue nomination papers. Only San Rafael and Petaluma, which are charter cities, will not have elections next year.

Here are the seats up for election, by city:

Belvedere — Two seats open, terms of Mayor Allan Steinau and councilman Willard G. Pittman expiring; no candidate has filed; no salary; city council has waived $25 filing fee.

Corte Madera — Three seats open, terms of three councilmen to be elected in a special election Tuesday expiring; no candidate has filed. Post pays $150 per month.

Cotati — Two seats open, terms of councilmen Harry E. Fassio and Laura Washburn expiring; no candidate has filed; no salary.

Fairfax — Three seats open, terms of councilmen Frank J. Egger, Lee Nelder and Robert R. Souza expiring. No candidate has filed. Post pays $150 per month.

Larkspur — Two seats open, terms of Mayor Alfred J. Malvino and Councilman Neil R. Brixon expiring; no candidate has filed. No salary, but voters will decide if councilmen should get $50 a meeting in March 5 election.

Mill Valley — Two seats open, terms of Mayor Jean S. Barnard and councilman Edward J. Boessenecker expiring; three candidates announced but not filed — incumbents Boessenecker and Barnard; Gregory C. Dyer, 26, attorney. Post pays $150 per month.

Novato — Two seats open, terms of George C. Quesada and F. Wayne Sartain expiring; no candidate has filed. Post pays $150 a month, to be increased to $200 a month after March 5 election.

Rohnert Park — Two seats open, terms of Mayor Armando F. Flores and councilman Arthur N. Roberts expiring; one candidate, Flores, has filed. Post pays $150 a month.

Ross — Two seats open, terms of Mayor Frederick S. Allen and Councilman Roy Farrington Jones expiring. Allen has filed for reelection. There is no salary.

San Anselmo — Three seats open, terms of Mayor Lewis W. (Skip) Stewart, and councilmen Warren R. Perry and Woodrow V. Capurro expiring. No candidate has filed. Post pays $25 a meeting to a maximum of $50 per month.

Sausalito — Two seats open, terms of Earl F. Dunphy and Stephen A. Fraser expiring. No candidates have filed. Post pays $150 a month.

Tiburon — Three seats open, terms of Mayor Branwell D. Fanning, councilmen Albert H. Sennett and M. Carlisle Becker expiring; one candidate, announced but not filed — E. Bruce Ross, 37, planning commissioner and architect. There is no salary.

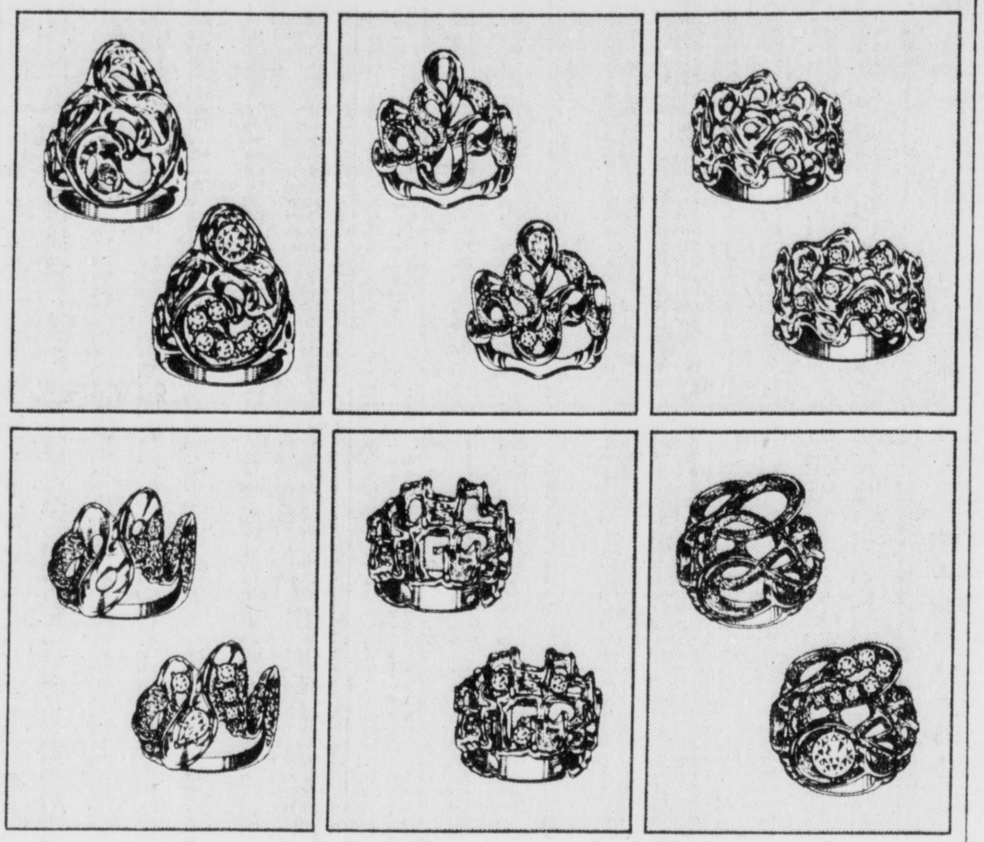
Start with a Mounting



Our mountings collection is exciting new free-form art, richly sculpted in 14 karat yellow gold. Worn just as they come to you, they are dramatic high fashion. And they are more. If you have diamonds in other mountings that no longer please you as they once did — these elegant designer pieces are made to receive them!

Bring in your treasured diamonds and let us show you how our mountings can present them in an entirely new light. Or let us show you our superb selection of unmounted diamonds.

Our present collection is broad and varied. The rings shown, all in 14 karat yellow gold, are $125 up. Setting of diamonds additional.

Do Something Beautiful.

THIS HOME NEEDS A FAMILY TO SPEND CHRISTMAS WITH

The owners of this well-maintained family home in Mariner Highlands are being transferred East & reluctantly have had to put this on the market. They tell us they'll miss the life style it gives them: nestled into the hill, a block (by path) to Granada School, the tree-lined street with underground utilities, formal living room & paneled family living area (where the fireplace is), 3 bedrooms, 2 baths, built-ins in the kid's room - a relaxed easy sort of life. It's been good for them. If this style seems like it might fit you, be sure to see it. $48,950 (and worth it).

View of Mt. Tam.

71 Toussin Ave.

It may be raining now but if Sunday is a bright and sunny day, you will be able to appreciate all of the above. You'll appreciate this house even if it's raining.

Transferred seller has priced this house to attract a buyer now rather than after Jan. 1 when the market can be expected to bring a substantially higher price. Buy now and save.

71 Toussin is an outstanding home well suited to its site. It can best be described as: Warm, Casual, and Elegant. It has a big comfortable living room (double size) with open beam ceiling, a handsome fireplace, built-in book shelves, cabinets, and bar. There are dark stained oak floors throughout. Each of the four bedrooms have an abundance of natural light and each open to a private garden area. One bedroom is nicely paneled and makes an ideal den.

The site is well landscaped and is planned for easy maintenance. Level lawn and patio provide a foreground for the view of Mt. Tam. The pool is particularly well situated for sun. $115,000.

Unless you mean business . . . We are now considering qualified applicants in your area to become a working part of our National "Hot Food" Distributor System. You are not applying for a job! You are applying for a very high profit business of your own. NO EXPERIENCE NECESSARY - NO SELLING INVOLVED. This business can be started part time - no need to quit your job. Can be expanded full time with company financing. We need people we can depend on. Our products are nationally famous "Hot Food" items. We have over 36 varieties of Hot Soups and Hot Entrees, such as Beef Stew, Chicken & Dumplings, Chili & Beans, and on and on. We have all of America's favorites. All these delicious products are sold from the latest in automatic vending equipment. Your route will be established and installed by us. Your age is not a factor, if you qualify. Perfect for a nice couple to operate as a family business.

One Of Skylab 3's Gyroscopes Falters Again; New Position

HOUSTON (UPI) — One of Skylab 3's two workable stabilizing gyroscopes faltered again today and flight controllers canceled a maneuver to point the big spaceship toward Comet Kohoutek.

Skylab 3 astronauts Gerald P. Carr, Edward G. Gibson and William R. Pogue have provided scientists with some of their best data on the comet but officials decided on caution.

The crew had been rolling the station regularly to get into position for Kohoutek pictures. The maneuver puts stress on the two remaining gyros and uses extra controlling fuel to keep the ship stable.

The gyro's little spinning wheels slowed slightly, somewhat like the gyro that failed two weeks ago. Because of the erratic behavior, flight controllers began to develop a substitute stabilization plan that could keep the crew in space up to 36 days from the time of a failure.

The controllers have said repeatedly that the misbehaving gyro is basically in good health, but the frequency of its erratic performance has increased the past week.

Flight Director Donald R. Puddy said the new scheme called for mainly using the stabilization control system on the crew's Apollo ferry ship. Puddy said, however, that the amount of scientific data collected using only ferry ship fuel would be limited because maneuvering the spacecraft into position would still be costly.

Original predictions about the mission in case of a second gyro failure guessed that 14 days would be as long as the crew could stay.

The chief Skylab comet scientists said that Kohoutek is spewing out a tail almost twice as long as expected and contains exotic molecules from far beyond the solar system as it continues its Christmastime journey toward the sun.

San Rafael, air quality yesterday:
Oxidants, clean air.
Nitrogen, clean air.
Carbon monoxide, light air pollution.
Smoke particles, light air pollution.

Other areas:
San Francisco, light air pollution.
San Jose, light air pollution.

Colorless oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come largely from industrial sources but the other three come primarily from motor vehicles.

Ex-Governor Back In Politics

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Former Pennsylvania Gov. George M. Leader has reentered the political arena, but not as a candidate. He will direct the statewide committee for the reelection of Gov. Milton J. Shapp and Lt. Gov. Ernest Kline.

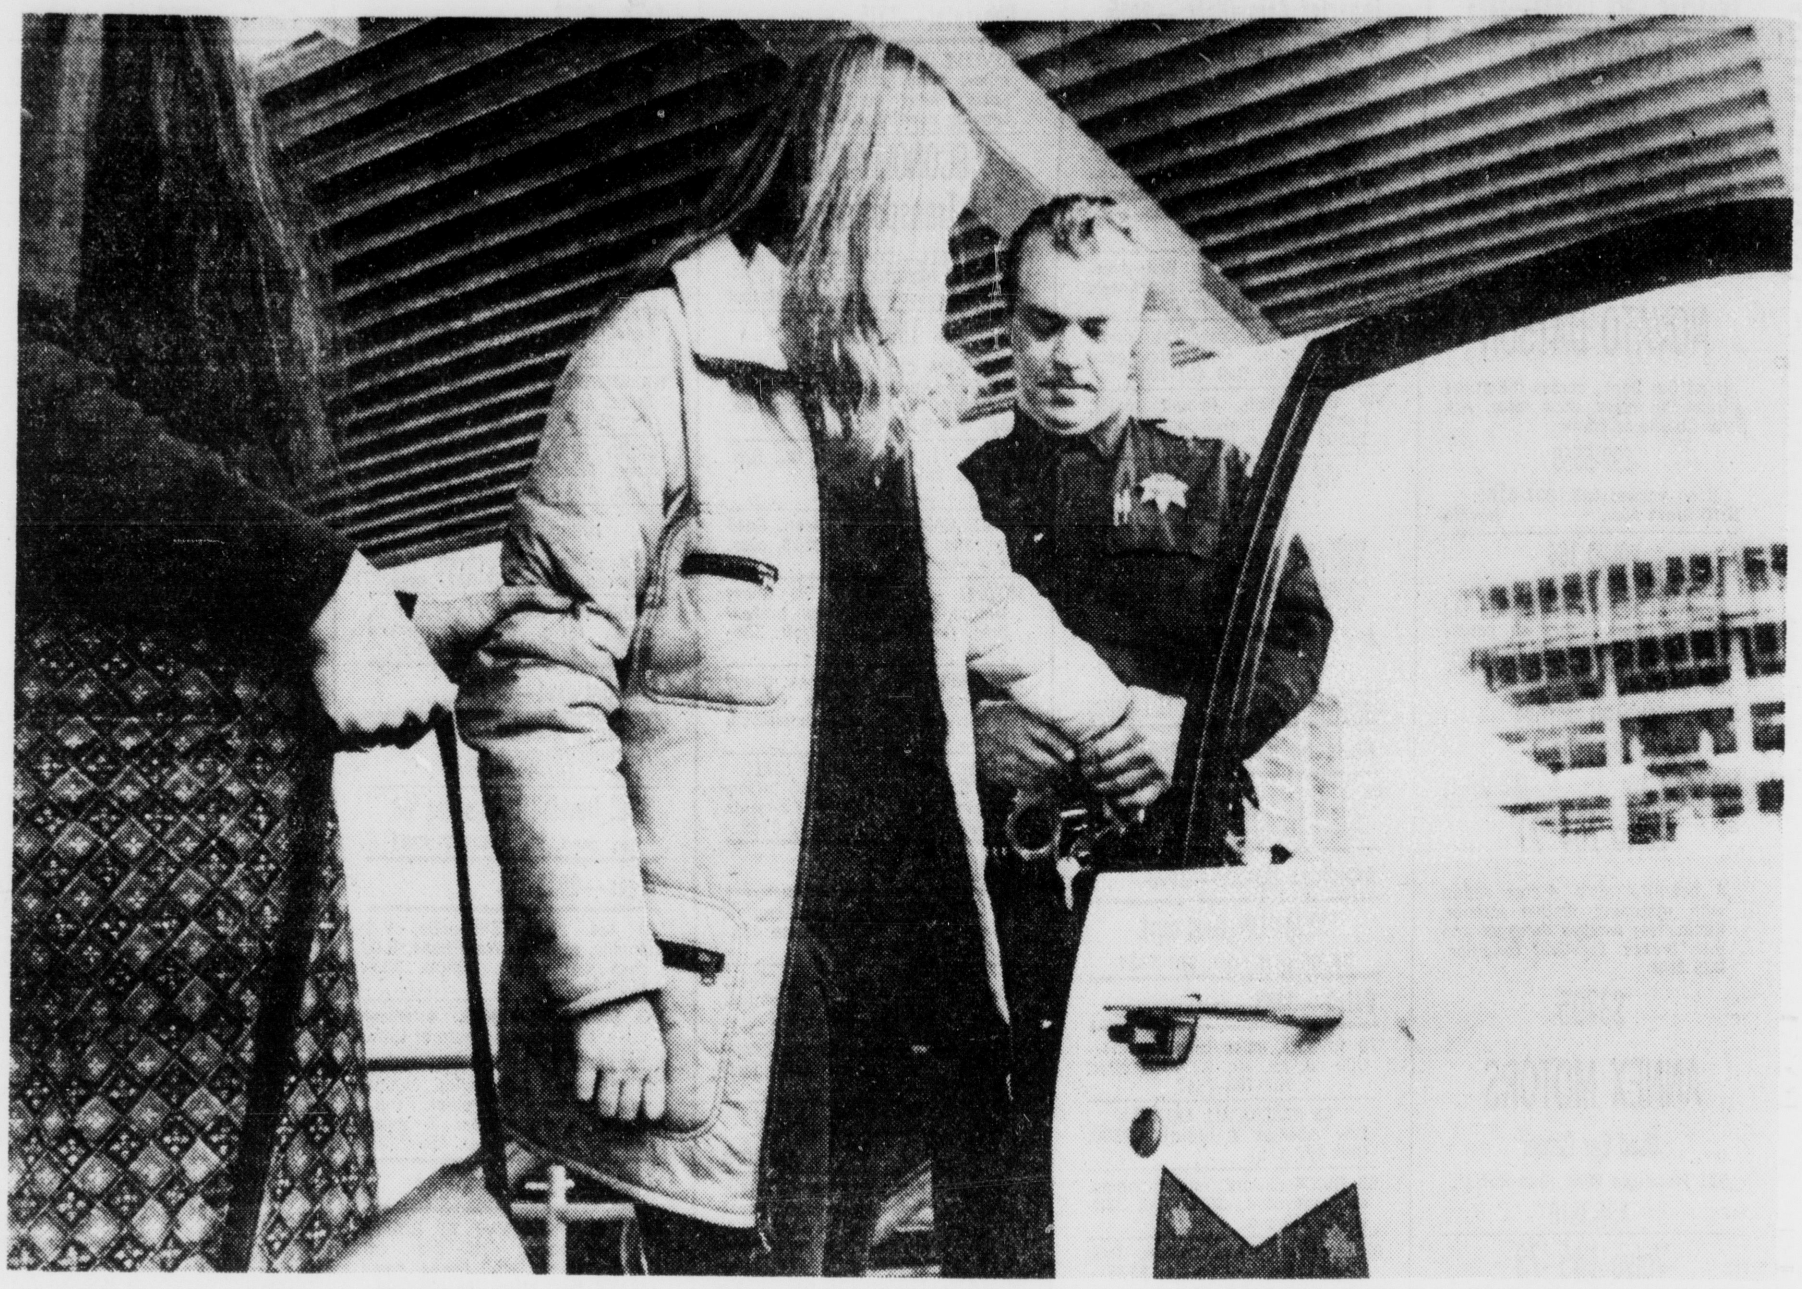
Shapp announced Thursday that Leader agreed to serve as chairman of the Pennsylvahians for Shapp-Kline.

Leader, a Democrat who served from 1955 to 1959, praised Shapp for the "beautiful team you put on the field in Harrisburg and the splendid job you've been doing."

Derby Is Off

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — The 1974 Powder Puff Derby has been called off at the request of the Federal Aviation Administration because of the fuel shortage, an official of the women's air race sayd yesterday.

It starts with the theft of perfume.



The shoplifter is handcuffed by San Rafael Patrolman Fred Castillo.

Shoplifting Is Not A Lark

Some young people are headed for a tragically unhappy Christmas because they think shoplifitng is only a lark.

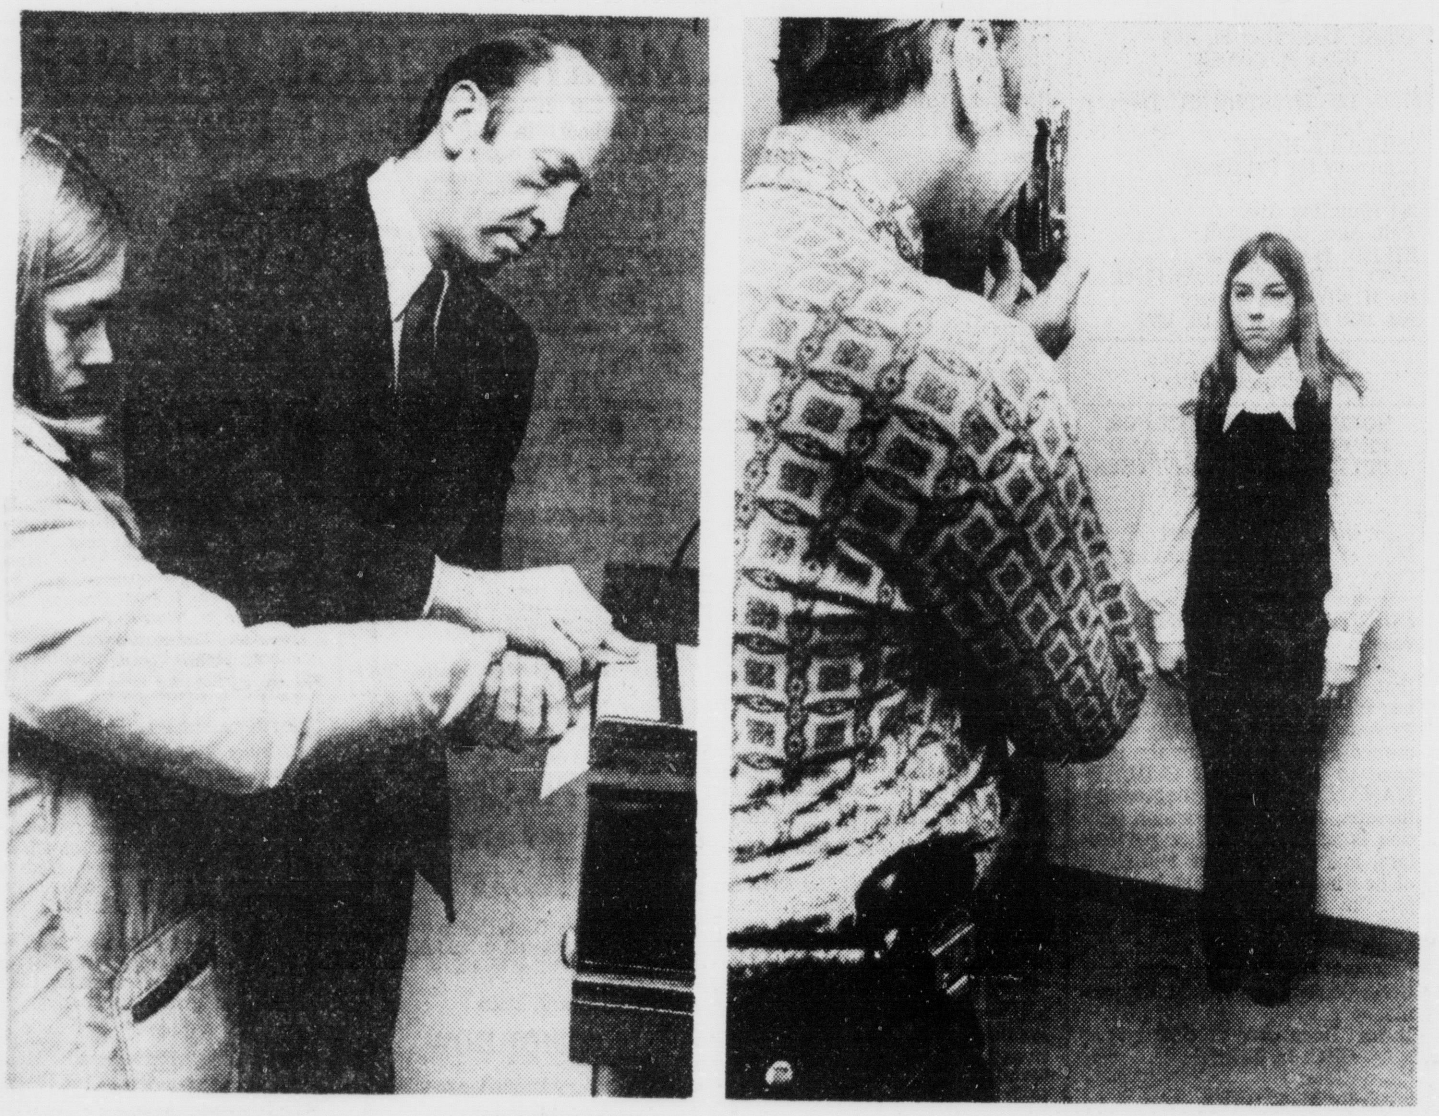
It is not. It is a crime, complete with arrest, jailing, shame, embarrassment to the person's family and tough penalties. It may result in a criminal record that can cloud an otherwise bright future.

While shoplifitng is not limited to young people, they are blamed for a large proportion of the shoplifting in our community. Local merchants, bracing for the annual Christmas spree of thievery, hope to convince the young that shoplifitng usually is the beginning of much bigger trouble.

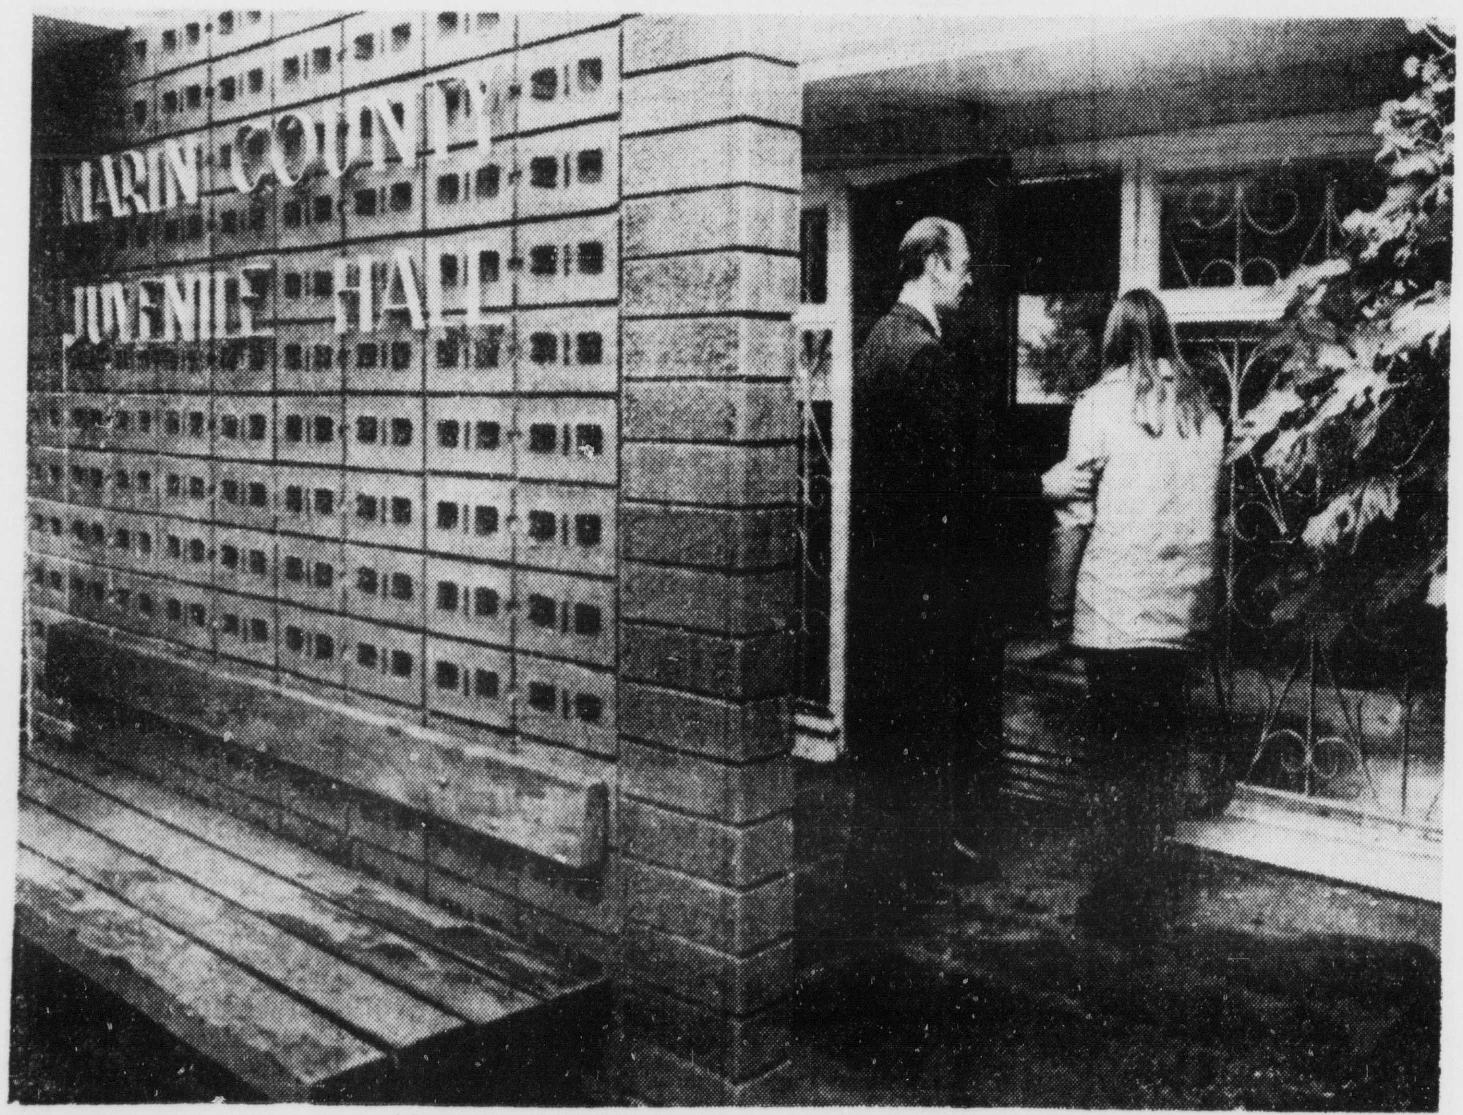
This seemingly innocuous crime has been termed by the Federal Bureau of Investigation as the fastest growing larceny in the nation, with more than $3.5 million ripped off annually from merchants across the country. And it is skyrocketing at an alarming 20 per cent a year.

Merchant associations figure one out of every 10 shoppers is a shoplifter. Of these, 95 per cent are amateurs. Merchants also point out the costs of shoplifting are passed along to the honest consumer.

Volunteer model Cathy Collingwood posed for this series of pictures to show the unhappy trip that young shoplifters take after they make their foolish mistake. Left to the imagination are the consequences which come after the shoplifter has landed in jail and gone to court.



Juvenile Officer Donald Rose fingerprints and photographs suspect.



Next stop: Juvenile Hall, to await parents.

Group Counselor Patricia Hartman locks the suspect in cell.

Abby Rates High As A Theologian

By LOUIS CASSELS
By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

At the risk of offending some renowned scholars with many academic degrees, I nominate Abigail Vanburen as the best moral theologian in America today.

"Dear Abby" would be the first to admit, I am sure, that she is not as learned as professional theologians who teach at universities and seminaries. She has written no weighty books, and has advanced no distinctive new system of ethics.

What she does write, five days a week, is a syndicated column that may well be the most widely read feature in U.S. newspapers.

There's nothing original about its format. It consists of letters from people who are troubled, perplexed, irate, pleased or depressed about real-life, human problems.

Dorothy Dix pioneered the format ages ago, and hundreds of subsequent advice-to-the-love lorn columnists have imitated it.

What makes the Dear Abby column distinctive are her replies to the letters. They are nearly always wise as well as witty —and they are morally edifying.

From some things she has said, I have the impression that Mrs. Vanburen in private life is an adherent of Judaism. But I'm sure she will not take it amiss if I say there is a striking similarity between the moral positions she takes and those taken by Jesus.

For example: Abby, like Jesus, is invariably compassionate toward people who have landed in trouble because they succumbed to what the Puritans called the sins of the flesh. Although neither Jesus nor Abby condones licentiousness, they do not regard sexual misconduct as the epitome of evil.

What really tees off Abby (and here her resemblance to Jesus is most striking) is hypocrisy. She cannot abide the smug complacency of selfrighteous people, and the way she eviscerates them in print is remarkably similar, in tone and content, to some of the cutting remarks Jesus used to make to the Pharisees of his day.

Other similarities could be cited.

Both Jesus and Abby attach great importance to simple acts of human kindness. Both display deep concern for the plight of the poor, the sick, the aged, the lonely and the unloved.

Both regard it as a primary moral obligation of every human being to do all he can to help such wounded ones.

Both are sensitive to the large hurts people can inflict on each other through seemingly small incidents.

Both rank pride and selfishness just behind hypocrisy in the catalog of soul-crippling sins.

Perhaps the most basic similarity between Dear Abby and the founder of Christianity is a strong determination to communicate with people in language they can understand.

Jesus achieved this by telling lively little anecdotes (which now are piously called "parables"), and by using some of the most vivid and flashing metaphors in the history of speech. The measure of his skill as a communicator is the fact that what he taught still makes sense, 2,000 years later, to people of all nationalities, languages and cultures.

I'm not sure whether Abby's pithy replies and retorts will still be read and quoted 2,000 years hence. As a fellow newspaper writer, I am keenly mindful, as I'm sure she is, of the extreme perishability of prose published in journals that are read today and used tomorrow to wrap garbage.

But Abby's incisive comments and penetrating moral insights will live for quite a while anyway, in the hearts and minds of readers for whom they have provided precious moments of illumination.

Church Project Helps Prisoners

POINT OF THE MOUNTAIN, Utah (UPI) — Once a month, 37 Mormon couples pack their hymn books, church literature and kids into their cars and head for Utah State Prison.

After the half-hour drive, family members file one-by-one into a long, narrow room with pale white walls where 37 convicts await them.

Each prisoner gets together with his "adopted family" and tells them about the past month's events, his personal problems and reflections, and his hopes for a successful future outside the gray, confining walls.

All conversations must wait, however, until after an opening humn is sung and prayer offered. Then the silence turns into comfortable laughter, words of encouragement, and warm but sound advice.

The prisoners play with the children during the visits one Monday a month and keep in touch with their "family" through phone calls and letters.

The family home evening program at the state prison, sponsored by the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints, has proven uniquely successful as a rehabilitation program during six years of operation.

"I didn't want to get involved at first," said Don Harris, 28, who is serving five years to life for armed robbery. "I thought it was kids' stuff. Then one man said, 'Come on and give it a try.' So I finally did, and I wound up having the district attorney being the head of my family. But I'm sure glad I joined.

"I don't know what I would do without them," Harris added. "They've helped me see where I've gone wrong. They've also helped me to get trust back into people.

"And when I get out, I'll have someone who cares, and I think I'll make it."

Harris was adopted by the Bennett Peterson family of Bountiful, Utah. Peterson is Davis County Attorney.

"The first time we were going to the prison, I was rather apprehensive, especially about bringing my children," Mrs. Peterson said. "But as soon as we met Don we fell in love with him and wanted to help him. Now, he's one of us. When my 4-year-old couldn't come out to prison one night, she cried."

Other prisoners and their "families" told similar stories. Where normally 55 to 60 per cent of Utah State Prison inmates later return to jail, only 14 — or 14.8 per cent — of 94 inmates who participated in the Mormon Church program and were relased from prison have since returned to their cells.

"There is no doubt in my mind the program has helped some men," Warden Samuel Smith said. "I know of one man who was back in prison for the third time when he got on the program. My prognosis for him was that he wouldn't last six months the next time he got out, but he's lasted three years."

The program's success has attracted the interest of 18 other prisons in 11 states, which have started or are planning to begin similar projects.

Jewish Groups Form Blanket Organization

Formation of a blanket organization of Jewish groups in Marin County was announced recently by Martin Austin, president pro tem, of San Anselmo, and first vice president of the Marin Jewish Community Center.

A series of organizational meetings this fall resulted in the establishment of a group with the working title of the Marin Council of Jewish Organizations.

There are 22 Jewish groups active in Marin including synagogues, community centers, youth groups, fraternal organizations and others, all of which were invited to participate.

Aims of this new group are threefold; 1) identification and study of common areas of interest; 2) coordination of independent activities of member groups to avoid date conflict and duplication; and 3) the planning and participation in joint educational, cultural and social activities.

Jewish organizations in Marin County may attend the monthly meetings at the Marin Jewish Community Center, 200 N. San Pedro Road, San Rafael, on the first Wednesday of the month.

Tennis Pro Ordained A Minister

Alice Trombley, Marin tennis personality, became an ordained minister Dec. 9 in a ceremony at the Church of Scientology in San Francisco.

Miss Trombley has been assistant tennis pro at the Belvedere Tennis Club and does private coaching in Marin. She has played in numerous national tournaments, on the European circuit, and in the Wimbledon qualifying matches.

Several years ago she decided the answer to improvement lay not just through more practice, but through handling the mental and spiritual blocks to success. In learning to handle them through Scientology, she has also learned the church's pastoral counseling procedures and now wants to help others.

Scientology is an applied religious philosophy with a technology which, when exactly applied, brings about a betterment of conditions. It has grown during the last quarter century into a world wide nondenominational religion.

Choir Will Sing At Yule Festival

The highlight of the Christmas season for the Marin Covenant Church will be its annual Christmas Festival, this year featuring the "Spirit Spreaders," a 60-voice high school choir from the San Mateo First Presbyterian Church. Their director is baritone soloist Lyle Richardson.

This event is public and will be held tomorrow in the auditorium of the Miller Creek School, 2255 Las Gallinas Avenue near Lucas Valley Road, from 7 to 9:30 p.m.

The evening will open with a 15-minute segment of Christmas music by Richardson. The "Spirit Spreaders" will follow with the Otis Skillings musical "A Celebration of Hope." Activities following will include Christmas desserts, carol singing around a Christmas tree, a children's activity, and a brief message on the meaning of Christmas by the pastor, Gary R. Copeland.

During the 9:30 a.m. morning worship service the Covenant Church choir will be singing "Jesus, Joy of Man's Desiring" with flute solo by Miss Jean Anderson. Pastor Copeland will be speaking on the theme: "It Does Matter How You Live." Classes for adults and children of all ages follow at 10:45 a.m.

First Baptist Church To Host Jewish Group

The Liberated Wailing Wall, a group of six Jews for Jesus, will give a presentation at the First Baptist Church of San Rafael tomorrow at 11 a.m. They will be sharing in song, testimony and dramatic presentation their attitudes and outlooks since accepting Jesus as their Messiah, according to Pastor Barrett M. Lampp.

Their program consists of unique which is contemporary Jewish ethnic in sound, though some of the melodies are ancient. Their lyrics are in both English and Hebrew, consisting of scriptural statements appropriate to the Jewish-Christian religious experience. Except for a couple of synagogue pieces, most of the music is original and written by members in the group, Pastor Lampp noted.

Steffi Geiser, who writes much of the Wall's material, and calls herself "a nice Jewish girl from the Bronx", says that "as a Jew, Jesus has made me more appreciative of who I am, and by sharing my identity and cultural and religious background with Gentile Christians, they will not only get a greater appreciation of my people, the Jews, but they will gain a deeper insight into their own heritage as Christians."

Special Events For Christmas At Aldersgate

Aldersgate United Methodist Church at 220 Nova Albion Way will be celebrating the Christmas season this year with a number of events and activities.

Tomorrow at 7 p.m. there will be a special Christmas program by the children of the Church School, in which the various Church School classes will make a presentation of "The Star of Bethlehem."

The film "The Littlest Angel" will be shown and there will be a Birthday party for Jesus.

On Thursday, the United Methodist Women from Aldersgate will host a party and go carolling at the Northgate Convalescent Hospital and at 6 p.m. that evening the church youth groups and minister will hold a Christmas Service at Parkway Convalescent Hospital.

Annual Concert Scheduled At Redwoods Church

The annual Christmas concert tomorrow at Redwoods Presbyterian Church, Larkspur, will feature the Chancel Choir in the Buxtehude cantata "The Little Newborn Jesus Child" with harpsichord and strings accompaniment.

Ellen Kerrigan, soprano, will sing four old Flemish carols and guest basso will sing and play on the bass lute a group of German folk Christmas carols.

The 4 p.m. program will conclude with a short cantata, "The Christmas Story."

Combined Choirs To Give Program

The combined choirs of Valley Baptist Church, 3 North San Pedro Road, San Rafael, will present a Christmas program at 6 p.m. tomorrow.

The blending of voice, instruments and narration will highlight the candlelight service.

David Laube, arranger of the program, will direct the 50-voice choir.

Singers Will Appear At Assembly Of God Church

Two women who sing with the San Francisco Civic Chorale and the Lamplighters will present special music tomorrow at 11 a.m. at the Southern Marin Assembly of God, East Blithedale and Sycamore Avenues, Mill Valley.

They are Carole Jeanne Browne and Jean Rayner.

Carol Jean grew up in Washington, is a graduate of Wilamette University, has taught German and English in school, and presently is working with Pan American Airlines. She has traveled to Australia, Europe, parts of Asia and around the United States.

Jean grew up in Vacaville and graduated from Napa Junior College after which she joined Heald College in San Francisco. She has won an award for oboe solo.

Film About Bible Prophecy Slated

"A Thief in the Night," a film about Bible prophecy, will be shown at 6 p.m. tomorrow at the North Marin Assembly of God, 1370 South Novato Boulevard.

The story which "shows what can happen when Jesus Christ returns," centers around Peggy, an average girl caught up in living for the present, with little concern about the future.

Dialogue Opens By Fellowships

EISENACH, Germany (LC) — A dialogue problem exists between the global Lutheran fellowship and the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, according to Dr. Andre Appel, general secretary of the Lutheran World Federation.

The dominant conservative forces of the Missouri Synod chose to "respectfully decline" applying for membership to the World Federation at a New Orleans convention, he said, but full membership "is not necessary in order to establish a real dialogue."

Film To Highlight Children's Program

A children's Christmas program will be held at 7 p.m. tomorrow at the San Rafael Improvement Club, 5th and H streets, by the Marin Evangelical Free Church.

Part of the program will be the showing of "The Other Wise Man," the story of a fourth wise man who missed his appointment with the three others because he stopped to help a needy person, pursued Jesus all his life without meeting him and finally sees the Savior.

Christmas Cantata Slated Tomorrow

The choir of the San Rafael Christian Church, 50 Ranchitos Road, will present the Christmas cantata, "Carol of Christmas", by John W. Peterson, at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow.

The choir is directed by Mrs. Mary Jones and accompanied by Mrs. Katy Hatfield. Soloists are Lois Jones, Paul Berry, Dianne Dambley, Barry Hatfield, Bill Berry, Lee Oberkamper and Connie Berry.

"GIVE US THIS DAY OUR DAILY BREAD!"
Matthew 6:11

Prayer to God brings you daily supply – and far more.

A regenerated nature, a heart full of love, the ability to bless others – these are God's gifts, too.

At our testimony meeting this Wednesday, hear others tell how they've experienced God's love, and seen His practical answer to every kind of need.

It's a one-hour meeting, including hymns and readings from the Bible and from Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy. It could be your bread for today.

We hope you'll come soon.

Housing Group Approves Loan For An Archeological Dig

The Ecumenical Housing Association has agreed to lend $1,000 to another local housing group to help finance an archeological dig on the site of an apartment project for low and moderate income families.

Martin Mackey, association executive director, said the money will go to the Interfaith Housing Foundation for the site on its 70-unit Shelter Hills development near Mill Valley.

The project is being held up, he said, because it is located on a major archeological area containing Indian artifacts. Excavation would cost $15,000.

Mackey said the Miwok Archeological Preserve of Marin has offered to find volunteer diggers and finance two-thirds of the cost. The housing foundation now needs another $4,000 for its share of the project, he said.

The association board approved the loan at its Wednesday meeting and said it may possibly endorse a larger loan at some future time.

The board also learned that renovations of the Priory, a housing project for the elderly in Kentfield, have been completed and that 15 persons will be moving in next week.

The housing association group next meets Jan. 23.

B52 Bombers Could Be Endangering Big Cranes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The world's last flock of whooping cranes may be endangered by the Defense Department's B52 and combat helicopter sorties near their wildlife refuge in Texas, the Interior Department says.

Interior Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton has written Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger to consider giving up the target ranges — and the reportedly plush hunting and fishing club for generals and other officers — in the interest of the whoopers.

Schlesinger, who is an ardent bird-watcher in his spare time, hasn't replied yet.

But lower echelon officials insist the military needs the island and deny that it is "first and foremost an officer's country club," as an interior report recently concluded.

The 5-foot-tall, crimson-winged whooping cranes have flown 2,600 miles each fall since 1937 from their Canadian breeding grounds to the Arkansas National Wildlife Refuge on the Texas Gulf coast.

Several miles away across the marsh is Matagorda Island, a 50,000-acre, five-miles long sliver of island totally used by the military.

When the Huey Cobra helicopters and the B52s had better places to practice during the last decade, during the height of the Vietnam war, the sorties over Matagorda Island decreased markedly.

The whoopers began migrating across to Matagorda from the Arkansas wildlife refuse.

The Corpus Christi Caller first spotlighted the consequences last week of the head-on crash between the whoopers, who are increasingly inclined to meander around Matagorda Island, and the post-war buildup of B52 and helicopter sorites again on the bombing strips.

The newspaper quoted Aransas Refuge Manager E. F. Johnson as saying that only 43 of the estimated 51 whoopers showed up in Texas this fall.

He's not ruling out the possibility they are scared away by the B52s or the 450 monthly sorties by the ammunition-firing gunboat helicopters. The B52s release bombs which do not explode.

Group Seeks Action To Make Pet Owners More Responsible

By DANA ADAMS SCHMIDT
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

WASHINGTON — Nearly 40 per cent of all dogs and cats in the United States either roam free, unowned or are committed to shelter where many are killed, according to the Humane Society of the U.S.

Society spokesmen call for urgent action to try to make pet owners more responsible — and to ensure that dogs and cats committed to shelters have a greater chance of survival.

The greatest single need, they say, is to reduce the spiraling birth rate among dogs and cats.

A new survey by the society shows that there are 100 million dogs and cats in the nation including 35 million pet dogs and 27 million pet cats; 21 million more are unowned, and another 17 million are turned in each year to animal shelters. Of those turned in, 80 percent are "euthanized" (killed) usually by being given an injection or by being placed in a "high altitude" chamber whose air is pumped out.

Karl Nordling, the society's director of communications, would:

Encourage attitudes of responsibility by requiring people to buy municipal licenses for cats as well as dogs.

Generalize the practice of some animal shelters that requires applicants to wait 24 hours before they are allowed actually to adopt an animal.

A few shelters expand this precaution by requiring prospective pet owners to show that they have a yard where the animal can exercise and that there will be someone home during the day to look after it.

On the side of birth control, there are 300 spay clinics, most established in the past three years. Veterinarians will spay a female or neuter a male animal for fees that vary from $7 to $150. But $30 for spaying and $15 for neutering a dog or cat is an average figure; the shelters will do it for half that amount or for nothing if necessary.

Meanwhile, eight drug companies and five universities are working to develop a birth-control pill for dogs and cats. One company is believed to be about a year and a half from developing something equivalent to "the pill" to be included in pet foods or separately administered.

Of about 900 animal welfare societies identified by the society in the United States, including 450 shelter societies, fully half of the welfare societies and 350 of the shelter societies answered a Humane Society questionnaire.

Their replies were combined with information from 1,200 municipal animal-control programs of many kinds to reach the Society's estimate of the number of dogs and cats and the proportion destroyed annually.

"Fifty-seven per cent of American households now have a dog or a cat, and some have two," said Guy R. Hodge, legislative director of the Society.

"But the shocking thing when you go to the shelters," said Hodge, "is the number of beautiful, pure-bred dogs doomed there to be destroyed because there are just not enough possible homes for them."

The blame, as Nordling sees it, lies fundamentally with the American life-style: "We have too much the habit of buying freely and throwing away. Anyone can walk into a pet shop and buy a dog or cat; no one asks whether he is a fit keeper of animals.

HOW TO PLAY WINNING BRIDGE

An Expert's Route To Goal Sometimes Is Very Interesting

Experts often reach the same goal as average players, but they may take different paths to get there. The scenery along the way may be very interesting.

A LOW SPADE

West opened the four of spades, and East made the first expert play of the hand by putting up the queen.

If East takes the ace of spades and next leads the queen of spades, South refuses the trick. South wins the third spade and goes after the diamonds, losing a finesses to East. East is out of spades, and South will thus win 10 tricks: one spade, one heart, four diamonds and four clubs.

MUST TAKE A KING

When East plays the queen of spades at the first trick, South must take the king of spades and try to make nine tricks on the run. After all, South cannot tell which opponent has the ace of spades.

If South tries a diamond finesse, he will lose to East's queen. East will then take the ace of spades and lead another spade, defeating the contract.

HEART FINESSE

If South tries the heart finesses, all will be well. How does he know which finesse to try?

Since South doesn't know, his best chance is to combine some sort of play for both red suits instead of depending on only one.

RUNS CLUBS

After winning the first spade trick, South runs all four clubs in the hope of creating a discarding problem for the opponents. Declarer next cashes the ace and king of diamonds in the hope of dropping the queen. When nothing marvelous happens, South finally falls back on the heart finesse. This works, and South makes his contract.

Today is Saturday, Dec. 15, the 349th day of 1973 with 16 to follow.

The moon is approaching its last quarter. The morning stars are Mercury and Saturn. The evening stars are Venus, Mars and Jupiter.

Alexandro Eiffel, French engineer who built the Paris tower which bears his name, was born Dec. 15, 1832.

On this day in history:

In 1791, the U.S. Bill of Rights, comprised of the first 10 amendments to the Constitution, went into effect following ratification by the state of Virginia.

In 1944, U.S. forced led by Gen. Douglas MacArthur landed at Mindoro in the Philippine Islands.

In 1948, a federal grand jury in New York indicted former State Department official Alger Hiss with perjury in connection with his denial that he gave secret government documents to Whittaker Chambers allegedly for delivery to a foreign power.

In 1961, a special Jewish tribunal sentenced Adolf Eichmann to death for his role in causing the deaths of millions of Jews during World War II.

A thought for the day: American poet John Greenleaf Whittier said, "For all sad words of tongue or pen, the saddest are these: 'It might have been!"

BACKSTAGE AT THE BALLET

Members of the cast of the Marin Civic Ballet's "Nutcracker" dress, read comic books and tell stories as they prepare for last night's performance. The holiday production will be presented again tomorrow at 2 and 7:30 p.m., in the Marin Veterans Memorial Building in San Rafael. The "Nutcracker" tells of Clara and the magical nutcracker and their adventures in the lands of the Snow Queen and the Sugar Plum Fairy.

House Gives President Emergency Energy Powers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House, keeping its lights on well past midnight, passed a bill early today giving President Nixon emergency powers to deal with the energy crisis.

But the heavily-amended measure, which includes congressional veto power over gasoline rationing, differs so widely from the Senate version passed Nov. 20 that long conference committee work will be needed before final enactment.

Described by House Democratic leader Rep. Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. as a "must" bill, the legislation passed 265-112 after a 15-hour session.

While the House debated yesterday, truck drivers on strike in protest of speed and fuel limits met with federal officials.

Truck drivers' spokesman J.W. "River Rat" Edwards scheduled a news conference today to dispute Transportation Secretary Claude S. Brinegar's statement that he expected the strike to end this weekend.

"Secretary Brinegar does not speak for the truckers. At this time there has been nothing settled," said Edwards.

The House bill would force Nixon to seek prior approval from Congress before imposing any conservation or allocation measures and would give either house veto power over gasoline or home heating oil rationing.

It also banned gasoline for school buses used to transport pupils past their local schools for desegregation purposes and oil shipments to Southeast Asia for military purposes. But an amendment barring oil shipments to Israel for miltary use was soundly defeated.i

The House narrowly defeated an amendment that would have delayed auto exhaust control measures until the energy shortage eased.

Both Houses Friday approved a bill imposing daylight saving time through October, 1975. If President Nixon signs it by Sunday, clocks would be set one hour ahead Jan. 6. If he delays, the time change would take effect Jan. 13.

The Senate Friday passed a bill forcing states either to set their speed limits at a maximum of 55 miles per hour or face loss of federal highway funds.

Nixon today postponed his annual physical checkup for still more meetings with energy administrator William E. Simon and his deputy, John Sawhill.

In a speech Friday, as he lit the star atop a dim national Christmas tree, Nixon said this will not be a "dreary" holiday season "because the spirit of Christmas is not measured by the number of lights on a tree. The spirit of Christmas is measured by the love each of us has in the heart. . ."

In other developments:

Herbert Stein, head of the Council of Economic Advisers, said Friday that the energy and labor problems forcing Great Britain to go to a three-day work week "can't happen here."

The American Automobile Association said a survey it took shows that most of the nation's gasoline stations will not take long Christmas-New Year holiday weekends.

The Cost of Living Council issued guidelines Friday for pricing of petroleum products at the refinery level, designed to encourage production of more home heating oil and less gasoline.

Plane service in Venezuela is maintained through 63 airports, including four international airports.

Concert By Bands Set Wednesday

The San Rafael High School concert and symphonic bands will present a concert at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in the school auditorium. Proceeds will go toward the music department's trip to Expo '74 in Spokane, Wash.

The concert band will play a variety of music ranging from Mozart's "Allegro and Dance," to Holcombs' "Overture for Today." Student conductor Linda Merkle will direct the band in one selection.

The symphonic band will play Jenkins' "American Overture" and Wagner's "Elsa's Procession to the Cathedral."

This is the first concert under the direction of Charlene Wilkerson.

Arabs Get Answer On Cooperation

COPENHAGEN (UPI) — The nine-nation European summit conference told the Arabs today Europe is willing to cooperate economically, but warned them against wielding their oil weapon too hard.

The formal reply to Arab demands for more European cooperation and greater pressure for Israel's withdrawal from occupied lands was delivered to four Arab envoys today.

Danish Foreign Minister K.B. Andersen, speaking for the summit, said Europe wanted "close cooperation" with the Arabs, "but this cannot be carried out if our attention is constantly disturbed by measures directed against others"— a reference to Europe's suffering because of Arab oil cutbacks.

Presidents, premiers and foreign ministers of the nine-nation European Common Market, meanwhile, raced to finish their talks on greater unity.

The summit meeting, sidetracked by the gate-crashing Arabs, wanted to set up machinery for crisis management to give Europe a firmer voice in future international emergencies. It also groped for a joint policy on the emergency crisis but found itself divided on immediate concrete commitments, including the recent proposal from U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger for an American - European-Japanese energy crash program.

Some of the Europeans suspected France and Britain of seeking secret deals with the Arabs to secure their oil supplies.

The positive summit reply to the Arabs temporarily ended the drama caused by the surprise intervention of the four Arab ministers from Tunisia, Algeria, Sudan and the United Arab Emirates with demands from oil-thirsty Europe for wide-ranging economic and technological cooperation and more action against Israel.

The Arabs made these demands at a dawn meeting with the foreign ministers of the Common Market nations and asked for a quick response.

The summit conference instructed Andersen as chairman of the meeting to hand the Arabs the reply offering Europe's readiness to cooperate and reaffirming its recent strong resolution of Nov. 6 which called for Israeli withdrawal from occupied Arab territory.

Rights Panel Won't Stand On Pot Plan

The Marin County Human Rights Commissioners have refused to take a stand on a proposed state ballot measure to decriminalize marijuana possession.

Members of the White Panthers asked the commission on Thursday to endorse the measure. They also asked that each commissioner donate $5 a month for the petition signature campaign, according to Douglas H. Bosco, human rights director.

A motion to endorse the petition died for lack of a second, Bosco said.

The commissioners instructed Bosco to arrange a meeting with members of the county personnel commission to discuss the county's progress in its program for equal opportunity hiring.

The commission also voted to ask the county's superior court judges to see that minority groups are represented adequately on future grand juries, citing the lengthy court hearings on the San Quentin Six challenge against past grand jury makeup.

The commission's next meeting is Jan. 10.

Energy Czar Called A Holiday 'Grinch'

CHICAGO (UPI) — Former Democratic Congressman Roman Pucinski, now a Chicago alderman, called President Nixon's energy czar William Simon a "grinch" Thursday and urged all residents of Chicago to follow his lead in stringing their outside Christmas lighting.

"I'm spending this weekend stringing lights all around the front of my house. Then I'll turn them on and dare the government to arrest me," Pucinski said. "I say, bah humbug to Washington."

Nuclear Power Need Becomes Pressing

THAT OUR society and our standard of living depend on abundant energy is being realized now as never before.

What's involved has been described dramatically by a one-time Marin resident, Robert R. Gros, PG & E vice president.

To fuel a 1,000 megawatt electric generating plant for a year requires 60 billion cubic feet of gas.

That is the way PG & E has fueled its steam-electric generating plants 90 to 95 per cent of the time heretofore.

Now gas is in short supply. The Canadian government has denied all pending export permits, including PG & E's which seemingly was in the bag for 200 million cubic feet per day — 73 billion cubic feet per year.

Next, the Federal Power Commission ordered reductions in deliveries of gas from Texas to PG & E. The ordered cut will amount to 122½ billion cubic feet in 1974 and 70 billion cubic feet in 1975.

Further, the Federal Power Commission has placed steam-generating plants in the lowest priority for natural gas in time of shortage.

IF YOU cannot use gas, you can use oil — 10 million gallons of it to fuel the 1,000-megawatt plant for a year. (If you can get the oil.)

In 1970, PG & E spent less than $1 million for all the fuel oil it needed that year. If it could buy all the fuel oil it will need in 1974 at 1973 prices, the bill would be $318 million, plus another $100 million for storage and plant conversion.

Coal isn't available to PG & E. If it were, 3½ million tons would be needed.

Or, if technology permitted, seven million tons of garbage would provide the necessary energy for a 1,000-megawatt plant for a year.

If one preferred to go back to wood burning, 50,000 acres of redwood trees would do the job.

The sun has been suggested a source of energy. With present technology, 25,000 acres of solar cells would be needed for the same plant.

Only 30 tons of uranium will fuel a comparable nuclear plant for a year.

ENVIRONMENTALISTS should awaken to the facts of life. Opposition to the swift development of nuclear-fueled electric generating plants is causing the consumption of natural resources — especially natural gas and oil — at alarming (and unnecessary) rates. Not to mention shortages.

Some far-out environmentalists may prefer to shiver in inadequately heated homes and offices in winter. They may prefer to swelter in inadequately cooled homes and offices in summer.

But they should not inflict their Spartan preferences on the rest of us who equate quality of life with at least a measure of personal comfort and convenience.

We may save mountains and forests for human enjoyment, but we need fuel to travel there if we are to experience the enjoyment.

PG & E WILL burn nearly 30 million gallons of fuel oil in 1974 because of delays in bringing nuclear plants into operation — delays due in large measure to the efforts of environmentalists.

PG & E already is spending about $100 million per year to meet current costs of "environmentalism."

Most of us do not begrudge the higher rates which we must pay for gas and electricity to protect our environment. But we don't want to pay ever higher rates for inadequate supplies of gas and electricity.

Let us get on with the completion of nuclear plants. Let our state and federal regulatory agencies expedite rather than obstruct their early completion.

—Jack Craemer

We Even Eat Energy

Probably most Marinites never gave much thought to how much we all depend upon energy in our everyday lives. As much as anything, our use of energy is responsible for our relative affluence as a nation. While poorer lands use muscles and sweat and animals, we take for granted the gasoline engine and electrical appliances. In simpler societies, man can grow food using soil, seed, sun, water and their own labor, as many Marin gardeners do. But most of our food represents much energy in the form of tractor and truck fuel, refrigeration and lighting, baking, canning, and a variety of other energy-consuming processes.

Someone figured it out: To put a glass of milk on the table takes the energy equivalent of half a glass of diesel oil. A loaf of bread requires the equivalent of two pounds of coal, a pound of hamburger takes three.

Crises — Overdone

It used to be Americans had problems. Now we have crises. A crisis is more frightening than a problem. Problems demand solving. Crises hint at helplessness and panic. We think the word "crisis" is greatly overused.

Let us go back to having problems. Then put our energies to solving them. Too many crises become a bore.

Bouquets Only This Time

BOUQUETS to San Rafael Police Detective Barxdal W. Stinson and to 17-year-old Eric Newlin of Larkspur for their well-merited selection as "Peace Officer of the Year" and "Citizen of the Year" by the Marin County Peace Officers Association.

BOUQUETS to Marinites who put the United Crusade $47,000 over its goal here while it fell below the amounts sought in other Bay Area counties.

BOUQUET to the Coast Guard for its rescue of a barge home about to sink in Richardson Bay on Monday.

The Christmas spirit has stolen upon us, so we refrain from handing out any BRICKBATS today.

"Yes, Virginia, there is an energy crisis. Just as sure as there is off-shore drilling, the Alaska pipeline, oil shale in Colorado, and unlimited profits for oil companies. Yes . . ."

'A Rick Of Wood'? Arkansas Has Them

Mr. Kenneth Brown, director of weights and measures, states "a rick has no meaning in the sale of wood." Apparently, this depends upon which part of the country one was reared. As a former Arkansan, wood was always purchased or sold as a rick. Sorry, I can't give the exact measurements. It's been awhile.

Doyle Drive Barrier Variation Proposed

All of the articles discussing changing the Golden Gate Bridge approach in San Francisco (Doyle Drive) to eight lanes with a median permanent barrier to prevent accidents have centered on widening the existing structure at a tremendous expense. And naturally enough San Francisco has resisted the idea quite vigorously, seeing in it the beginning of a program by the Department of Highways to continue this widening concept on north through Marin with its attendent influx of cars into the city, which already is glutted by them.

Here is presented a possible solution that would not necessitate widening the approach, thereby making it palatable to the supervisors of San Francisco as well as reducing the construction costs by many millions:

Why not construct permanent barriers between each existing two lanes, similar to those recently installed from Doyle Drive through the Presidio tunnel to Funston Avenue? Then at each end movable stakes could be used to divert traffic into four lanes southbound in the morning and four lanes northbound in the evenings. During off-peak hours the center lanes would not be used as at present.

During weekends and holidays they could be utilized as required to handle heavy traffic in either direction. For many years the movable stakes have worked fine to divert traffic without incident. The barriers could be constructed in much less time than widening would take . . .

I think the San Francisco supervisors will welcome any solution to the Doyle Drive accident problem that would assure them their city will not be flooded with more traffic by any widening of 101. And if the Department of Highways is really interested in traffic safety instead of providing a boon to the highway builders, how about kicking this idea around the table?

Is There Double Standard For 'Responsiveness'?

A letter to the editor yesterday (Dec. 11) was noted with some amusement.

The Gordons' hysteria regarding certain candidates' stand on the Hahn shopping center issue brings to mind the verbiage from the recall committee regarding councilmen not being responsive to wishes of the citizens of Corte Madera. A survey conducted by the Town Meeting Association (of which the recall committee was an offshoot) revealed that, of citizens voicing an opinion, the majority were in favor of the Hahn shopping center.

It would now seem that Messrs. Kostelik and Harvey, who favor the shopping center, are placed in a position of being responsive to the wishes of the citizens. Or is there a double standard, which can be glibly explained?

Generous Move By Mr. Nixon: Giving White House To People

WASHINGTON — President Richard Nixon is preparing to disclose that he and his wife will leave their home at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue in Washington, D.C., to the American people.

The house, known as "the White House," is one of the largest in Washington and is considered one of the choice properties in the city.

A spokesman for the First Family said, "Although the president and Mrs. Nixon have not lived in it much, the White House has great sentimental value for them. By leaving it to the American people, the president hopes to take care of all the criticism leveled at him for the taxpayers' money he spent on his homes in Key Biscayne and San Clemente.

"The president's lawyers are now drawing up the papers which will provide that the Nixons can live there for three more years before turning it over to the government. There is some question in Congress as to whether this is legally possible."

THE PRESIDENT made his decision to donate the White House to the American people long before the energy crisis, according to the spokesman, and he rejected media reports that the reason the Nixons are giving the White House to the nation is that it is too hard to heat.

The spokesman said also that President Nixon intends to include in the donation his entire tape collection, which is considered one of the best in the entire land. These tapes, made over a five-year period, have been the envy of collectors everywhere and, while everyone from Archibald Cox to Judge Sirica has tried to acquire them, the Nixons feel they should stay in the White House where they belong.

The spokesman said that by donating their home at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue the Nixons were putting to rest unfounded rumors that Bebe Rebozo and Howard Hughes planned to develop the property for a 40-story hotel and a possible gambling casino.

"It's true," he said, "that plans were drawn up for such a project but the president rejected them when Mr. Hughes insisted that the capitol be included in the deal."

ORIGINALLY, the Nixons had planned to leave the White House to the Spiro Agnews but something happened, no one knows exactly what, and the Agnews were cut out of the will.

It was rumored that the Gerry Fords might sublease the White House in 1974, but the spokesman denied this.

"The president has no plans to rent the house to anyone. For one thing, he has been informed by his lawyers that, should he move out, he would have to pay state income taxes in California.

"Several people have offered to buy the White House, including Nelson Rockefeller, Ronald Reagan, John Connally and Teddy Kennedy, but the Nixons have turned down their offers. The price they offered was not even in the ballpark considering all the improvements that have been made."

After the announcement was made, reporters checked with the Department of Interior to ask them what they intended to do with the property. An official said: "We're not certain. For the last five years it's been run like Disneyland, and we'd like to keep the same flavor if we can. The White House should be a fun place for the American people where they can amuse themselves and forget about the cares of the world."

More Shoals Ahead For Nixon; Big Business Ready For Ford?

WASHINGTON — A beleaguered administration has reached a plateau of sorts with a new vice president and the painful exercise of putting the president's personal finances out on the table. It is a pause that coincides with the coming Christmas holiday, and Mr. Nixon and the little circle of loyalists around him can breathe more easily.

But ahead are more peaks, sno-capped and formidable, which must be overcome in toughing it out through 1974 and beyond. Moreover, a new element has been added in the climate of adversity. Rumbles of discontent have come from the big-business community which contributed so generously to the president's re-election.

The love of this community for the Republican party, so often demonstrated in the past, has not dimmed. The concern today is over the long-term damage that Nixon can do to the Grand Old Party with the hurdles of 1974 and '76. They are also watching that nervous barometer, the stock market. As the head of one investment house put it:

"Sure, the market might waver a bit if Nixon resigned. But with Ford in the office it would go up a hundred points within a short time."

WHAT THE MORE ASTUTE business leaders see is an unending rerun of the Watergate follies. This will not come through Senate investigation but by way of the courts. At least 12 to 14 indictments of Watergate principals — and that is a conservative estimate — are still to come. Shortly after the first of the year they will begin to be returned, each one with a prominent name.

The trials could begin as early as the spring, although that is unlikely since the defense can employ a series of delaying tactics. They will go over to early fall just as the congressional campaign is starting. That is a grisly prospect not only for Republican candidates but for the party itself. Unending headlines dealing with the alleged crimes of Watergate participants will make an unhappy backdrop.

The prospect is also very real that disclosures during the trials will further implicate the president. His two former cabinet officers, Commerce Sec. Maurice H. Stans and Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, indicted several months ago, succeeded in delaying their trial until Jan. 7. The case against Stans and Mitchell had been considered weak, since defense attorneys could plead that relevant evidence on White House tapes was not available. Now, however, the White House has agreed to supply a critical tape.

INDICTED WITH MITCHELL and Stans last May was Robert L. Vesco, charged with making a secret contribution of $200,000 in cash, allegedly to block a Securities and Exchange Commission investigation of Vesco's tangled finances. Vesco has just won a verdict in a Bahamian court denying his extradition to the United States.

He has also established a base in Argentina where he can operate with the huge sums he is charged with extracting from International Controls Corp. Vesco had the help of the president's two brothers, Donald and Edward, who will be subpoenaed during the trial.

At one point it was feared that the absence of Vesco as a key witness would be a serious handicap. But, with the tape from the White House believed to be relevant, this is now discounted. There is also a possibility that both Stans and Mitchell may be indicted in Washington on other charges.

IMPORTANT ELEMENTS in the business community look at this with dismay. They see Gerald Ford not so much as another Harry Truman but as a Calvin Coolidge. After all, Truman had his Fair Deal and various pesky reforms that business didn't like. They remember Coolidge's immortal words: "The business of government is business."

Coolidge was elected in 1924. Becoming president with the death of Warren G. Harding the previous year, he had moved quickly to clean up the mess of Teapot Dome. He had stood clear of that sordid scandal and, fortunately for Coolidge and his party, the Democrats were in a shambles of dissension.

Nor has business forgotten that with Coolidge that great bull market boom began. It roared on through 1928 when Silent Cal was no longer in the White House. As 1929 proved, that boom was slightly excessive. Nevertheless, the financial community can dream of something a bit more moderate with the mess in Washington tidied up by President Ford.

History Shows Party In Power Can Survive Major Scandals

There has been so much talk lately about what Watergate might or might not do to the elections of 1974 and 1976 that we pulled out a few books on American political history to see what effect previous American political scandals had on the elections which followed.

The first truly scandalous administration was that of President Grant. He was first elected in 1868. The scandals began to emerge during the 1872 election but didn't at that time get close enough to the White House to have any serious impact.

GRANT WAS RE-ELECTED by a comfortable majority. The serious question was whether the scandals would hurt the Republicans the next time around. It did hurt them, in the 1874 midterm re-elections. The Democrats took the House of Representatives and improved their position in the Senate.

The second half of Grant's second term was enlivened by the steady exposure of more graft and corruption, reaching even into the White House where the president's personal secretary, Orville Babcock, was found to be associated with the St. Louis "Whiskey Ring."

But the same two years also saw a major economic depression which began in 1873 and continued to grip the country through the presidential election of 1876.

Because scandal and economic depression came together it is impossible to know what scandal alone might have done to the 1876 voting pattern.

The combination of the two did upset the normal Republican majority of the time. The Democratic candidate, Samuel J. Tilden, won the popular majority with a margin of over a quarter of a million votes. The electoral vote was disputed and the contest went into a special commission which decided in favor of the Republican, Rutherford B. Hayes. Fraud was charged, and probably was involved, although not proved.

THE SCANDALS of the Harding administration involved every form of corruption imaginable by politicians of that era. Three members of the cabinet were involved. One went to jail.

But no one can know what the effect would have been had Warren Harding lived out his first full term. His death, in the middle of his third year in office (Aug. 2, 1923), put the White House in the hands of Calvin Coolidge.

It was a new face, and a new broom which cleaned out of Washington all those tainted by the Harding scandals. Democrats did their best to use those scandals against Coolidge, but with no success.

Coolidge was re-elected in 1924 with 15,725,000 votes against 8,386,000 for the Democrat, John W. Davis.

THE REPUBLICANS were brought down eventually, but not by the Harding scandals. The Great Depression which began in 1929 opened Washington to Roosevelt and the New Deal. So there is no evidence that the Harding scandals affected subsequent voting patterns.

However, Harding was not in the White House after the scandals of his administration were exposed. His place had been taken by a successor of total probity.

One conclusion appears to be that a party which purges itself before election day and gets itself a new leadership and a new face can escape the consequences of the misfortunes of the departed leader.

This is now known on Capitol Hill as the "Coolidge syndrome" and is being much discussed among Republicans facing re-elections next year.

Another conclusion appears to be that economic trouble is a far more powerful political force than scandal.

There is little in the combined Grant and Harding stories to indicate that scandal alone has much influence. There is every evidence that economic trouble can be decisive.

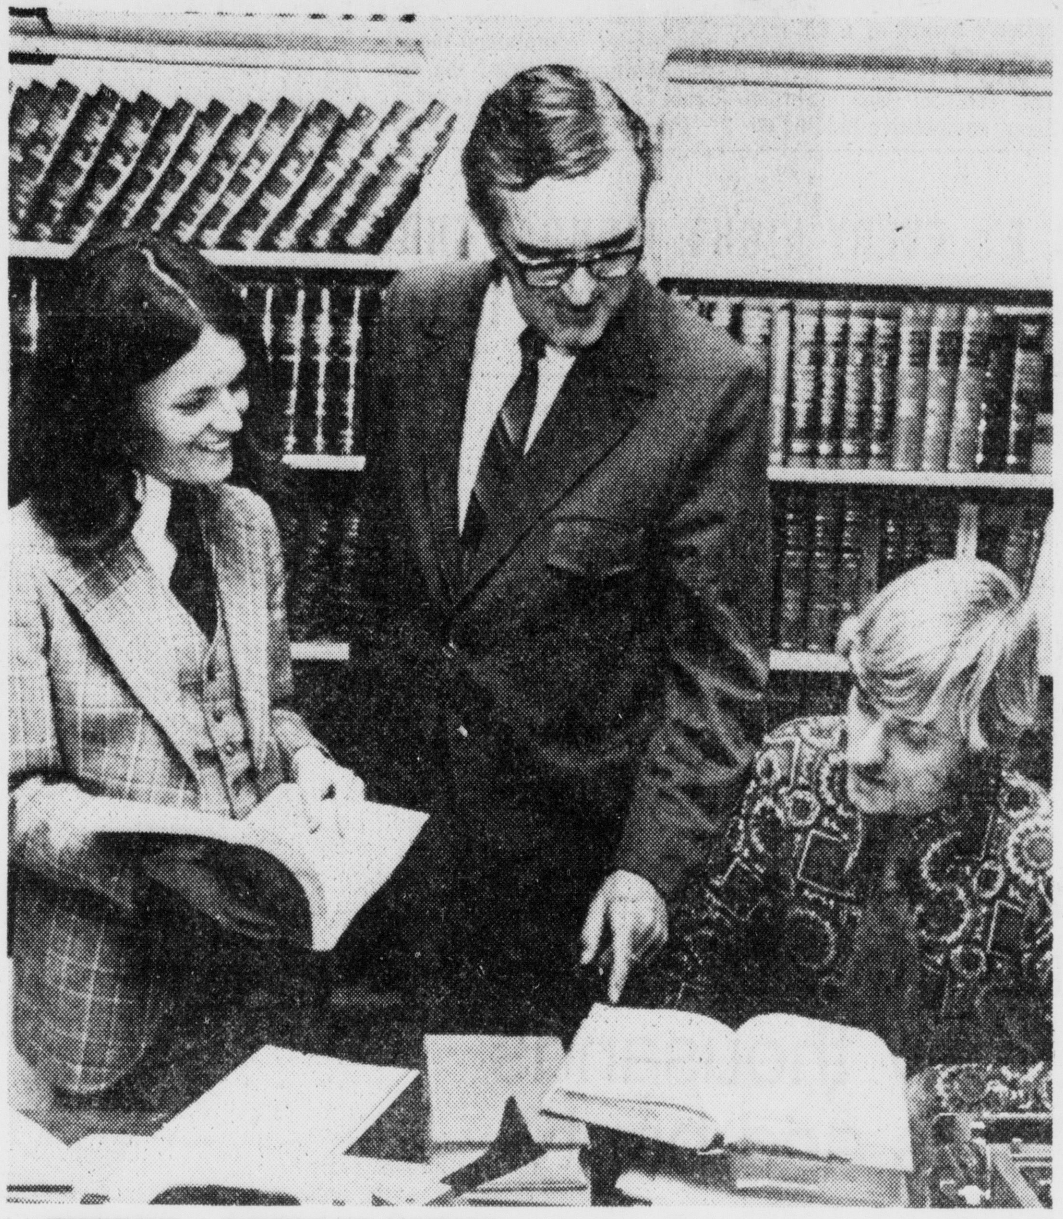
Law Students Testing Skills In Court

By JEFF GREER



"THERE'S A DEFENSE POINT" — Harold J. Truett (center) Marin County public defender, checks with law school students Joanne Parrili (left) and Dean Sprinfellow, on how the interns are preparing to defend cases in Marin courts. The students are among 22 spending a semester working fulltime in the defender's office, as part of their training at the University of San Francisco Law School.

(Photo by Jim Kean)

Twenty-two University of San Francisco Law School students are working full time in the Marin County Public Defender's office, "learning how to make a noise like a lawyer," as one Marin judge colorfully put it.

"And how not to make a noise, sometimes," replied student Joanne Parrilli.

The law students perform just as if they'd already passed the bar examinations. They appear in court on behalf of the public defender's clients, argue motions and sometimes even handle the entire defense in misdemeanor trials.

Everything the interning students do is double-checked and watched over by a full-fledged attorney, either one of the law school faculty or a deputy in Public Defender Harold J. Truett's office.

Before a student is assigned to any public defender's client, the client is given a full explanation of the intern program. Ron Mikon, one of two law faculty members supervising the intern program, said that only two persons have refused to have a student handle their cases. The program has been operating for a year-and-one-half.

"In fact, many of the clients hear about the program from friends who have been in the courts; they ask for us," reported Miss Parrilli. She's working in the program for a second semester, as a teaching assistant.

When the interns work in trials, the judges are careful not to let jurors know they are watching a student in action — until after jurors reach their verdicts.

Mikon recalled sitting through a three-day jury trial in Municipal Judge Robert A. Smallman's court, supervising one of the students handling a defense.

"I didn't have to do a thing in that case," Mikon said. "The jurors were surprised to hear the defense counsel was a student. One juror came over to me and said, 'I've been watching you sit in court and I decided you must be the law student'," the professor said.

Mikon and fellow faculty member Myrna Raeder and two teaching assistants meet weekly with all the students for a three-hour seminar. The students devote the rest of their time to actual casework, except for one class a week back on campus.

The course in criminal law practice is financed partly by the school, and partly by the Council for Legal Education for Professional Responsibility, a nationwide private foundation. Students taking the course, plus the one class on campus, get credits for the full semester's work toward their law degree. They all have completed at least three years of law study before interning in criminal practice.

No quizzes or final exams are given on the semester's work — their term papers are all the public defender's files as court case histories, explained student Donald Brody.

Each student's case-load is carefully limited to insure that clients get full protection, Mikon said. The average intern handles about 15 cases during a semester. The student spends the first few weeks in intensive training sessions, before taking an actual cases.

Since about 95 per cent of criminal cases never go to trial, few trials themselves are handled by the interns. Mikon recalled six jury trials in 18 months — all misdemeanor cases in municipal court. One trial led to outright acquittal, two were dismissed, two led to guilty verdicts and one resulted in a hung jury.

Municipal Court Judge David R. Baty has the most contact with the future lawyers. He presides daily over the criminal calendar, through which pass all persons charged with either misdemeanor or felony crimes.

In most cases when a defendant can't afford a private attorney, a public defender's intern is appointed.

Baty reported that each student zealously protects his or her client, doing extensive research into both the facts of the case and the law, and making in-depth arguments for motions.

Some of the students seem shy of self-confidence in their first cases, but soon learn "to make a noise like a lawyer," Judge Baty said.

He praised the intern program highly.

"When I graduated from law school, they didn't even tell me the address of the courthouse," he said, chuckling. "Some new lawyers may go three years before they get into a court after they graduate and pass the bar."

Dist. Atty Bruce B. Bales found himself on the firing line recently, handling the prosecution of a full calendar while all his own deputies were attending a seminar.

Bales was wrestling with a thick stack of case files with which he was unfamiliar, while seemingly dozens of well-prepared students stood up with their clients.

"They move anything that moves," in the way of legal defense, Bales noted.

Truett and the judges said, however, that the students' cases often go more smoothly than those of a regular attorney. Many of the public defender deputies carry a staggering load of 200 cases during the semester the students are handling 15 or so cases apiece. Students thus can and do spend many hours grounding themselves in each case and discussing it with their supervisors.

Their semester's experience in actual court work often makes the students decide to specialize in criminal law, the interns reported. "But it's good experience even for someone who plans to handle only civil cases," said student William Coleman of Oakland.

Most of the students interviewed harped on a common theme — the intern program "teaches us that justice involves human beings, not just cases on law books or textbooks."

"I was scared to death the first time I had to interview a client in the jail," Miss Parrilli recalled. "Not so much because of the surroundings, but because I was worried about doing all the paperwork right."

Other students reported that defendants' families sometimes seek to become too actively involved in a case, "and we have to tell them what we talk about with the clients is confidential and privileged," Coleman added.

Miss Parrilli said she intends to practice criminal law, but hasn't decided on whether on the side of the defense or prosecution.

Teacher Denies Two Key Counts

Teacher Kenneth A. Anderson yesterday said that he never encouraged a student of his to bomb bank buildings or engaged in improper conduct with a 15-year-old girl.

Anderson is the target of a suit brought by the Tamalpais High School District which is seeking to fire the 33-year-old former English teacher.

In the fifth day of the civil case before Marin Superior Court Judge E. Warren McGuire, Anderson, under questioning by his attorney, Carl B. Shapiro, said he:

1. Didn't know Bruce Paul Lohmann was responsible for three bombings and two fires in Southern Marin in the spring of 1971.
2. Was unaware that Lohmann kept bomb materials in a locked cabinet in Anderson's classroom at Tamalpais High School in Mill Valley.
3. Did not lend Lohmann a pass key which the youth used to enter locked schoolrooms.
4. Did not engage in sexual relations with a girl student prior to or during a trip to Yosemite in November 1971.

Anderson said his family was friendly with the family of the girl, Beth Okamura, and he did not begin to view her romantically until early 1972, when he took a room in her parents' house in Bolinas. They were married in June of that year, he said.

Countering another district charge that he failed to properly control his students, Anderson said they had the administration's permission to study independently in various parts of the Tamalpais High School campus.

(Earlier testimony presented by William O. Weissich, attorney for the high school district, contended Anderson often allowed his students to roam about campus.)

The court hearing will resume Wednesday.

County Club Group Begins Annex Protest

Residents of the Country Club area near San Rafael who oppose a plan to annex that area to the city, yesterday filed signed letters of protest with the city.

Joseph Kohlenstein of 280 Summit Avenue, said about 275 property owners — representing about 60 per cent of the area is assessed valuation — have signed the letters.

Residents oppose the annexation for many reasons. Some don't want to be ruled by San Rafael, while others fear their taxes will be raised if they enter the city. Still others object to another layer of government being added to existing ones.

Raymond Meador, assistant to the city manager, said officials are still trying to determine how much land the protesting citizens own.

"It may be Monday before we know," he said. "We'll probably have to get a reading from the county to see what the total assessed valuation is."

If the protesters represent at least 50 per cent of the assessed valuation, the annexation attempt will be killed.

The Marin County Local Agency Formation Commission which endorsed annexation in August.

Kohlenstein said the letters delivered yesterday to city hall were submitted by individual property owners. "There are still more coming," he said.

The Country Club area is named for a golf club which once occupied it. An estimated 800 residents live in 260 residential units there.

The Call for Annexation began in July when a number of homeowners sought the agency formation commission's approval. Homeowner Jane Levinsohn of 21 Lunada Court told the commission the area needed city services, especially fire protection.

Amendment On Agency Plan Urged

OAKLAND (AP) — Proponents of direct public elections for members of a proposed regional planning agency for the San Francisco Bay Area launched a new offensive yesterday.

Officials of the Regional Agency Action Task Force and the Sierra Club told members of an assembly subcommittee that a bill pending in the Legislature, creating the powerful agency should be amended to provide election of members on a nine-county regional basis.

"We feel the board should be directly elected, accountable to a regional constituency on regional problems," said George Burgess, chairman of the task force's Bay Area Council.

The bill's present form would create a 36-member board composed of city councilmen and supervisors. Burgess aid his organization would support that provision if there were a guarantee of direct elections within two or three years.

Yesterday's views were aired before civic, business and government leaders at a hearing proposed by Assemblyman John T. Knox, D-Richmond.

Students Elect Another Nixon

FRESNO (AP) — Another Nixon has been elected president.

This one is Tyrone Nixon, 12, who ran on a platform that he was "fit for the job" in convincing fellow students to elect him to head the student body at Lincoln Elementary School here.

Tyrone doesn't think name recognition with the other Nixon made the difference. He credits football where he gained some fame by scoring 14 touchdowns for his team this fall.

Funds For Computer Center Hit

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Legislature is being urged to consider cutting off funds for a multimillion dollar computer center until the Reagan administration conducts "valid" negotiations with all computer companies.

Legislative Auditor General Harvey Rose said the administration failed to conduct "valid negotiations" with all vendors interest in equipping the new center.

This has resulted in a "potential loss of cost savings of at least $15 million," he said.

Rose made the charge in a report prepared for the Assembly Ways and Means Committee. It will conduct a hearing Monday into the Reagan administration's award of a $38 million contract to IBM.

The contract was awarded without competitive bidding under legislation enacted on an urgency basis after bidding through normal channels failed twice. IBM was the only bidder both times.

Univac Corp., whose equipment will be replaced by the new center, complained the administration weighted the contract heavily in IBM's favor.

Univac had offered $22.6 million to equip the center but flunked the state "benchmark" test of its equipment and was not considered during the negotiated bidding process.

Rose's report said the "legislature should consider a refusal to appropriate further funding for the electronic data processing procurement until" valid negotiations occur.

Poor Spelling Is An Eye Catcher

STANTON, Mo. (AP) — Throughout the country there are billboards for Meramec Caverns on U.S. 66 here.

"What catches the eye of the motorists most is that there are misspelled words on each of the billboards," points out Lester B. Dill, cave owner.

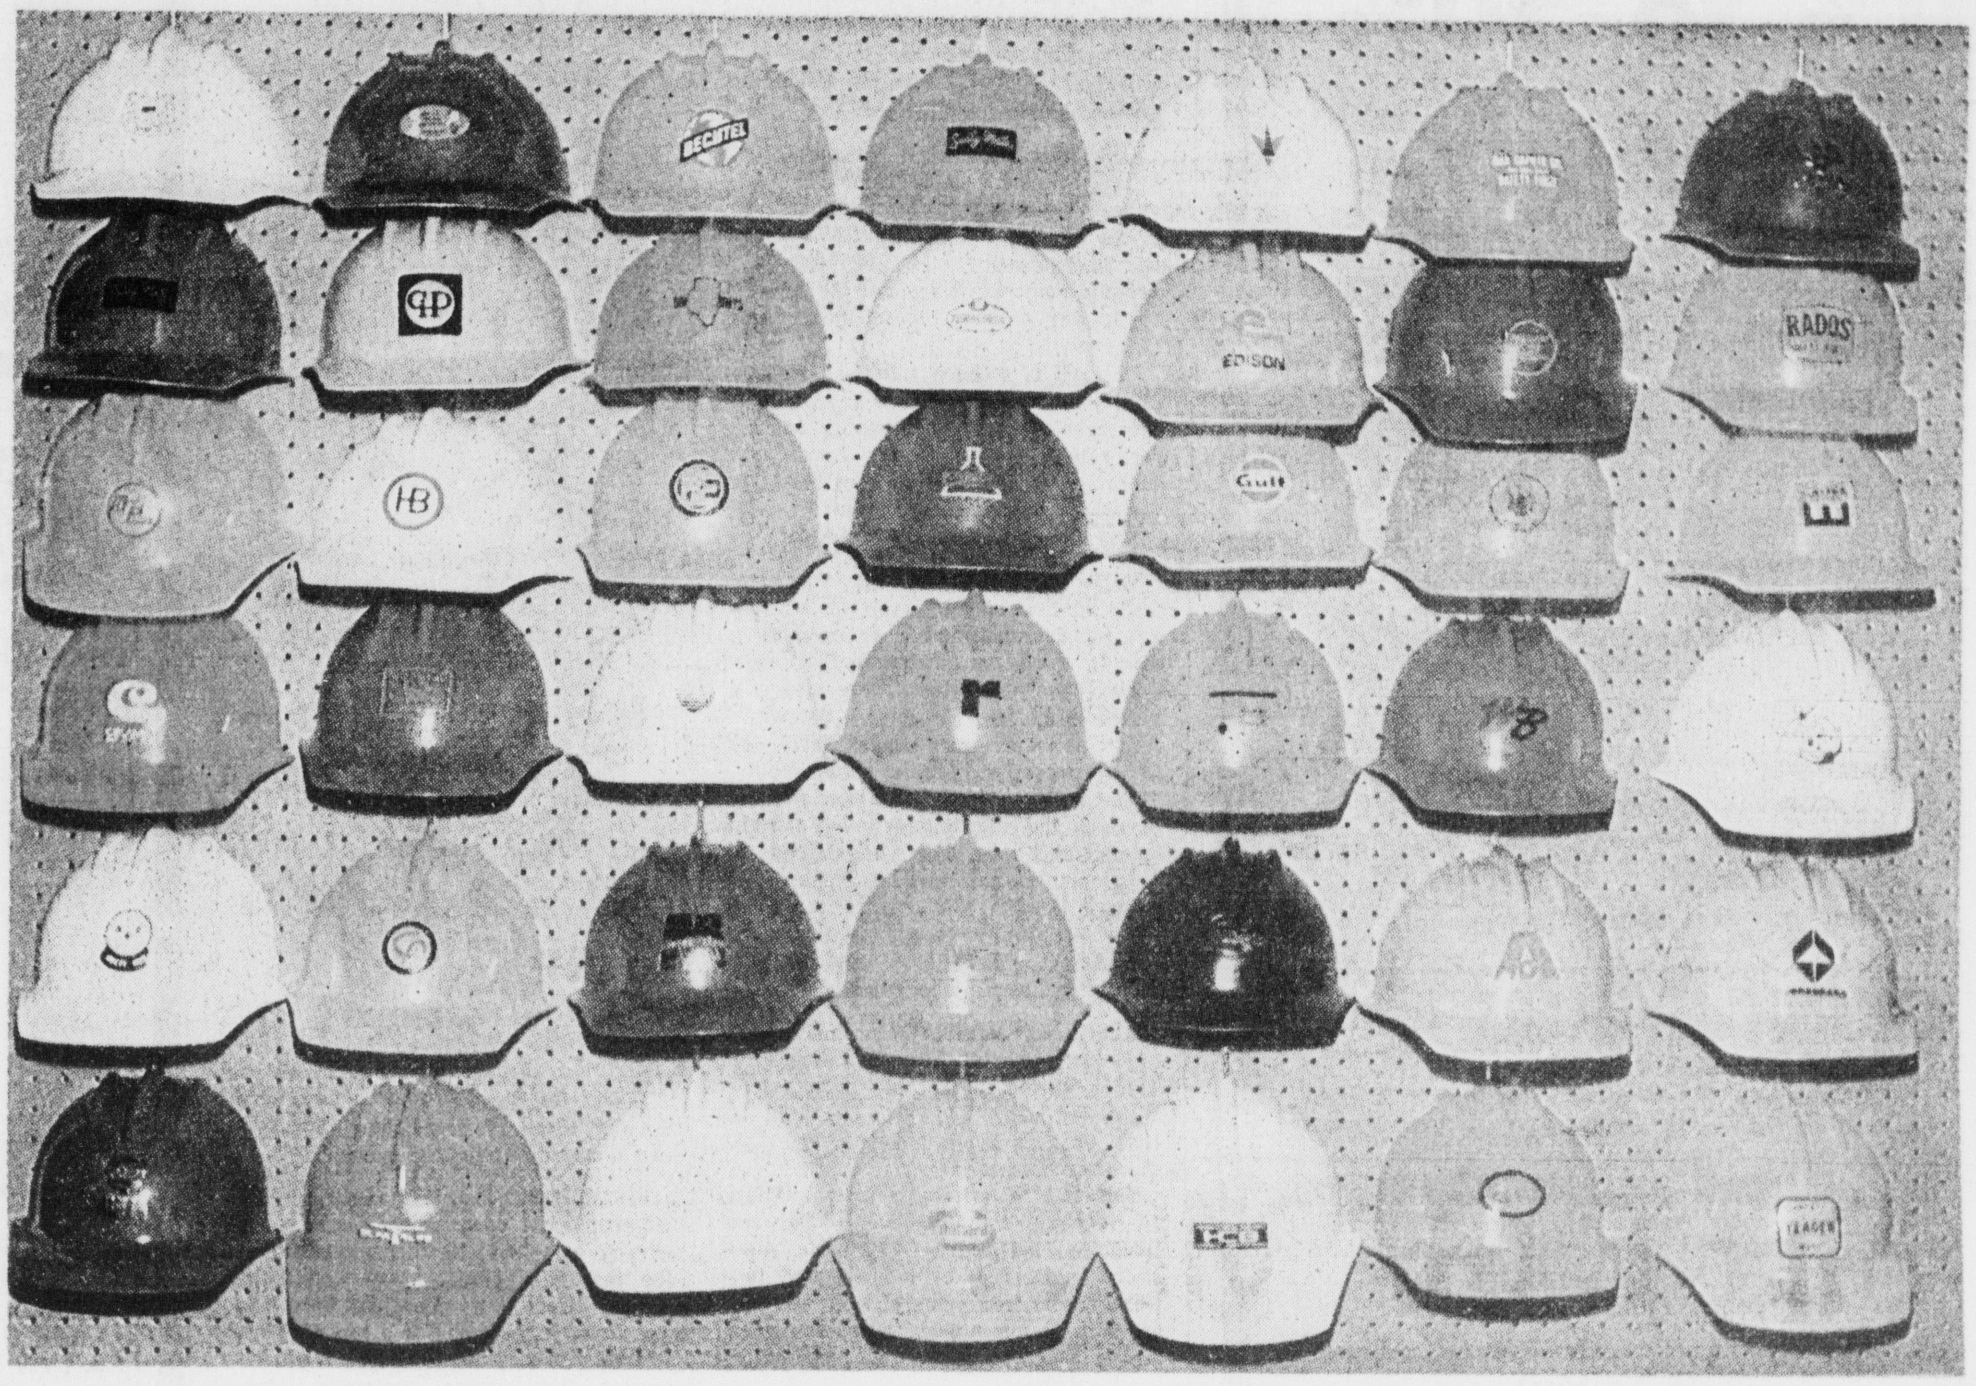
Safety Has Long Been The Theme At Bullard



A PEGBOARD DISPLAY RACK at the E. D. Bullard Co. in Sausalito holds just some of the hard hats manufactured and marketed by the firm in the colors and insignias of their customer companies. The Bullard Company was the developer of the hard hat. And the hard hat is just one of a number of industrial safety devices in which the company specializes. Edward Dickenson Bullard founded the company in San Francisco 75 years ago. It moved to Marin County in 1956. Along with its Marin operations employing 170 Marinites, Bullard now has a plant in Covington, Ky., and also does some limited manufacturing in Mexico City. The company history has been tied closely to the history and growth of the Bay Area.

During the last half of the 1800s, thousands of Easterners were drawn to California by the glitter of gold and the promise of land.

As the story goes, they came to find a better life than the East had given them, and those who struck it rich were quick and insistent in their demands for luxuries that they assumed their new wealth entitled them to.

But California was a wild country and luxury often had to take second place to mere survival.

In 1898, however, Edward Dickinson Bullard brought light to the hills of San Francisco. Acetylene light, that is. It was he who built the first acetylene generator on the West Coast, and with it eliminated the smell of coal oil in the city's more fashionable residences.

THAT WAS 75 years ago, and today the E. D. Bullard Co., now located in Sausalito, is one of the largest manufacturers and distributors of safety equipment in the world. It presently employs approximately 170 Marinites in its local facilities.

But the Bullard Company is of interest to Marinites not only as a successful Marin business, but for the very active part it has played in regional history for the past 75 years.

From his first office at 268 Market Street in San Francisco, E. D. Bullard began to market carbide lamps, the first such lamps used by Western miners. The miners, who until then were forced to work by candlelight, welcomed the introduction of Bullard's lamps in 1908, and predictably his business soared.

SOON AFTER, Bullard began developing an international market, selling carbide lamps to firms in the Orient. Today, the Bullard Company's international operations include Bullard Mexicana, S.A., serving Latin American markets, plus extensive marketing in Europe.

During the pre-war years, the company continued to grow, branching further into the safety equipment business. In 1915, founder Bullard's son, E. W. Bullard Sr., entered the business, and was soon to play a major role in the development of safety equipment technology.

Today, when concern with safety is so much a part of the news and our daily lives, it is hard to imagine the lack of awareness of occupational safety which existed until relatively recently. Old-timers say that the only safety code in the mines was "duck or die." The aim of the Bullard company has been to combat that attitude, and it has contributed significantly.

WHEN E. W. BULLARD returned from World War I, he came back with the beginning of an idea which was ultimately to change the appearance of nearly every workman in the World.

The government had asked the Bullard Company to help solve the growing problem of head injuries in shipyards and factories. In 1919, using the Doughboy helmet for his basic design, E. W. Bullard constructed the first 'hard-boiled hat." The original hat was made from cloth impregnated with glue and resin; yet crude as it was, large orders soon came in from many enthusiastic buyers. Anaconda Copper and Phelps Dodge Co. were among the first.

The advent of the "hard-boiled hat" was naturally of interest to Western mining companies whose operations were constantly impaired by inuries to their workers. The companies had confidence in E. D. Bullard's products as a result of his introuction of carbide lighting to the mines a few years earlier.

"HARD BOILED HATS" were eagerly adopted by miners who previously were

For Nearly A Century Booze Was A Part Of Sausalito Industry

By GLENN H. CAVALLI

Immigrant John Mason from Ireland settled in Sausalito in 1850 about three miles north of what is now the downtown area for what was to him a good reason — the weather was lousy.

From off the Pacific Ocean, the wind howled and the fog swirled down the canyons, making it a veritable Hurricane Gulch.

Less than an ideal place to live, it seemed.

But Mason had an idea. Why not put his considerable knowledge of whiskey-making to work, distilling his own Irish whiskey in his adopted land? Maybe he might even go into business and sell some of the fruit of his labors.

AFTER ALL, THE winds of Sausalito, then Saucelito, would not hinder, but aid him greatly in the cooling process essential to the refining of alcohol.

And when he found a fresh water spring among the willow trees on his property, his enthusiasm knew no bounds. Conditions were perfect.

The John Mason Irish Malt Whiskey Distilling Co. did not begin commercial operation, however, until 1870, from in back of Mason's house on its two-acre site. Initially, production was just over a barrel a month. And that first whiskey had to wait through an eight-year aging period before it was ready for consumption.

But the made-in-Sausalito booze was a success, and production increased over the years.

JOHN MASON DIED in 1906, with the knowledge that he had operated the first commercial distillery west of the Mississippi, making grain spirits to lighten the trials and tribulations of the early westerners.

Mason also produced two sons, Clinton and John, who continued to distill Irish malt whiskey in Sausalito.

The Volstead Act of 1919 (Prohibition) halted American whiskey making. In Sausalito, the two sons continued to distill alcohol, but for "medical purposes" only.

In 1933, Prohibition ended and so did the John Mason Irish Malt Whiskey Distilling Co., for it was purchased by the American Distilling Co. of Pekin, Ill.

THE COMPANY expanded its operation and enlarged the distillery to 14 acres, producing an assortment of liquors. During the 1930s and 1940s they made three straight bourbons; Old Amer-

FOR THE CHILD

The Toys You Ride Are High On Lists

Nothing delights more at Christmas than a toy a child can ride — bike, wagon, sled, hobby horse and such fun things.

Among new riding toys is the Mr. Potato Head. Fashioned after the popular Mr. Potato Head, the four-wheel toy has a removable saddle with storage space for removable facial features. Mr. Potato Head will carry 65 pounds.

The newest in spring-powered rocking horses has the authentic look of a corral. The horses are attached to simulated wood corral posts and beams molded of unbreakable polyethylene plastic.

FOR THE SMALLEST tot there is a spring mounted colt that functions as a tot walker and later as a spring horse.

Also for riding and from Hi-Ho Products of Sharpsburg, Pa., are tiny tug, circus wagon, tot train, and the li'l fire truck. For toddlers, these move from here to there on casters.

All sorts of wooden riding horses are available from Toby Toys of America, Sacramento, Calif. The number one favorite is the wood rocking horse with adorable, hand-painted features that give Toby Toys happy faces. Parents love the horses almost as much as the kids do.

TOBY COOK, founder of the firm, made his first hobby horse over 20 years ago, for his own little boy. Other children saw it, wanted one and well, that's how Toby Toys got started. There also is a giraffe in the line. His name is Jasper.

If trips to the snow are expected, the Santa presents include snow scoots. These are oval shaped and have rudders to enable the rider to steer to left or right by pull of a rope. The scoot is made of plastic and manufactured by Funopoly of Jackson Heights, N.Y.

For the family, toboggans are worth considering. If Santa drops one off, make sure he includes a toboggan pad.

ALSO INTERESTING for snow trips are coasting sheets. These are 18-inch-by-42-inch sheets or durable polyethylene with hand holes. You sit on one, hold the front part up like a toboggan and whiz down the slope.

The AMF Wheel Goods unit at Olney, Ill., is in with a "wee hot seat." This is a junior version of the 1972 classic, especially engineered for toddlers and tots from two to four years of age. The wee hot seat features a high-impact molded plastic bucket seat and twin strut chopper handlebars.

The newest thing on wheels for smallsters is an all-terrain truck. From Garton Toy Co. in Sheboygan, Wis., the truck looks like a tricycle in front. In the back is a cargo-carrying wagon, complete with four huge wheels.

IN THE SIDEWALK bike class are such things as sonda scramblers and lady sondas. These are play versions of Honda bikes. Actually they are scooters with seats. Training wheels aft keep rider from tipping.

For the do-it-yourselfers there is a you-ride-it racer kit — wire spoke wheels and all the other parts.

Pedal cars are good for the pre-school set and include all the favorites — racers, fire trucks.

The newest thing in bikes is one with six-way adjustable handlebars. The kids can have a different bike every day.

FOR THE NOT so steady among adults wanting pedal power there is the adult tricycle complete with carrying basket at the rear. For young moms and dads, senior citizens, lazy riders and folks who just never learned to ride a two wheeler.

Santa also may want to consider a wind cruiser. This is from X-potential Enterprises, Fountain Valley, Calif.

The Wind Cruiser, is a ship on wheels, a wheeled child's riding vehicle powered by the wind. It has a tall mast sporting a giant colorful sail.

The manufacturer says the wind cruiser has been designed with the consultation of expert sail makers and is scaled and proportioned to permit sailability on land. It is packaged as a build and ride creative play toy.

WITH THIS A child can learn the science and art of sailing in the safe environment of the sidewalk or playgrounds while his fancy takes him on imagined pirate coves.

A child can be a captain brave or a pirate bold without leaving home.

Leather Goods Are Certain To Please Male On The List

For the hard-to-please men in your life, why not choose leather goods this Christmas?

A good-looking leather gift is always appreciated, whether it's for the man who has everything or the man who hates almost everything. There isn't a male on your list who doesn't love the look, feel and smell of leather.

There is a rich assortment of leather pocket items, belts, home furnishings, travel gear, luggage and other personal leather goods from which to select just the right gift for him. Covering a wide range of articles, the American leathers from which they're crafted are similarly broad in character; they're dyed in many colors and finished in a variety of surface treatments.

IN POCKET ITEMS, you can go as plain or fancy as you, or he, pleases, notes Leather Industries of America. You'll find leather wallets and billfolds, card cases, pocket secretaries, plus matching eyeglass case, keycase, cigarette-pack holder, lighter. Leathers include calf, morocco, cowhide, embossed leathers and others.

It's a rare male who can't use smoking or bar gear. In leather, they're at their finest and often come antiqued, tooled or embossed. Among gifts to consider are leather cigarette boxes, humidors, table lighters, leather-mounted ashtrays and pipe racks, coasters, leather-encased ice buckets, glasses, pitchers, tankards and decanters.

Home furnishings and good grooming aids make smart and serviceable presents in leather. Leather grooming equipment encompasses such articles as leather manicure sets, stud boxes, bureau organizers, or leather-backed hair and clothes brushes.

His home will seem more lively and more leathery with one or more of these in leather: book-ends, picture frame, lamp, or matching leather desk accessories such as pen stand, pencil bucket, desk pad, calendar, library set, waste basket, etc.

A TASTEFUL waist-ful in masculine gifts is the little package holding a new leather belt.

Stores are showing many handsome belt looks and leathers, with leading finishes in grained, sueded, smooth, harness, embossed, latigo and real patent leather.

For business and dress, belts may show off inch and a half to inch and three quarter widths, but one inch and one and a quarter-inch widths are also available. These smooth, suede, light-grained and embossed leather belts use fine contrast stitching, overlays, and two tones or textures as trim. Buckles are in jewelry-finished hardware, self-leather, or metal with leather inlay.

Casual and dress-casual belts appear both wide and slim with styling such as overlays, cutouts, braiding, stitching and color combinations. Leathers include smooth, suede, harness, brushed, and embossed among others.

Wider sport belts in sinewy leather most often display large brass or silver buckles which add to their ruggedness. Other design themes stress quilting, the "latigo" look, lacing and metal studs. Narrower widths may also be found in these brawny-leathered belts.

GIVE A travelin' man a Christmas present that is packed with prestige — handsome leather luggage, suggests Leather Industries of America. It's the gift that will please with its appearance, its endurance, and its aura of status.

The shapes, colors and leather finishes of new leather luggage are so complete that suiting his taste will be no problem. New American luggage leathers are tanned to a toughness which allows travel under the worst conditions without showing deterioration. In construction, you'll see both soft-sided and rigid types.

There are many other leather travel-time articles in the personal leather goods area. A good choice is a travel alarm clock in a leather case. Foldable leather slippers are easy-to-pack travelers. Other gift ideas include soft leather toilet kits, jewel rolls, and even leather-boxed playing cards.

For that daily trip to office or school, a new leather attache or briefcase could be just the ticket —or gift tag. These smart-looking brass-trimmed leather cases are available with one or more compartments, special file sections, inside or buckled outside pockets, and in attaches, even removable writing counters or clothes section.

Jewelry Gift Popular With Young

Christmas is the time to give lasting gifts to your jeans-clad young. The kind of stocking treasure they will really treasure because it's genuine and lasting, definitely not throw-away.

Gifts that come from the jewelry store or jewelry sections of department and gift stores, prestige-packed and loaded with young charm, have all the excitement and flavor of that waiting-for-Santa time of not so long ago.

Neat notes are beginning to sound in youthful wardrobes and wonder of wonders, dressing up in a dress is the latest female discovery! Aiding and abetting this headlining change is gold-filled jewelry, observes the Jewelry Industry Council with approval.

GREAT FOR greeting a happy young face on Christmas morn is anything in a Victorian mood, smoky topaz, jade, amethyst, scarabs in traditional Old World or modern New World settings. The rigid neckwire that's V'd to keep suspendables centered and neat, and the suspendables themselves — modern sculptured neckdrops, pins — are more ideas.

Earrings gift in the latest button styles.

Bangles should be bountiful to row up the arm in different gold filled textures and widths, in clear and colored plastic.

Pins pin on cute messages.

Watches in blown up bubble shapes, clear or exotically colored Lucite, with link bracelets, cartoon character faces, pendant timers belong to the important gift category.

SO DOES sterling silver jewelry, the precious discovery of the young. There are pendants with a Christmas theme, earrings, rings of thin silver wire that can be changed in shape every time she wears them, delicate flower rings, simple bands with lots of open-work or stone-set with turquoise, amethyst.

Cultured pearl jewelry, heart shaped Linde stars, Zodiac pendants of sterling silver, a travel alarm or pedestal shaped bedroom clock gift the young girl now as well as the young woman of the future.

Especially for her future is sterling silver flatware and even holloware. Initially, her first silver place setting is a gift from her parents who welcome the advice and help of the jeweler when their "little girl" is ready to choose the silver pattern that will reign in her future home.

To put more of a happy shine on her holiday, and her future, generous gifters might consider silver as salt and pepper shakers, a basket for candy, an Early American candle snuffer, measuring spoons, a photo ornament that can hold four photos of her favorite people and hang from a stand after the tree comes down. And on this Christmas so near the Bicentennial, begin a spoon collection for her that's redolent with Early American history.

FOR THAT teen man in your life, try the personality gifting approach with jewelry. Cuff links, belt buckle, key ring, all with his initials, will make him feel very VIP. An ident bracelet with bold link band, a ring with his initials and a Linde star accent follow the same gift route.

A watch for him should be sporty and well on view, even with a sports symbol on its face. He likes the colored Lucite cases and their unusual shapes, too. For dress up —and he's doing it, too —a thin case and leather strap are called for the giftwrapping.

Bracelets for him are a must. Terrific styles come in silver, copper, even brass. He and that special girl might even exchange matching bracelets.

A digital clock-radio, a tankard or mug of pewter, a Bicentennial inspired Liberty Bell bank in silver will add a special jewelry something to his favorite nook.

You'll definitely find that young beat so necessary for gifting your young at the jewelry store or department.

Don't Forget Pets During The Holidays

The California Veterinary Medical Association warns pet owners that the holiday season can be very frightening for animals, especially those puppies and kittens who are given as gifts.

While the excitement of Christmas is accepted by humans as a joyful time, pets are often swept up by rushing feet, late meals, blinking lights and shiny ornaments.

Christmas wrappings and ornaments make prime targets for curious kittens and puppies, with fallen trees often the result. Also, loose wires make enticing meals to chewing cats and dogs, and can cause fires, short circuits or electrocution.

In any emergency, from passed blood due to swallowed bulbs, to electric shocks, your local veterinarian should be notified for quick action.

Animals should be kept on their regular schedule of eating, and during very exciting times, be kept away from trampling feet and rushing children. Also, when left alone, care should be taken that pets cannot reach loose cords, dangling ornaments, or lightly wrapped packages.

Also, during especially cold or wet nights, indoor animals should not be allowed to roam all night. They suffer from chills and respiratory illnesses as do humans.

With thought and care, pets can fully enjoy the holiday season — and humans can enjoy a night at home instead of a visit to the emergency clinic.

TO KEEP YOUR YULE TREE FRESH

To keep self harvested Christmas trees frehest these suggestions should be followed:

Store outside until time to decorate;

Place tree upright in a pail of water after cutting the butt diagonally about one inch above the original cut;

Sprinkle water on branches and needles for extra freshness;

Once it's time to bring it indoors, saw the butt end again, perpendicular this time;

Place the tree in a container of water, which should be refilled daily;

Support the tree well, and place it away from fireplace, radiator, heater, television;

Never use open flames, such as candles, near the tree, and never leave home with the tree lights on.

Compact Appliances Make Hit

Stuck on gift ideas for the Holiday season? Tired of giving ties and handkerchiefs?

Then why not try something new for a change, suggests Hotpoint. Consider a family gift of a compact appliance — something that will not only make a big splash under the tree, but which will provide useful service for many years to come.

Compact major appliances are a recent innovation. Small in size, but with many of the features of their full-size counterparts, compacts make it possible for persons who don't have the space for facilities for conventional appliances to nevertheless enjoy the convenience of modern, labor-saving kitchen and laundry products.

NO MATTER where friends might live — apartment or mobile home, city or country — there is a compact appliance that probably fits their lifestyle as well as their available space.

For instance, a countertop microwave oven fills a lot of bills. It is perfect for harried housewives to cook delicious meals in less time or prepare snacks for unexpected guests. Teen-agers will also quickly discover it for after-school goodies or grabbing a warm bite before that sports event.

For your friends or relatives who live where trash disposal and collection can be a problem (and isn't that almost everywhere these days), a trash compactor makes an appropriate gift. It can be utilized as either a free-standing unit or a built-in, and is just 15 inches wide. It compacts a week's worth of trash for an average family of four into one neat, tidy lift-out bag.

IF YOU KNOW a young couple just starting out and currently living in cramped quarters, a compact laundry center capable of doing fullsized chores is certain to be appreciated. One manufacture offers an automatic washer and companion electric dryer which can be stacked vertically so they take up only four square feet of floor space. The dryer operates on standard 115-volt current and requires no external venting, while the washer rolls to the sink for hookup like a portable dishwasher.

Want to help someone fight inflation? How about a compact chest freezer for storage of in-season and supermarket specials. It's only countertop height, and makes sense even in a small apartment.

A dishwasher, of course, is always a sure-fire way to score points with the homemaker, and a new top-loading compact portable is bound to be a welcome addition to the kitchen of anyone who is presently doing the meal clean-up chores by hand.

A CLOCK GIFT is one that's welcomed down every chimney on Christmas Eve. Gift a wall with an antique pewter coffee pot, a country air complete with pine touches and a planter, a weather station, framed electronic digitals that's like a flashing photo. Gift the mantel with a quartz crystal wonder clock; the night stand with a digital clock-radio; the suitcase with a traveling clock-jewel box.

Sensibly priced to fit most budgets — most of these mini models have suggested retail prices of under $200 — compact appliances once again prove that the best presents come in small packages.

Gifts Good Enough To Eat

Want to give a holiday gift of food but don't have the time to brew, bake or concoct it in your kitchen? Let the grocer help.

Many food stores cater to holiday trade by packaging and shipping food gifts on order.

A fruit basket can cost less than you think and makes a magnificent gift. Many grocers will make up a fruit basket to the size and price you specify. During the holidays the baskets usually have grapefruits, navel oranges, tangerines, pears, yellow and red apples, grapes and bananas. Larger baskets also contain cheese, fancy cookies, candies, nuts, liver pate and crackers.

If you can afford a higher price tag, the basket might contain also canned hams, imported salamis, preserves, marmalades, fruit cakes. They make a nutritious and fine gift everyone in a family can enjoy.

CREATOR ROBIN BRADFORD of Sausalito and her able assistant, Alexandra Emery, display some of their gingerbread houses and other fragrant wares that are so popular with fun-seekers at the Great Dickens Christmas Fair and Pickwick Carnival, a recreation of 19th Century London holding forth Saturdays and Sundays through Dec. 30 in a spacious warehouse in San Francisco's produce district at Jerrold and Rankin streets.

Robin's Secret In Building Her Gingerbread Houses

How do you construct a gingerbread house?

Sausalito's Robin Bradford can answer as an expert.

For the past two years she has been creating fragrant gingerbread houses, as much a part of the Christmas holiday tradition as tinsel and holly, for the Great Dickens Christmas Fair and Pickwick Comic Annual.

Her tempting creations at the 1973 annual, holding forth Saturdays, 11 a.m. to 9 p.m., and Sundays, 11 a.m. to 7 p.m., through Dec. 30 at "Fezziwigg's Warehouse," Jerrold and Rankin streets, San Francisco, include not only gingerbread houses, but the church, store and the other structures necessary for a complete make-believe Victorian village.

"I USE THE standard gingerbread recipe," Robin explains, "and I would never compromise on the right ingredients — butter, whole wheat flour, ginger and spices, honey and-or sugar. Synthetic ingredients might make it easier to build a house, but the most important thing, I believe, is that they have that true gingerbread flavor."

Part of Robin's secret is her method of cooking.

She bakes the gingerbread in a sheet pan for only about 15 minutes (it is not yet completely cooked), then cuts it into building sections, using her own building pattern. The sections are then returned to the oven to finish baking.

Once the gingerbread is thoroughly cooked and cooled, it is put together with icing as "mortar" and candies and cookies create the roof, sidewalk, windows and other decorations which turn the gingerbread into the fairytale piture of a miniature edible house.

ROBIN'S HOUSES will remain edible for about a month. However, a glaze of sugar water will make them more durable.

If they are only to be decorative, they may be frozen and used yearly at the yuletide season.

Robin Bradford, an English major graduate of UCLA, combines a real love for 19th Century English literature with a flair for handcrafting unusual gifts.

Also a part of Robin's fragrant selection at the Dickens Christmas Fair, in addition to the houses, are tantalizing gingerbread squares topped with whipped cream and spicy pumpkin tarts to tempt the hungry fairgoer.

More than two dozen caterers are on hand for the colorful fair, each offering his own unique and exciting version of Victorian cooking, including plum pudding, pork and apple pie, roasted chestnuts and fish and chips.

OVER 100 CRAFTSMEN lend their talents to the Dickens Fair as well, with their shops and stalls built to emphasize the Victorian theme.

The theaters include the Penny Gaff Theater, Mad Sal's Ale House, the Pickwick Comic Lecture Hall and Ol' Fezziwigg's Dance Party Hall — all offering the songs, dances and merriment of a Dickens Christmas.

The fair is reached by car by taking the Bayshore Freeway to the Army Street Exit and following the signs to Jerrold and Rankin. Continuous shuttle bus service from Union Square, opposite the St. Francis Hotel in San Francisco, begins at 10:30 a.m., and Municipal Bus 15 goes to within a few blocks of the site.

CHRISTMAS DAY

With angel's hair
Clinging to pine-scented branches
As loved ones do
To one another
The mistletoe hanging,
A twinkling of lights
So bright and warm,
As the smiles of children
Illuminate the morn,
Crisp as new fallen snow;
The presents are opened
Twixt yawns and laughter
While turkey and yams
Await the evening feast.
Only too sad am I,
that this day of love,
Could only be but a day,
And not but a year.

FOR YEARS the American Distilling Co. distillery on Bridgeway was a familiar sight to motorists entering Sausalito from the north. And before it, its predecessor company, the John Mason Irish Malt Whiskey Distilling Co., had operated there for decades. Fire destroyed the plant in 1961.

THIS LAYOUT SKETCHED by Glenn H. Cavalli shows the facilities of the American Distilling Co. in Sausalito during the 1940s. During World War II, the distillery devoted its efforts to the production of alcohol propellant for torpedoes and to other war work. The sketch also shows how the distillery cooling towers took advantage of the winds sweeping down through Waldo Canyon. And the site of the original John Mason Irish whiskey distillery with which it all began.

ican, Bourbon Supreme and Stillbrook; two bonds — Cadillac Club and Good Old Gukenheimer; two gins — Burton's and Old Colony; Tvarski Vodka, and Piping Rock Cordials.

During the war years, 1942 to 1945, grain was impossible to get and other substitutes were tried. Potatoes produce an alcohol but not for booze. This alcohol was used in the United States war effort as a propellant for torpedoes. It was rumored that some foolhardy sailors drank this distilled alcohol, and thus the nickname "Torpedo Juice" was given to these strong spirits.

The American Distillery became a bonded warehouse for the storing and bottling of barreled booze. Any distilling went into the war effort.

AFTER THE WAR, the distilling of spirits continued until 1961, when the largest fire in the history of Sausalito burned two of the main buildings and did $500,000 in damages to the plant.

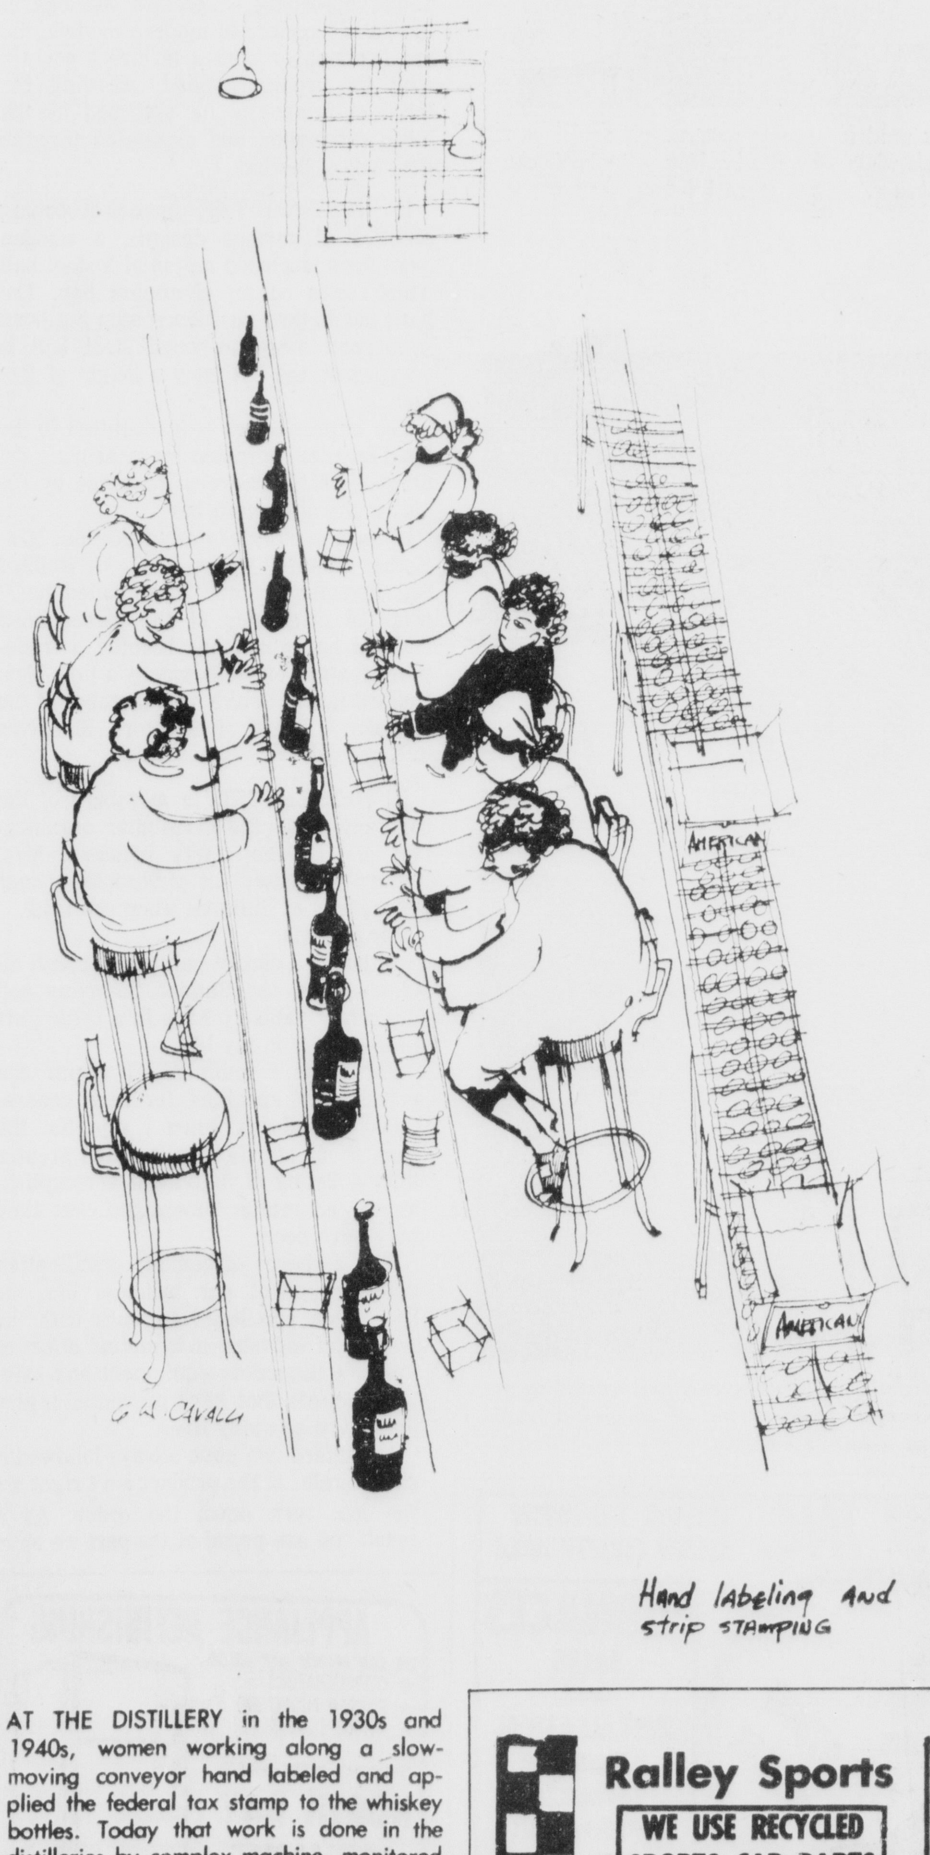
The fire put an end to the Sausalito distillery, and the American Distilling Company moved to a new facility in Union City, Calif., in 1966.

American is one of the six major distilleries in the United States today, and number one among the independents. It is a million dollar corporation with over 300 at work in New York, Pekin, Illinois and Union City.

The old distillery is just a flat 14-acre site now, the buildings torn down in 1970 for a commercial venture. Rumors have it, another apartment house development is planned.

SOMEHOW, THE landmarks disappear, but are never forgotten. The distillery had a fascination about it for those who worked there or lived in Marin County . . . the distinctive odor of fermenting grain, the marvelous maze of pipes, valves and tanks.

The drawings on these pages were done from sketches at the distillery before it was torn down, and from photos borrowed from former employees at the American Distilling Co.



AMERICAN
G.H. CAVALLI
Hand labeling and strip stamping

AT THE DISTILLERY in the 1930s and 1940s, women working along a slow-moving conveyor hand labeled and applied the federal tax stamp to the whiskey bottles. Today that work is done in the distilleries by complex machine, monitored by woman. But at American's Union City plant, there are still employed women who remember the old days when the task was performed by hand. Some recall that "it was not uncommon for an employee to simply pick up one of the bottles and take a little nip."

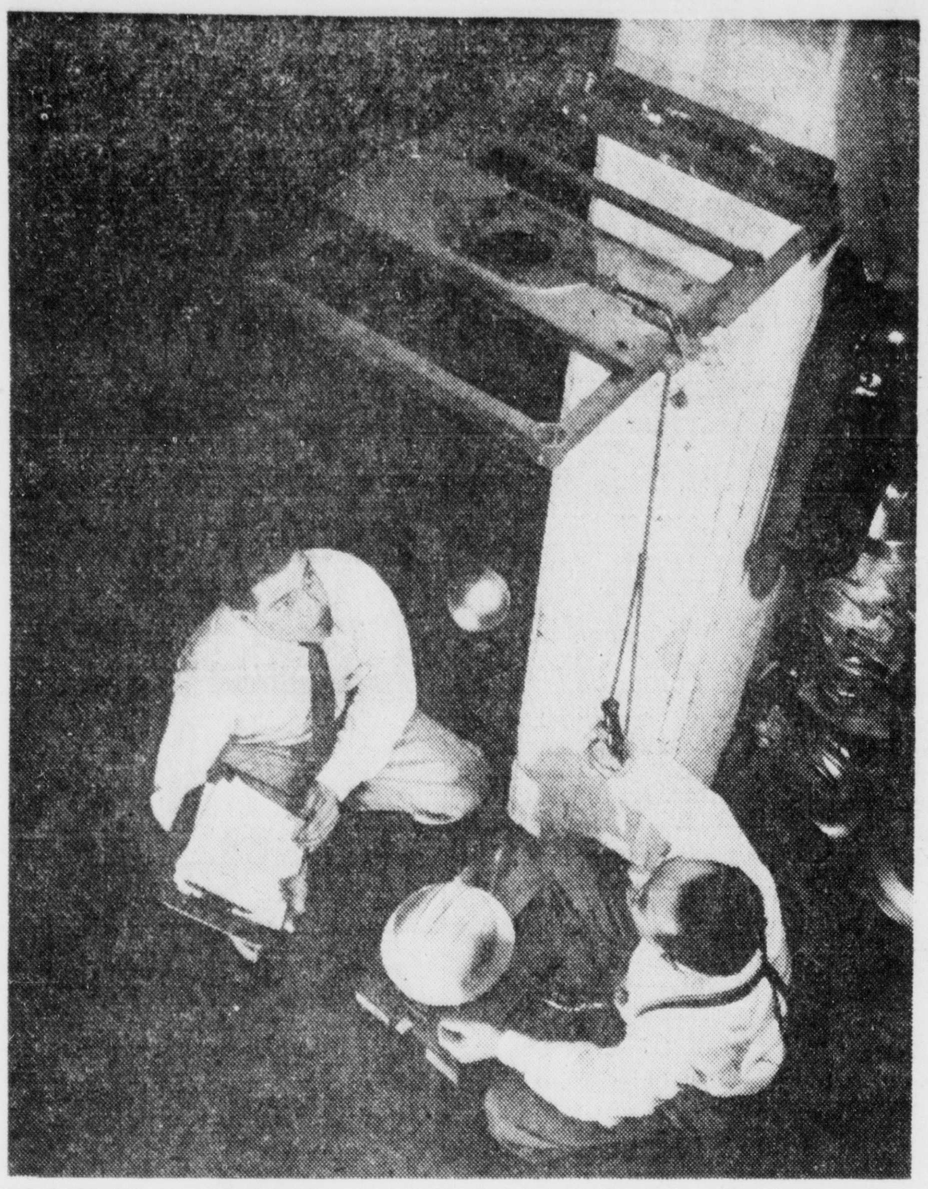
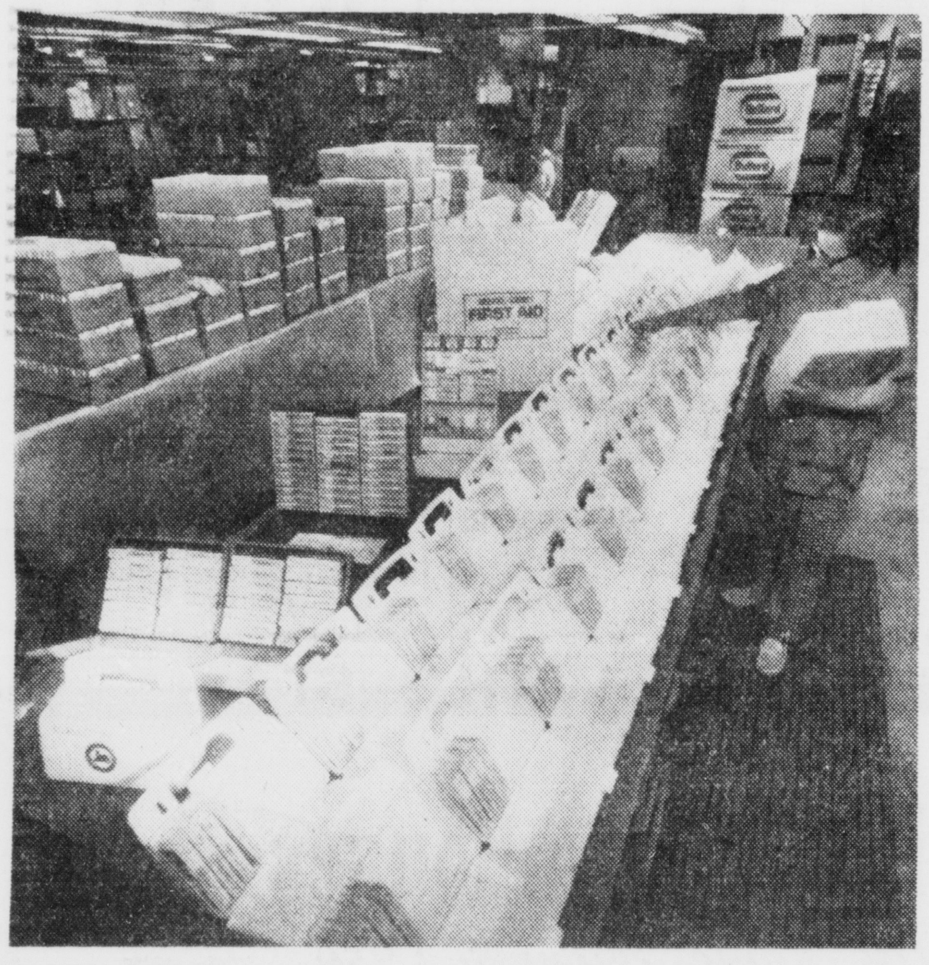
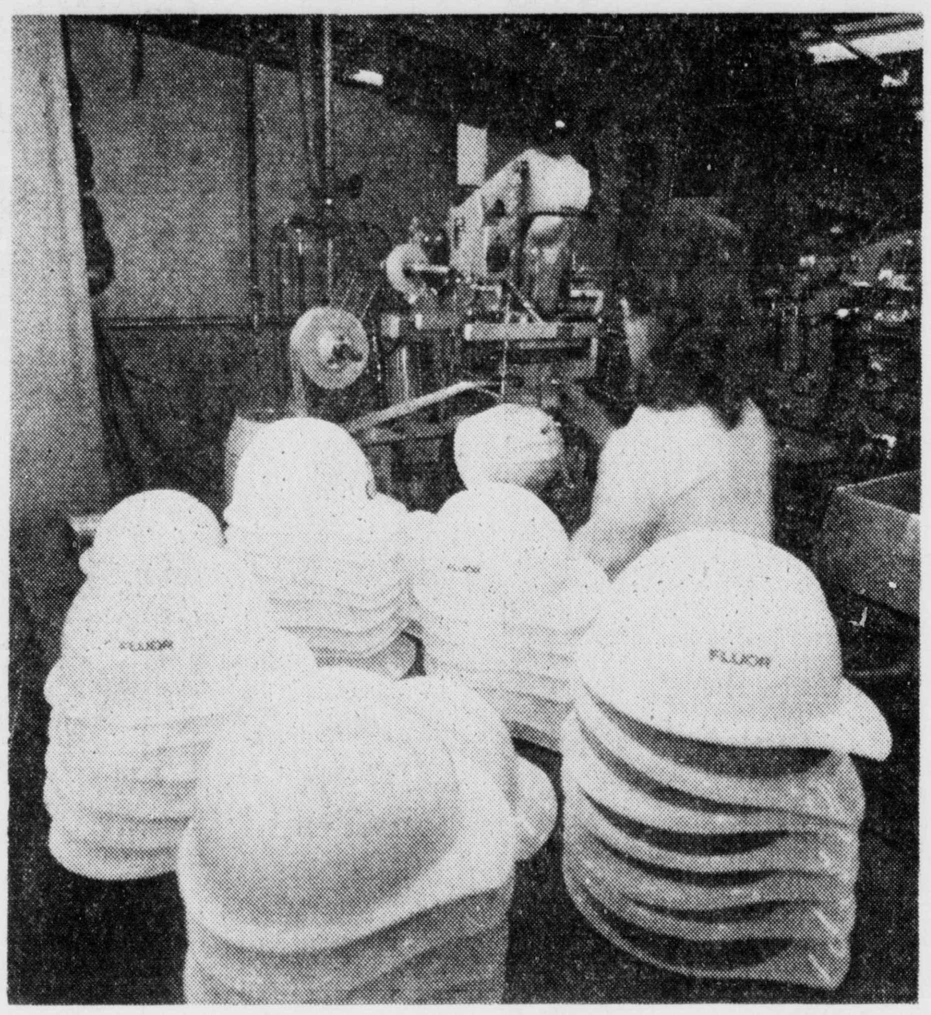
MARIN LIVING



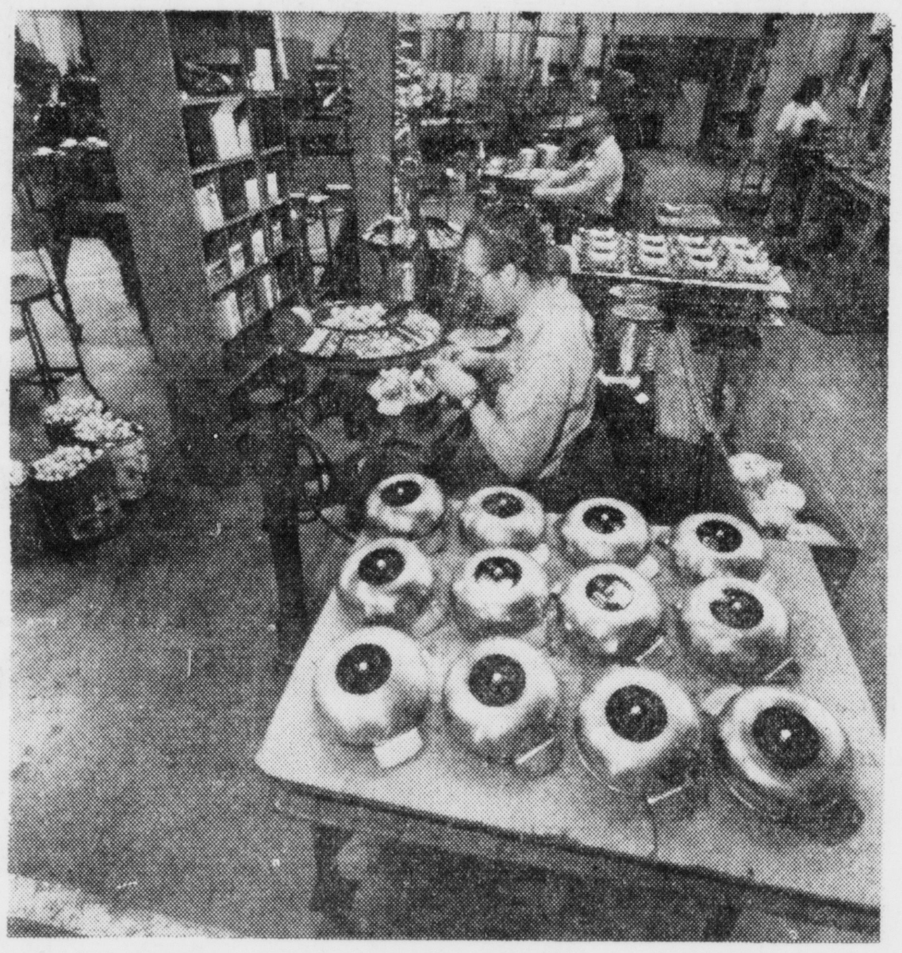
AS PART OF A series of "torture tests" to which the hard hats manufactured by the E. D. Bullard Co. in Sausalito must submit, an eight-pound steel bar is dropped from a height of five feet onto one of the head covers to determine its protective strength. The size of the dent in the hard hat tells the story.



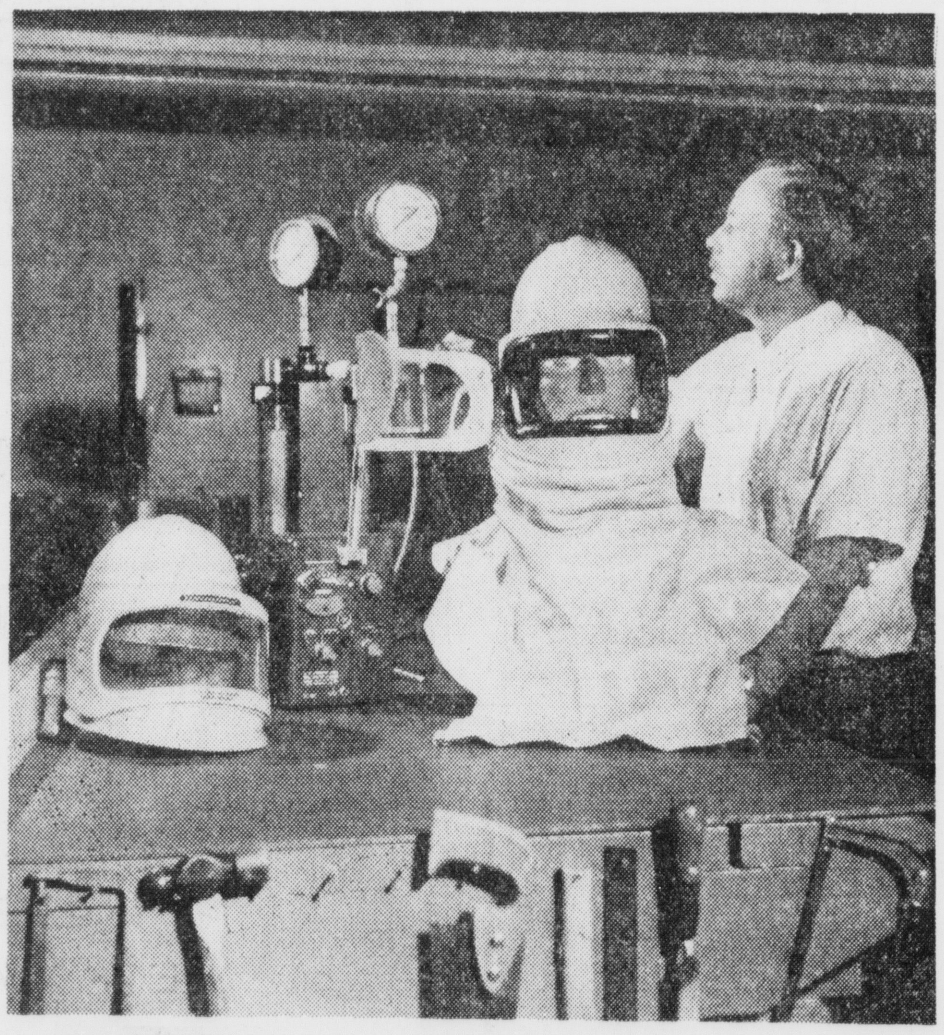
ANOTHER PRODUCT of the safety-minded E. D. Bullard Co. is an extensive line of first aid kits for industry, ranging in size from portable kits carried by individuals to large, wall-mounted units. On the assembly line at left is Willie Ashton. Closest to the camera is Madeline Lucia.



A HOT STAMPING machine on the E. D. Bullard Co. production line affixes the customer's own distinctive signature or design to that order of the famous hard hats. Here the machine is being operated by Irene Barone on an order that will go to Fluor. Nearly 300 company names and symbols are imprinted.



A LINE OF wheel-mounted mechanical alarms used for heavy construction equipment, over-the-road vehicles, etc., as warning signals when they are backing up is produced by the Bullard Company, as are electronic alarms. At work are Ed Booth, closest to camera, and Don Nehasil.



THE BULLARD COMPANY is often in the forefront in the development and marketing of new safety equipment. Here Tony Moretti observes closely a test of an air-fed hood designed for the protection of minors and other industrial workers.

forced to improvise a variety of makeshift headpieces in order to reduce their ever-present fear of head injury.

One account from the period tells of miners who had the habit of hardening cloth derby hats by dipping them in lacquer, hoping to achieve some measure of safety in the mines. The problem with these hats, as with the bronze and iron helmets of medieval times, was that any shock delivered to the hat would be almost entirely transmitted to the head of the wearer. Also, lacquered hats tended to become soft when wet, eliminating even the minimal protection which they had previously afforded.

Although Bullard's introduction of the hard-boiled hat marked the beginning of the modern era in head protection, ever since man recognized the importance of his head, he has tried to protect it. Although not conclusively established, it has been speculated that our distant ancestors may have used turtle shells to protect their crania from the clubs and stones of aggressive neighbors.

EVEN TODAY, there is a "Turtle Club" comprised of over 10,000 people who have escaped serious injury or death as the result of hard hat protection.

Until recent times, use of protective headgear was generally restricted to the military. The early Romans and their contemporaries wore distinctive styles of helmets. These were useful for separating enemies from comrades, but improved the wearer's chances of survival only slightly, as many barbarians could attest.

"It is a source of genuine gratification that throughout our business life, we have been privileged to work with the leaders of industry in a mutual effort to improve the safety equipment and safety standards that have prevented injury and saved so many lives." Esther B. Bullard.

Hard hat recognition was for a time tried in a number of companies to designate the type of work being performed — red for one type of job, blue for another, yellow for another, and so on.

NEVERTHELESS, AS ineffective as early head protection devices were, they still offered some protection, and undoubtedly gave the warrior or worker a psychological lift.

The common defect of all early hard hat models was that they failed to dissipate the force of any impact they received.

Since introducing the original hard-boiled hat in 1919, the Bullard Company has conducted extensive research to overcome this fault.

The key to the effectiveness of the modern hard-hat is a combination of improved materials and structural design in the shell of the hat, and the use of impact-absorbing suspension webbing in the hat's interior. In modern models, the hat itself never comes in direct contact with the wearer's head, allowing the force of impact to be absorbed by the inner suspension and dissipated through the shell of the hat.

IN TESTING THE impact-absorbing abilities of various designs, a wooden head form is placed on top of a steel ball which rests on an aluminum bar. The hard hat is then positioned atop the head form, and an eight-pound steel ball is dropped on the hat from a height of five feet.

The impact which is transmitted to the head form is computed by measuring the diameter of the impression made by the ball in the aluminum bar.

In the company's family tradition, Mrs. Esther Bullard, widow of E. W. Bullard Sr., inventor of the "hard boiled hat," was the originator of the three-ribbed style of hat which has become a trademark feature of the company's line. Mrs. Bullard is still active as a member of the company's board of directors. She lives in Kentfield.

IN HER LETTER to members of the company staff, the distributor organization and to the safety industry, Mrs. Bullard expressed the philosophy of four generations of Bullards when she said:

Dear Friends:

Although I cannot personally recall all of its years, the Bullard Company and the safety industry have in a large part been central in my life.

For just a moment, I claim the privilege of speaking for four generations of Bullards when I say that the sum of our satisfaction is much greater than a listing of individual accomplishments, no matter how significant they may have been.

It is a source of genuine gratification that throughout our business life, we have been privileged to work with the leaders of industry in a mutual effort to improve the safety equipment and safety standards that have prevented injury and saved so many lives.

At Bullard, we have always followed a simple rule: if the product isn't right for the job, turn down the order. As a result, we are proud of the part we have played and the products we have contributed.

Let me assure you that all of us look forward to continued participation in the safety industry that has meant so much to each generation and each individual within the Bullard organization.

Sincerely,
Esther B. Bullard

AS REFINEMENTS in the original hat design were made, the popularity of hard hats in the construction industry grew. In the late 1930s, the Golden Gate Bridge construction project became the first all hard hat construction job in history. The laborers were protected by metal-Bullard hats, descendents of the original hard-boiled version.

Metal hats soon gave way to shells made of fiberglass and various plastics. Another interesting historical note is that the first fiberglass hard hats were used on the Broadway Tunnel construction project in San Francisco in 1946.

Although the hard hat is its best known product, the Bullard Company manufacturers a complete line of safety equipment. The company's line of products is divided into five main areas: head protection, first aid, respiratory equipment reverse signal alarms and safety hooks.

Most of the products which the company markets are manufactured at its 100,000 square foot plant in Sausalito or at its 50,000 square foot facility in Cynthiana, Ky., which opened in 1972. In addition, the company also has a more limited manufacturing operation in Mexico City, producing head protection primarily.

IT IS INTERESTING to note that in 1956, when looking for a new site upon which to center its expanding operations, Edward W. Bullard said: "I've looked all over the East Bay and as far south as Sunnyvale, searching for a good location for our Company. Then I came to Marin and found the ideal situation within a few miles of San Francisco."

He then went on to berate Marinites for not selling vigorously their advantages to other prospective businesses.

In the area of first aid, Bullard assembles a comprehensive line of industrial first aid kits (a Bullard first).

Two types of oral vaccines that provide immunity to poison oak and poison ivy are also part of the first aid line and are available in local drug stores. These are especially important products since statistics show that poison oak and poison ivy are responsible for a high percentage of job absenteeism in California as well as the rest of the country.

THE FIRST AID line is rounded out by products for the treatment of various types of burns and external poisonings.

Bullard's respiratory line includes self-contained breathing and helmet systems used in sandblasting and air-purifying apparatus for many applications.

New federal and state regulations require the use of reverse signal alarms on all self-propelled vehicles used in certain construction and industrial areas. Figures show that many occupational injuries and fatalities occur as a result of vehicles moving backwards. A driver who is backing a piece of earth moving equipment, for instance, has considerably less visibility than when moving forward. Without proper warning to those behind, tragedy may result.

TO THE AVERAGE person, the sound of a downtown city bus making a turn is the sound of one of these safety warning devices.

Another major cause of worker injury gets attention from Bullard. Hooks that lift heavy and often swaying loads can be dangerous. To protect man and cargo, Bullard manufactures safety hooks with a special patented safety gate.

The E. D. Bullard Co. is presently headed by K. F. Keefe who has been directing the company since the death in 1971 of Edward W. Bullard Jr., who was the grandson of the founder and a prominent Marin civic and business leader.

Prior to joining the company, Keefe was general partner and manager of Clemco Clementina Ltd., San Francisco-based manufacturer of abrasive blasting equipment, and was also founding director of Clemco A. G., Rotterdam, Holland. He now resides in Belvedere.

THE BULLARD family tradition is being carried on by E. D. "Jed" Bullard who serves as administrative assistant to the president, and is currently studying at Harvard Graduate School of Business.

In this 75th anniversary year, the Bullard Company is helping to link two more Bay Area land masses by supplying a wide range of safety equipment to the BART construction project. What lies ahead? Perhaps legions of lunar laborers — all wearing made-by-Bullard-in-Marin hard hats.

THE BUILDING OF the Golden Gate Bridge was the first all hard hat construction job in the industry's history. All laborers — and visitors to the site — wore metal hats produced by the E. D. Bullard Co. that were improvements upon the first "hard-boiled hats" worked out by E. W. Bullard Sr. And just recently, Bullard products contributed significantly to yet another momentous Bay Region transportation program — the Bay Area Rapid Transit system.

SOME NEW READING FOR THE JUNIORS—

There are other strong contenders for the title of most photogenic animal, but our vote would have to go to the appealing sea otter.

The photographs in "The Story of Sea Otters" (Random House, $4.50) would then alone constitute sufficient reason for purchasing the book. But author William Weber Johnson, a member of the Friends of the Sea Otter, dedicated to the protection of this once endangered species, has also provided a text that tells well the story of this clever little clown of the sea — its habits, its history, its enemies (man, of course, is foremost) and its friends (here again another breed of man, the conservationist, is also in the lead).

"The Story of Sea Otters" is a good nature book that makes a strong case for the preservation of the sea otter, whether or not the charges of abalone-hogging sometimes made against him are true.

ONE OF THE sea otter's rivals as the darling of animal photographers is the giant panda. "A Book About Pandas" (Dial, $3.95) by Ruth Belov Gross is loaded with photos of these entertaining and charming creature's mugging, capering, dozing. The text is for a younger age group than the Johnson book, and much briefer, but provides some interesting information about the panda, both in the wild and in the zoo.

The Marin team of Edith Thacher Hurd and Clement Hurd is responsible for "The Mother Whale" (Little, Brown, $4.95), yet another excellent animal book. Mrs. Hurd tells simply and quite beautifully the story of the whale's life cycle, and Clement Hurd has contributed the block prints for which he is so famous, in a fetching mode of blues and greens. It is a sensitively done book that should touch small hearts and intrigue young minds.

"A B See" (McGraw-Hill, $3.95) by Lucille Ogle and Tina Thoburn, illustrations by Ralph Stobart, has its share of animals, too. But much, much else. Sized for small hands, it is an illustrated alphabet of 418 phonetically arranged sounds. It is a serious attempt — and a successful one — to introduce tykes to the fascinating world of sound and shape in letters, with bright, bright colors in the pictures to hold the children's interest. It is an original approach to the teaching of the alphabet and its use, and a promising one.

WHAT BIRD has the largest wingspread? How do gulls open clams? What bird's neck is longer than its body? These questions and 117 others are answered by Madeline Angell in "120 Questions and Answers About Birds," Bobbs-Merrill, $5.95, with glossary, bibliography and index. Grambs Miller's illustrations make this a handsome introduction to birds.

Christmas Is The Time For Carols And Great Choral Music By Masters

By WILBUR LANDREY

This is a time of carols and church choral music, and as usual this year there are some fine records looking to Christmas and the church year beyond.

George Frideric Handel's "Messiah" is traditional Christmas fare.

On the budget Seraphim label this year is a record of great choruses and arias from the late Sir Malcolm Sargent's previously available recording of the full work with the Hudchersfield Choral Society and the Royal Liverpool Philharmonic (S-60220). The solo roles are sung by soprano Elsie Morison, contralto Marjorie Thomas and tenor Richard Lewis.

A NEW AND more major project is a full recording, "Christmas Cratorio by Johann Sebastian Bach," that other great pole of Baroque music, directed by Eugen Jochum with the Bavarian Radio Symphony and chorus. Philips (6703 037 three records).

Soprano Elly Ameling, contralto Bridget Fassbaender, tenor Horst Laubenthal and bass Hermann Prey sing the solo parts. It is a fine performance.

Bach prepared the Oratorio for performance in the churches of St. Thomas and St. Nicholas of Leipzig between Christmas Day and Epiphany 1734-35.

The six cantatas which make it up were performed in varying sequence either in the morning or afternoon.

Though performed separately, they were interrelated. An oratorio was understood to represent a whole Biblical story, in this case, beginning with the birth of Christ from St Luke and ending with the adoration of the Kings from St. Matthew.

In fact, Bach recycled much of the music in his oratorio from other earlier compositions — a common practice. It hardly detracts from the magnificence of the whole.

ONE OF BACH'S greatest church compositions, perhaps his greatest choral composition, was his "Passion According to St. Matthew," written in 1729 and traditionally performed on Palm Sunday. Herbert von Karajan, directing the Winer Singverein, the Berlin Philharmonic and a magnificent cast, has recorded another version of the complete work in a sumptuous album issued by Deutsche Grammophon (DG 2711012) — four records.

A Passion, as its name implies, is the Passion of Christ set to music.

As one of the great church pieces in the repertory, there are already many recordings of the St. Matthew Passion in the current discography, but Von Karajan's is well worth the effort. The performance is flawless and the cast stellar.

Gundula Janowitz, Christa Ludwig, Dieter Fischer-Dieskau, Peter Schreier, Horst Laubenthal, Walter Berry, Anton Dakov are included.

The well-made box and richly colored textbook that comes with St. Matthew is a reminder of how much more expensively packaged than their American counterparts are the Deutsche Grammophon albums and some other European imports.

OTHERS THAT are appropriate to the season:

Benjamin Britten's Ceremony of Carols", H"Hymn of St. Cecelia" and "Missa Brevis" sung by the Kings College Choir under the direction of David Willcocks (Seraphim S-60217).

"Gregorian Chant" by the Schola Cantorum of Amsterdam Students under the direction of Wim van Gerven (Columbia M3X-3 329) — The Gregorian Chant has been the liturgical music of the Roman Catholic Church since Pope Gregory I in the Sixth Century. In the mid-1960s, the church services ceased to be conducted exclusively in Latin.

Ringo's Record— 'An Accident'

By BRUCE MEYER

Ringo Starr is in an enviable position.

As a Beatle, he can make a record any time he wants and be assured of at least moderate success. But since no one seriously expects too much from him musically, he is under far less pressure than the other three to produce every time he sets foot in a studio.

Ringo describes his latest, "Ringo" (Apple Swal 3413), as an 'accident album.' So give him a high mark for honesty, at least.

It all started last May, when Ringo was asked to appear with Harry Nilsson at the Grammy show in Nashville. He agreed, but decided that as long as he was coming to the U.S., he would "just do some tracks and see what we get."

Producer Richard Perry was contacted, and the accident album was on its way.

Most of the recording was done in Los Angeles, and before it was through, John, Paul and George, Nilsson, The Band, T. Rex, Marc Bolan, Nicky Hopkins and a variety of other musical notables took part.

"Ringo" is not, as a couple of over-enthusiastic reporters described last summer, a distinguished Beatles album. Though all four appear in the album, they are on different tracks, recorded at different times, in different places.

"Ringo" is diverse, to say the least. It is, in fact, so diverse that it teeters on the brink of falling completely apart. Ringo's presence is just about the only thread that provides any continuity; but it is, after all, his name that's on the cover.

Still, it's a likeable album, in a beer-and-pretzels sort of way.

Story Of A Flying Daredevil

INTO THE WIND: The Story of Max Conrad, by Sally Buegeleisen; Random House, 261 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by John D. Yates.

Max Conrad walked into a propeller while trying to save one of his flying students from doing the same thing. The propeller blade crushed part of his skull and sliced into his brain. Amazingly, he survived after all had given up hope for his survival and he had received the last sacrament. For a number of years thereafter he found great difficulty in writing, and if upset was quite incapable of speech, but the injury to his brain never for one moment affected his ability to fly.

This was by no means the only set back to his flying career — multiple crashes, the death of his brother and a number of students while flying a Conrad training plane, a disastrous fire that consumed all his planes and hangars; but all this only increased his involvement in his chosen career. This might sound like an inspirational tract — a study in commitment, or how to rise above crushing misfortune — but it is not meant to be. It just happens to be the life of Conrad as recorded by an admirer and fellow flyer, Sally Buegeleisen.

Max Conrad has undoubtedly logged more time in the air than any other pilot in the history of aviation — more than 50,000 hours — always in light planes and usually alone. In spite of a marriage and a large family his life has essentially been solitary. Devoted to his wife and children, he nonetheless put an ocean between them in his effort to support them in the only way he knew.

In 1954 he flew solo, non-stop, from New York to Paris, to deliver a small plane and to see his family. He was the first man to make that flight since Charles Lindbergh. Out of this he created a unique carrer.

He has ferried more than 150 light planes across the Atlantic and at least 30 over the Pacific. These deliveries in turn led him to extend his abilities to incredible limits in a bid for world records. He once flew alone in a single engine plane from Casablanca to Los Angeles, staying aloft for 58 hours and 38 minutes.

Conrad's life in flying has literally spanned the history of aviation. From the days of barnstorming with machines held together with bailing wire, when landing and taking-off were in themselves considerable accomplishments, and when each plane seemed to have a personality of its own, to the present very impersonal era.

BROWSING BOOKMAN

"The Trailblazers" is another entry in Time-Life's handsome The Old West series, distinguished by their handsome imitation leather covers, their profusion of well-reproduced illustrations and their tasteful design.

Some historians have quarreled with the texts, claiming the series has preferred the romantic over reality in recounting the events and personalities of the frontier. No doubt, freelance writer Bil Gilbert, responsible for this book, will face such challenges. John C. Fremont admirers, for instance, will claim "foul" for the manner in which Gilbert treats that colorful figure. Certainly, Fremont emerges as something less than heroic.

But Gilbert's portrayals of the likes of Joe Walker, Kit Carson, Jedediah Smith, Thomas Nuttall, John James Audubon, Lewis and Clark, Zenas Leonard, John Wesley Powell and George Montague Wheeler and their exploits are the generally accepted ones, and sprightly told. And half the fun of reading western history is in "arguing" with the historian.

At any rate, it's a handsome, entertaining gift book for the student of the time when America first probed, then ventured and finally pushed West. Price $9.95.

HERBERT WITT of Mill Valley, San Francisco regional audit director, U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, and University of California extension teacher, is the co-author with Profs. Victor Brink of Columbia University and James Cashin of Hofstra University, of "Modern Internal Auditing," published by Ronald Press. It explores the methods available to government and non-profit organizations for scorekeeping to determine the efficiency and economy of management, with emphasis upon the role of the internal auditor.

He Called 'Em As He Saw Them

WILL ROGERS, THE Man and His Times, by Richard M. Ketchum; American Heritage, 398 pages, $12.95. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

Unquestionably, Will Rogers was the best-loved American of this century; yet there has never been a good biography of him — until now. Richard M. Ketchum of the American Heritage staff has filled the void with "Will Rogers, the Man and His Times."

Ketchum starts the story with the Cherokee Indians in the Southeast, following them over the "Trail of Tears" when the government forced them out of their ancestral lands and resettled them in Indian Territory. Among those who moved west ahead of the forced migration were Robert Rogers and his wife, Sallie Vann, Will Rogers' grandparents — both of whom, like so many of the Cherokees, were of mixed white and Indian blood.

Will Rogers was born in Indian Territory, where his father, Clement Vann Rogers, was a big man in the Cooweescoowee country and served in the senate of the Cherokee Nation, which had its own self-government until 1898. The Claremore Progress called him 'Clem Rogers, the Oologah wheat king." In the period of transition from Indian self-rule to Okalhoma statehood, Will grew up on his father's vast lands —a boy who loved to rope and hated to go to school.

It seems an unlikely background for the most completely American humorist since Mark Twain. And a youth spent traveling with Wild West shows and appearing on Broadway with a trick roping act appears still more unlikely training to become the nation's most-quoted commentator on politics and current affairs, with his daily telegram appearing on front pages of hundreds of newspapers. But that was Will Rogers' youth.

No one who was around in the late '20s, and early '30s needs to be told what Will Rogers became. Those few who did not read his daily column in the newspapers saw some of the many movies in which he starred, or heard him on the radio. He died too soon for television; it would have been his perfect medium.

With erratic spelling, capitalization and punctuation (which editors usually had sense enough to leave unchanged), Will in his daily column spoofed the great and spoke for the common man. Though he gained fame initially as comedian and humorist, his pungent comments were recognized as containing more wisdom than the pompous pronouncements of politicians or the labored analyses of political "experts." Will called 'em as he saw 'em, almost invariably with good humor — and he saw 'em pretty clearly.

In chapter headings, marginal notes, special page groupings, and sprinkled throughout the text, Ketchum's book reprints dozens of Will's little gems. And though they were as current as the day's news — indeed, part of it — many of them strike home today as truly as when he wrote them:

"This Country right now is operating on a Dollar down and a Dollar a Week. It ain't Taxes that is hurting this Country; it's Interest."

"A holding company is a thing where you hand an accomplice the goods while the policeman searches you."

"The tariff is an instrument invented for the benefit of those who make to be used against those who buy. As there is more buys than there is makes, it is a document of the minority, but what a minority!"

"Politics ain't worrying this country one tenth as much as parking space."

"When you get into trouble five thousand miles from home you've got to have been looking for it."

"We will stop those Chinese from fighting among themselves if we have to kill them to do it."

"The Democrats are having a lot of fun exposing the Republican campaign contributions, but they would have a lot more fun if they knew where they could lay their hands on some of it themselves for next November."

And on stock market speculation: "We are continually buying something that we never get, from a man that never had it."

Will loved to fly, and constantly needled the government to build up Army and Navy air forces and do more to encourage civilian aviation. But it was on a flight that he met death, with famed around-the-world pilot Wiley Post, "on Point Barrow, Alaska — above the Arctic Circle — on Aug. 15, 1935.

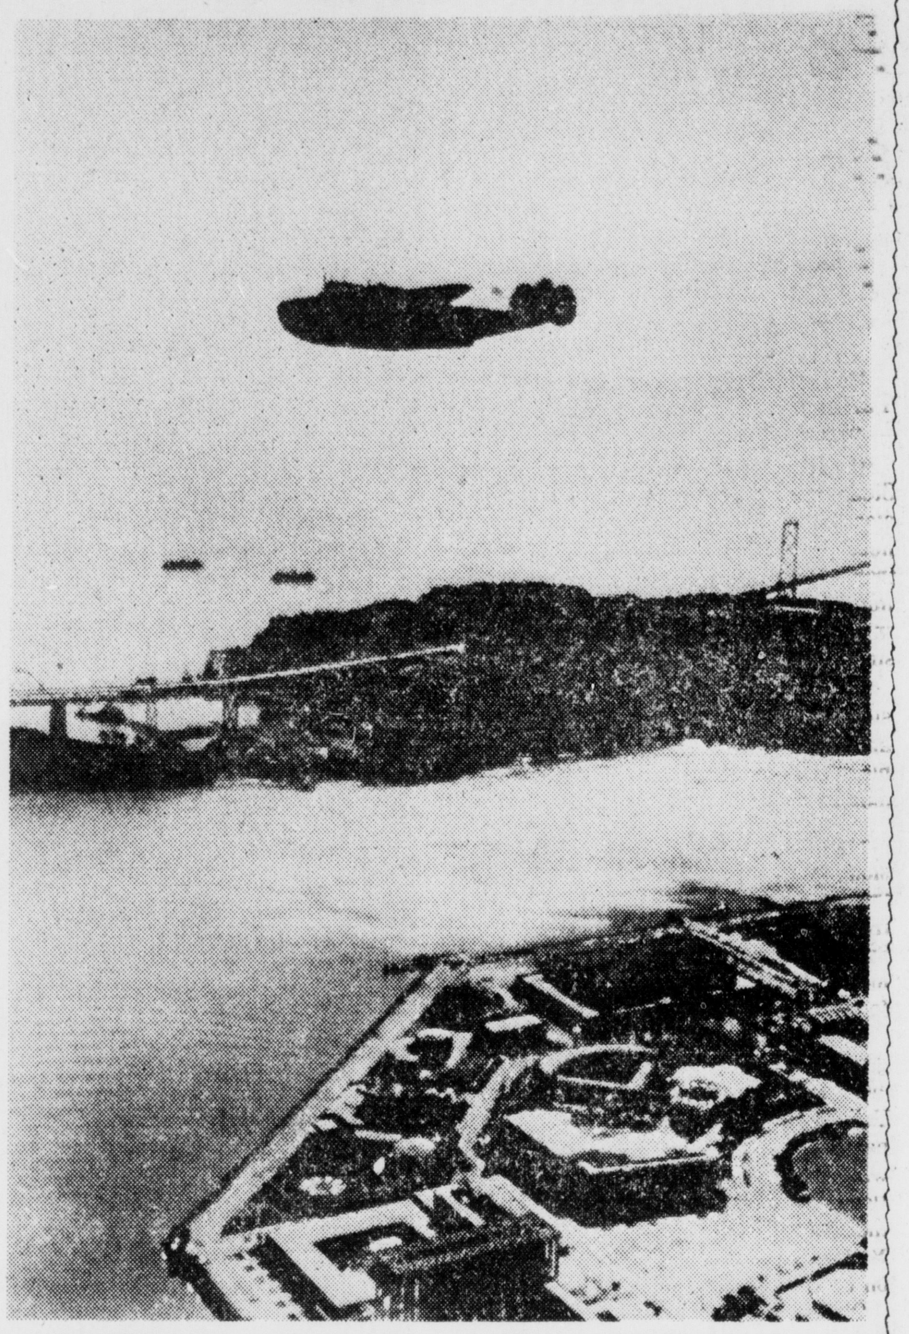
As Ketchum writes:

"Perhaps not since the death of Abraham Lincoln had a tragedy touched so many Americans as did the loss of Will Rogers and Wiley Post. When the story appeared in the newspapers it overshadowed everything that was going on in the world."

Of the thousands of tributes printed after the tragedy, perhaps the best was a brief one by singer John McCormack, Will Rogers' longtime friend: "A smile has disappeared from the lips of America and her eyes are now suffused with tears." We shall not look upon his like again."

Richard M. Ketchum and American Heritage have produced a beautiful biography — almost good enough for its subject.

THE YEARS OF THE FAIR



A PAN AMERICAN flying boat enroute to the Orient soars over Treasure Island, left, the $3,800,000 man-made island in the San Francisco Bay. It was the 1930s. The United States was in the throes of the depression as Europe stood on the brink of World War II when the Bay Area embarked on the biggest building spree in its history. The entire story unfolds in Richard Reinhardt's amusing and poignant illustrated history "Treasure Island: San Francisco's Exposition Years" (The Scrimshaw Press, 169 pages, $12.95). Fantastic photographs recreate downtown San Francisco during the depression; building of two of the longest spans in the world — the 77-million-dollar San Francisco-Oakland Bay and 35-million-dollar Golden Gate bridges, opened in November, 1936 and May, 1937, respectively. To celebrate their completion Treasure Island was built to hold the 1939-1940 Golden Gate International Exposition, Northern California's last world's fair. It all comes alive again — the crowds milling around the Exposition's Portals of the Pacific, the Tower of Sun, Billy Rose's Aquacade and even Willie Vocalite, the Westinghouse robot — as you read Reinhardt's nostalgic book.

EARTH WATCH: NOTES ON A RESTLESS PLANET by Jean and Daniel Shepard; Doubleday, 238 pages, $8.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

That this planet upon which we exist so precariously is a restless one, seething with forces seemingly beyond mankind's control, cannot be doubted. Earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, tidal waves, fierce windstorms, mutations of nature all mock man's self-image of omnipotent supremacy over his environment.

This image has been subjected to such especially serious shocks and doubts of late.

In September, 1968, the Smithsonian Institution established the Center for Short-Lived Phenomena, headquartered in Cambridge, Mass., to coordinate information channeled through 2,700 trained observers in 143 countries about sudden, unpredictable environmental changes.

It is from the records of this center that writers Jean and Daniel Shepard have gleaned the material for their book, "Earth Watch."

As does the center, the Shepards divide their coverage into four categories: Earth Science Events, Biological Science Events, Astrophysical Events and Urgent Anthropological Events.

The readers' first reaction is one of surprise at the large number of major upsets that have occurred in the very short time the center has maintained its vigil: islands born of volcanic actions, glacial-created floods, temblors, slides, insect invasions, mass migrations, sealife and animal plagues, oil spill disasters, epidemics, final extinctions of species, meteorites, new discoveries about very old peoples, some long passed from the scene, some still existing in isolation.

The pieces vary greatly in length and in the detail of their descriptions. And the reactions of the reader will vary, too, according to his or her specific interests.

Some of the best and most graphic reports concern the burial of the Peruvian city of Yungay by the great Huascaran ice falls of 1970, the Pozzuoli eruption in Italy in 1970, the Nicaraguan earthquake of 1972, the eruption of Helgafell in Iceland in 1973, Australia's Victorian mouse plague of 1969, Appalachia's mass squirrel migration of 1968, a round-up of oil spill disasters, the red tide off New England of 1972, Mauritania's Kiffa Meteorite of 1970, the 1971 discovery of the Tasaday forest people in the Philippines, and the 1968-71 studies of the Akarijo Indians on Surinam.

There are illustrations, including color plates, and a final chronological tabulation of short-lived phenomena that have occurred since 1968.

In their introduction, however, the co-authors point out that mankind has brought a great deal of the misfortune it blames on natural causes down upon its own heads: "Much of the restlessness of the planet stems from the loss of innocence with respect to our part in altering certain natural processes, and from the conflict between the awareness that we can check the abuse of our environment and the unwillingness to do so."

They append this warning: "If man's demands on earth's resources are so great and his contribution to their replenishment so negligible that he is a liability to both himself and his habitat, there is a remedy. It is the same one which his planet administered in ages past to the great reptiles and other life forms that lacked the ability to sustain themselves in the environment into which they had been born."

In this time of pollution, resource shortages, wars, population congestion, political immorality, etc., that warning seems to hold a stark, personal urgency for us all.

SLEUTHS & SUSPENSE

UNKNOWN MISSION by John Creasey; McKay-Washburn, 256 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

This is early John Creasey, written in 1940, and now first published in the United States.

As spy fiction of more than 30 years ago, it has a "campy" E. Phillips Oppenheim flavor. And yet, within the framework of its time, it was well done, and remains great fun to read.

In the opening months of World War II British agent Bruce Murdoch and his pretty aide, Mary Dell, are assigned to the dangerous mission of recovering some stolen government papers that are otherwise bound for Berlin and Adolf Hitler. The deadly game begins in a rural British inn, and moves to a fictitious neutral Scandinavian nation where Bruce, Mary and their confederates are pitted aginst assorted "baddies" and where they must work against time to prevent the innocent Scandinavian state from being drawn into the cauldron of war.

STRYCHNINE

It is part of a series of World War II "secret agent stories" done by Creasey under the pen-name Norman Deane, and full of action, ploys and counter-ploys.

Our Biggest Park Is At Its Best In The Winter

The setting is Yellowstone National Park in the most dazzling of its seasons — winter.

It's an almost eerie winter scene. Steam rises hundreds of feet into a crisp clear sky. Bison sway their massive heads from side to side, brushing snow from deep buried grass. It's quiet. Millions of pines and firs dressed in tons of snow dampen the sounds of snowcoaches, snowmobiles and ski tourers.

Now, in the second year of Yellowstone's second century, the excitement and beauty of the snow season is available to visitors through expanded services, lodging and snowtime activities.

SKI TOURS AND snowcoach excursions, snowshoe hikes and snowmobile trips in the heart of the park originate from the newly expanded Old Faithful Snow Lodge and Cabins, a winter hostel located in the heart of the park near famous Old Faithful Geyser.

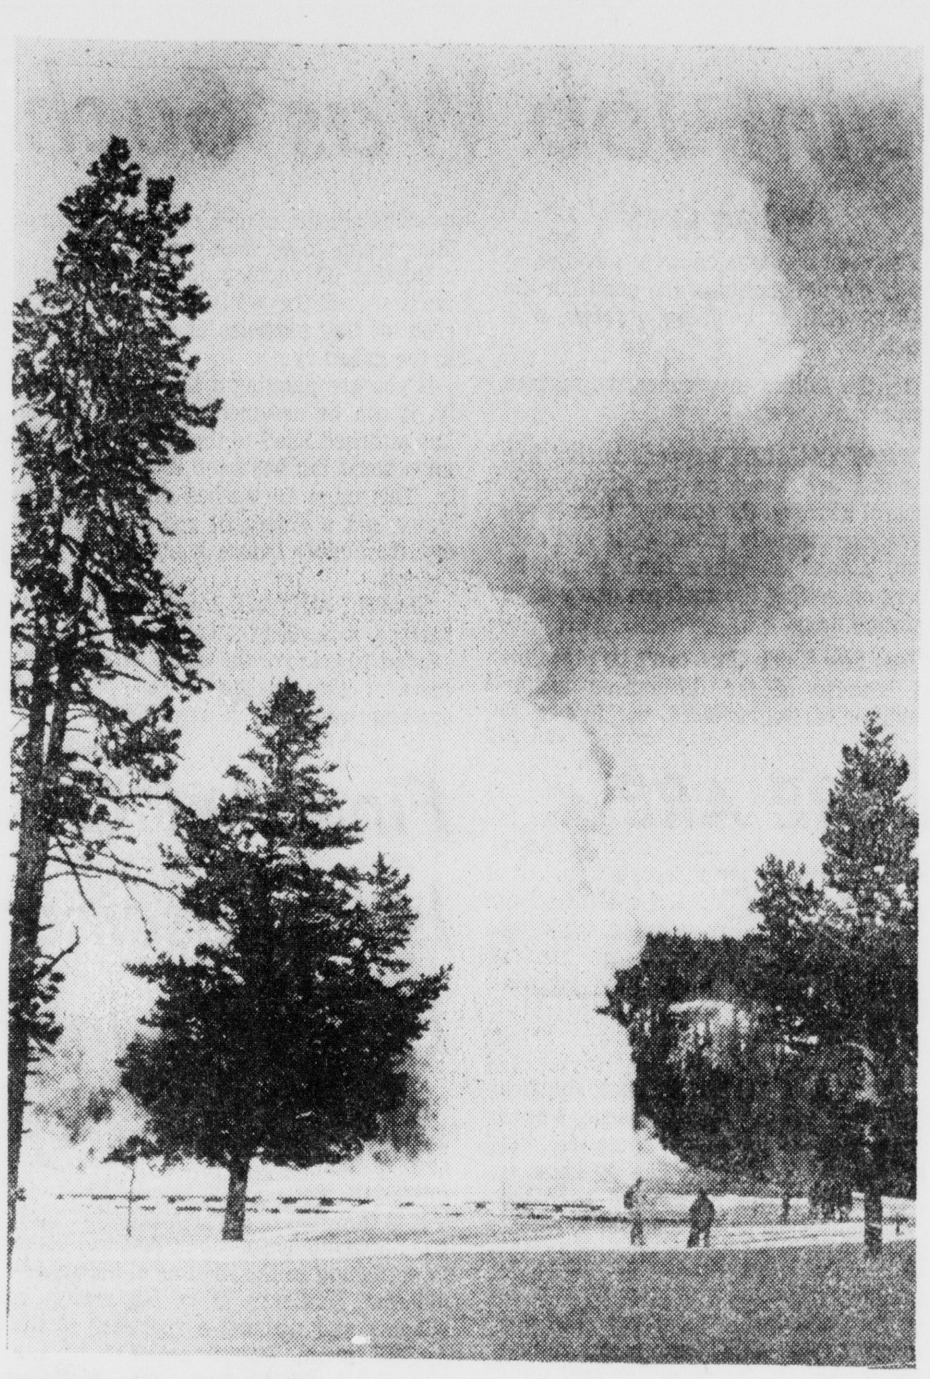
Snowcoach expeditions via 10-passenger, enclosed and heated, over-snow vehicles explore the white winter wonders of Yellowstone country with stops at geyser basins and picture-taking pauses beside wintering wildlife. One day-long expedition takes adventurous snow travelers to the spectacular "Grand Canyon" of the Yellowstone River with a pause for lunch on the canyon rim.

Other snowcoach expeditions ferry travelers from three park entrances at the North, West and South gates to Old Faithful Snow Lodge and Cabins. Geyser basins and wildlife provide enroute entertainment.

THE WILDLIFE show in America's largest national park and wildlife sanctuary is especially impressive in winter.

Buffalo, elk, moose, deer and big horn sheep graze near the trails as winter snows drive animals to lower feeding elevations. Waterfowl rest on streams warmed by thermal springs and geysers. Canada geese reside here year round and the rare and beautiful trumpeter swans may be found gliding in peace and safety.

Yellowstone's winterscapes are a photographer's Utopia. Contrasting colors provide the perfect background for photography. Animals — the park's spontaneous actors — provide close-ups of nature for both amateur and professional camera clickers.



FOR THOSE WISE ENOUGH to plan their visits for the winter, Yellowstone National Park's world famous geysers put on a special spectacular, shooting their white clouds of steam hundreds of feet into the cold, crisp, clean air.

MANY WINTER visitors bring their own snowmobiles or rent them at gate communities while others choose to see the park via the big heated snowcoaches.

Snowmobiles are required to travel the park's many miles of snow-covered roads, which are groomed for easy travel. Snowmobile gas and oil, along with minor repairs, are available at Old Faithful Snow Lodge and Cabins.

To help winter visitors better enjoy Yellowstone's winter wonderland, Yellowstone Park Co. has combined favorite snow activities with transportation and lodging in eight pre-planned vacation packages that range from three days and two nights to eight days and seven nights in duration. Included are ski-touring and snowmobile expeditions and a vacation adventure that combines downhill skiing on Jackson Hole's famous slopes with snow fun in Yellowstone.

Details of the Yellowstone winter vacation packages are available from travel agents or may be obtained along with a brochure and other information about the park by writing Wendy Winter, Yellowstone Park Company, Room 912, Yellowstone National Park, Wyo., 82190.

Christmas In Canada Is Gala Occasion

TRAVEL PAGE

Christmas in Canada is a potpourri of customs reflecting the unique personalities of the provinces which make up the Canadian mosaic.

The Pacific Coast is particularly Christmas-oriented.

Imagine a Carol Ship silhouetted in lights, bearing a Christmas tree at the masthead and carrying bell-ringers and children's choirs. Followed by a flotilla of brilliantly lit fire boats, tugs, fishing boats and private yachts, it leads the Yuletide fleet that welcomes inbound ships and sends a message of goodwill echoing across the dark waters to crowds waiting around huge bonfires on the shore.

THIS DELIGHTFUL event is held every year on the evenings during the week before Christmas in the harbor of the cosmopolitan Pacific city of Vancouver.

The unique Carol Ship, like a gigantic Christmas parcel glowing with lights, annually draws huge crowds of visitors from all over British Columbia and the western U.S.

Windows along Vancouver's Robson Street (often called Robson strasse), crammed with ethnic delights, exotic gifts and pungent culinary masterpieces, heighten the festive flavor of this glamorous Canadian city.

AT THE WORLD-famous Empress Hotel in Victoria on Vancouver Island, the "Spirit of Christmas Past" stalks the halls as costumed troubadours serenade guests with madrigals. And, once again, the ancient and honorable procession of the Boar's Head wends its traditional way accompanied by liveried lackies, cheeky page boys and the inevitable jester in age-old motley.

The Elizabethan custom of tossing holly springs on a blazing Yule log to symbolize the erasing of last year's mistakes and indiscretions still takes place at the hotel.

Other hotels in the Victoria and Vancouver areas also introduce the Elizabethan note with carolers, boars' heads, surprise gifts, special entertainment for children and menus printed on scrolls tied with gay ribbons. Indeed, the hotels have created such a jolly, old-time Christmas atmosphere that families which traditionally stay home on Christmas now eat out.

FOR THIS REASON, it is an absolute must to make your Vancouver and Victoria Christmas dinner reservations well in advance to get in on all the fun.

Yuletime ski buffs are well catered for in the Vancouver area at Grouse Mountain, Mount Seymour and Whistler Mountain in Garibaldi Park (only 70 miles from the city). Special interdenominational skiers' services are held on the valley floor at Whistler in a beautiful A-frame church, built with funds contributed by the skiers.

In Alberta's Rocky Mountains, Banff Springs Hotel and Jasper Park Lodge have special Christmas programs. An Olde English Christmas dinner and Boar's Head ceremonial procession are scheduled for the Banff Springs.

BOTH RESORTS feature a visit by Santa and special children's activities as well as an exciting variety of winter fun: tobogganing, skating, skiing and snowshoeing. Jasper Park Lodge guests can participate in sleigh rides to massive open-air fireplaces for winter barbecues. Carol singing, Christmas and New Year's parties are also featured.

The Christmas season in Toronto got off to a spectacular start in mid-November with the mile-long Santa Claus parade, one of the largest anywhere.

The simple pleasures of the pioneer Canadian Christmas are revived through Dec. 23 at Toronto's Mackenzie House, former mid-19th Century home of the city's first mayor. Decorations are traditional — paper chains, rosettes, candles and other trimmings adorn mantles, archways and staircases.

THE "KISSING Bough," forerunner of the Christmas tree in England, glows with candles and gay home-made objects to delight young and old. The nostalgic aroma of fresh evergreens and cracking wood fires completes the festive picture.

In the basement, hospitable Toronto ladies in period costume prepare cookies and fruit loaves on a wood-burning range. Cranberry punch and piping hot mulled cider are served to visitors.

In French-speaking Quebec, Christmas is a deeply religious event, the most colorful and memorable in the entire year.

FESTIVITIES ARE held in the evening, and are centered on the "reveillon," or Christmas banquet. Its preparation starts weeks and sometimes months in advance, for it is a genuine family reunion and many family members are invited. It is not unusual to invite as many as 30 or 40 relatives to such a party.

The basic principle of the reveillon is that the quality and quantity of food, wine and delicacies must surpass whatever is consumed on other less important holidays.

The feasting commences around 2 or 3 a.m., after a special Midnight Mass and the gift giving around the Christmas tree. It can last until the first rays of dawn. There are countless dishes, all served to the accompaniment of witty conversation, gay laughter, and boisterous singing.

A WIDE VARIETY of home-made and imported wines are served in generous quantities to young and old.

Among the smaller ethnic groups, Canadians whose origins go back to the Ukraine, Poland and other parts of eastern Europe, the custom of spreading a thin layer of straw under the cloth on the Christmas table as a reminder of the stable where Christ was born is still retained. Straw is often strewn under the table and candies and nuts are hidden in it for the children.

In many Canadian churches and homes, the most important and best loved decoration is the creche, or crib, a realistic miniature tableau of the Nativity.

OTHER GROUPS which hold their main celebrations on Christmas Eve serve a distinctive type of food on this occasion. For example, baked carp is a traditional dish in families whose ancestors were Czechoslovakian or Austrian. Codfish, goose and a special kind of rice pudding form a part of the Christmas fare among Scandinavians. In the pudding is an almond, and it is believed that whoever gets the almond is sure to have his wish fulfilled.

Among Estonians the Christmas meal often centers around roast suckling pig rolled in cabbage, cooked in the oven and served with vegetables and sour cream.

In Newfoundland, Canada's island province in the Atlantic, children and adults dress up in odd costumes, usually old clothes like grandma's night-gown or dad's old Stanfields (old fashioned "long-John" winter underwear). Faces are covered with veils, some with Halloween-type masks.

THESE "MUMMERS," as they are called, go from door to door in groups of two to ten. Disguising their voices, they ask to be let in to perform for the householders. The musician of the group plays on a pocket comb covered with cigarette paper while his companions sing.

The mummers are rewarded with candy and Christmas cake. The children are offered a drink made from a mixture of water and thick, sweet syrup while adult mummers are served homemade blueberry and raspberry wines.

This is the joy of Christmas in Canada —where Elizabethan and 17th Century French rituals, colorful ethnic customs and honored pioneer traditions mingle in celebration of the holiday season.

Swiss Tighten Check On Keys

A new system to prevent unauthorized people from taking hotel keys from lobby reception areas has been introduced in Switzerland and already installed in many establishments.

Replacing the old fashioned key hooks is an electronic key bank which gives each guest a room key and a "receipt key," much like the one a person receives when renting a box in a bank vault. Only a guest with a receipt key can get the one for his room without setting off an alarm.

Not All The Red Tape Is Gone From Travel

By MURRAY J. BROWN

A valid U.S. passport is usually all the American tourist needs these days to visit most countries in Western Europe and the Western Hemisphere.

Greece, Turkey and the Scandinavian countires also have eliminated much of the red tape for Americans traveling for pleasure.

But those heading for Eastern Europe, Arica and Asia will find visas, health records and other documents may still be necessary to gain entry.

A VISA IS official approval by a government for the admission, stay and travel within the borders of a country by citizens of other nations. Visas usually are stamped in the passport and are valid for a specified number of entries and period of time.

Some countries issue them free; others charge a fee. For instance, Japan grants visas valid for up to four years without charge while a visa to the African state of Mali valid for 15 days costs $8.

Requirements vary but generally the American must present a valid U.S. passport and an International Certificate of Vaccination, with the completed application and photographs and fees when necessary. Other documents could include proof of onward passage, proof of sufficient funds, and, in the case of the African state of Burundi, proof of the applicant's good character from his hometown police department.

PREPAID TRAVEL arrangements are required by the Soviet Union and other Communist countries in Eastern Europe. All but Bulgaria require visitors to possess visas. Romania grants them free, the USSR charges $2 for postage. Poland collects $5.50 but an American citizen visiting relatives pays $14.50.

All countries in Africa require visas, with the exception of the Central Arican Republic, Morocco and Tunisia.

Visas also are necessary for American visitors to Egypt, Libya, Lebanon, Syria and Jordan. Libya demands they be written in Arabic. No visa is required for U.S. citizens visiting Israel — they are granted free on arrival.

American tourists to Central and South America generally require a passport or other proof of nationality and-or a tourist or transit card. The few that still demand visas grant them free of charge.

TOURIST AND transit cards may be obtained at foreign consulates and other governmental agencies in the United States or from airlines and steamship lines before departure, although some may be obtained at ports of entry. Some of the countries charge a fee while others — including Mexico — do not.

Native-born U.S. citizens need only some form of identification to enter Canada although immigration officers on both sides rarely ask for such proof.

Bermuda and most of the islands in the West Indies also have done away with practically all the old formalities. U.S. citizens now usually need only proof of nationality and outbound transportation.

MOST VISAS must be obtained before departure from the United States although some countries will issue them at border posts and other points of entry or at consular offices overseas.

Information on whether visas are needed can be obtained from government tourist offices, travel agencies, airlines and shipping companies.

In the United States, visas can be secured from foreign diplomatic missions in Washington, D.C., or other cities. If mail services are employed, use registered mail and include a self-addressed envelope with enough stamps for return the same way.

If more than one country is involved, the process will have to be repeated. Allow at least one week to 10 days in each case if the mails have to be used. If hand-delivered, figure on at least two days.

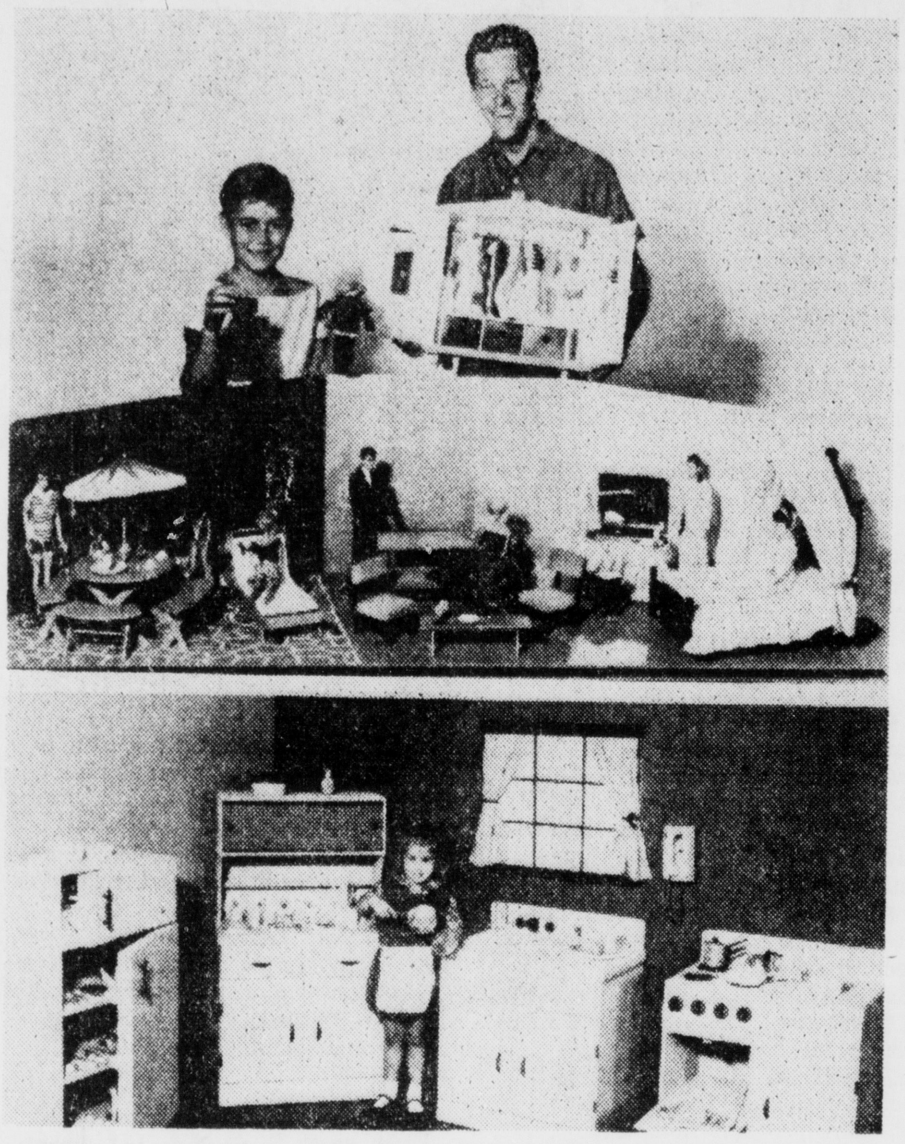
Here's The Reason Why That Paint Job Was Such A Failure

PLAYTHINGS FOR YOUR LITTLE ANGEL



ANY LITTLE GIRL gets a special joy out of something her daddy built for her with his own hands. Here are a couple of ideas, out of Steve Ellingson's treasury of patterns and plans. At top, actor Tom Kennedy and Claudia Dehring show you settings of furniture scaled to fit the popular 11½-inch tall fashion model dolls. Included are patio, living room and bedroom sets plus tote-about wardrobe and backrop. It's pattern number 361, costing $1. Just trace the pattern parts onto wood, saw them out and assemble. Scrap wood is all you need. All very simple. In bottom photo is a child-size kitchen with all the appliances that mother uses. The Kiddy Kitchen is perfect for the playhouse or playroom. The refrigerator has two doors, freezer compartment and shelves — just like the real thing. The dutch cabinet has open-grooved shelves for displaying dishes, and drawers for dinnerware and silver. The sink is equipped with plastic dishpan and taps, while the range has four simulated burners and an oven. The set is almost as much fun for dad to built as it is for small daughter to enjoy afterwards. It is pattern 363, and costs $2. Send your orders and checks to Steve Ellingson, Independent-Journal pattern department, Post Office Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif., 91409. Include your zip code number.

The most common cause of a bad paint job is not the quality of the paint nor the lack of skill in handling a roller or a brush.

It's the failure to prepare the surface properly.

WHAT USUALLY happens is that five minutes are spent on the preparation, several hours on the painting. Unless you have exceptionally clean walls and ceilings, almost as much time should be spent on getting the surfaces ready as in painting them.

Just how much time can't be pinpointed because of the differences in the condition of the surfaces, but five or 10 minutes are not enough even when everything seems to be visibly clean.

Dusting or vacuuming is an absolute must to rid the walls and ceiling of a room of tiny particles of dirt not visible to the naked eye.

If you are painting a kitchen, especially, it can be assumed that some grease has attached itself to the surfaces even if an exhaust fan has been used periodically. This must be washed off with warm water and a detergent and permitted to dry thoroughly before going ahead with the job.

SINCE PAINT will not cling to a glossy surface, it is vital that all glossy spots be sanded to remove the shine. When all or most of the surface is glossy — and sanding would be a real task — you should apply a coat of preparation liquid designed especially for this purpose.

Whether you have plaster or gypsum board walls, there may be cracks, holes or other openings that should be repaired before any paint is applied. Use patching plaster for these repairs and sand down the patch level with the surrounding surface after it has hardened. Apply a primer to the repaired areas.

Some painters use a little of the paint — thinned a bit — that will be used for the final coat.

(If you're a do-it-yourselfer, you'll want a copy of Andy Lang's handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," available by sending $1 to Andy Lang at Box 5, Teaneck, N.J. 07666.)

HERE ARE THOSE ANSWERS—

By ANDY LANG

Q. — I want to install asphalt shingles on the outside walls of our house. I have a pretty good idea of how to do this, but the one thing I would like to know is whether they can be applied over the wood siding now on the house.

A. — Yes, provided the old siding is carefully gone over to see that it is securely attached everywhere. The one difficulty you may find is in cutting asphalt shingles. There are several ways to do this, but most of them require some skill and lots of practice. You may be better off renting an asphalt shingle cutter, which does the job easily and neatly.

Q. — We have an old birch table with a finish on it that looks like varnish. My wife wants me to take off the old finish and give the table a limed-oak effect that she says she saw on some furniture in a department store. How is this done?

A. — I could tell you, but it wouldn't do any good with the kind of table you have. The finish she is talking about is called limed oak. As the term implies, it is used principally on oak or, at least, on a wood with open pores. The limed effect is produced by filling the pores with white paint. On a wood with closed pores, it simply won't work.

Q. — Our blacktop driveway has some holes in it. The rest of the driveway is in good condition. Can I repair it myself with one of the blacktop patching materials I see advertised or does it require a special skill?

A. — You can do it yourself. Use a good quality product and follow the instructions carefully. I have found that, after you complete the patch, it's a good idea to sprinkle sand over it, then run your car over it once or twice to pack it down.

Fine Art Of Bonsai Is A Fascinating Exercise In Patience

If you'd like to grow one of those picturesque, dwarfed or shaped in Japanese fashion, don't let the name bonsai intimidate you.

It is true that in Japan a gardener may start a young bonsai plant that will come to perfection in the lifetime of his grandchildren. Patience is a big factor in shaping and training a specimen to the desired form. But, if patience isn't a virtue of yours, most nurseries offer pre-started or already-grown bonsai plants in pots.

You can grow and enjoy the creation at home.

Many nurseries have bonsai kits available, but for those who wish to start one from a seedling, or shop for unique-looking specimens to train, there are simplified procedures to follow that will yield faster results. A bonsai fashioned from a year-old seedling can be a prized possession in less than 10 years and perhaps five, depending upon the plant.

If you find a larger specimen in a nursery container you can have an attractive piece immediately.

WHEN STARTING with older plants, look for irregular growth rather than shapely ones. Prune unwanted branches to add interest to your creation. Keep in mind, as you prune, the shape you are trying to achieve. There are books available that provide in-depth information on the art of bonsai, and illustrations to give ideas on structure and shapes.

Shopping for year-old seedlings to bonsai is an entertaining adventure.

Using young plants has certain advantages. The trunk and branches will be pliable and easy to train. Authoritative bonsai literature will show how to wire the branches and trunks to achieve artistic shapes. Pruning young plants is confined to removing a few unwanted branches with sharp shears, then pinching back new growth as it appears. This results in stouter trunks and smaller foliage.

START YOUR seedling in a small pot.

A variety of bonsai containers is available at most nurseries. These are usually shallow — longer and iwder than they are dep. Increase the size of the container from year to year until the plant has reached the ultimate size you desire.

When placing the plant in the container, try tilting it slightly for dramatic effect. If the bowl is oblong, set the plant closer to one end than the other. If the container is round, place the bonsai in the center.

Soil for bonsai specimen should be porous and not excessively rich. Your nurseryman can recommend a planting mixture to use.

DRAINAGE HOLES in the container are necessary and should be covered with a fine wire screen or pieces of broken crockery — set over the holes to prevent soil loss. After putting in a layer of gravel in the bottom of the container, add a layer of sand. Place the plant in the container, spread out its roots and then add the soil mixture. Firm the soil and water thorougly with a fine spray.

Caring for bonsai plants is different than that of shrubs or trees in the garden, or growing in redwood tubs. The bonsai plants depend on your help to live in a small area of soil.

Watering is very important —once a day with a fine mist is average. In hot weather the plants may need water two or three times a day.

KEEP BONSAI plants out of direct hot sun and avoid exposing them to strong, drying winds. Cold weather isn't genrally a threat, as most bonsais are naturally hardy: Conifers, deciduous shrubs and trees, or hardy evergreens. Naturally, if you're using a tender plant, you would afford it winter protection.

Whatever your choice of plant is, and whether you're looking for older specimens or bonsai seedlings, choosing the plants is half the fun. There's a wealth of plant material available and your imagination can run wild.

Remember, plants that are naturally slow-growing and picturesque are the best bets. A few to consider include: Pines, Junipers, Japanese Maples, Spruce, Cedars, Yews, Wisteria, Quince —and even Azaleas.

'Talk To Your Plants'

Jerry Baker, a familiar figure on television, is the author of "Talk to Your Plants" (Nash, $7.95), subtitled: "And Other Gardening Know-How I Learned from Grandma Putt." Its a compedium of offbeat gardening ideas, both old and new.

A CHECKLIST FOR MARIN GARDENERS

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

✓ If you haven't already invested in a Christmas tree, look over the "living" Christmas trees at local nurseries. These can be kept in containers and brought indoors each year for a while and finally planted outdoors permanently.

✓ Hardy garden Lilies for bloom next spring and summer should be planted now.

✓ America's favorite flower makes a wonderful Christmas gift. Why not give rose bushes to home owners on your Christmas list?

✓ Make your first planting of Gladiolus as soon as they show up in nurseries. Some are already there, waiting for you to take home and plant.

✓ For the amazement of your children, grow a bulb or three in a bowl filled with gravel and some water or in a hyacinth glass. Even adults like it.

✓ Substitute greenery and other natural materials for electric bulbs in your holiday decor this energy crisis year.

THE REDGRAVES

A Closely-Knitted Family That Is Composed Of Individualists

The year was 1967, and for the first time in 25 years, two sisters, Vanessa and Lynn Redgrave, were rivals for Hollywood's coveted Oscar.

Vanessa was up for an Academy Award for her performance in "Morgan"; Lynn for "Georgy Girl." The two earlier siblings who had vied for the statuette were Joan Fontaine and Olivia de Haviland. Miss Fontaine won, sparking a sisterly feud.

No such spat occurred between the Redgrave girls. The reason may be due in part to the fact that Elizabeth Taylor took the best-actress Oscar home that night. The main credit, however, rests in the reality that Vanessa and Lynn are chips off the old blockbuster of talent named Sir Michael Redgrave.

On Sunday Redgrave will narrate the National Theater of the Deaf's dramatization of Dylan Thomas' classic "A Child's Christmas in Wales" on the "CBS Festival of the Lively Arts for Young People" on the CBS Television Network.

REDGRAVE IS an exceptional as a parent as he is an actor.

He married, in 1934, Rachel Kempson, an actress he met while making his professional debut with the Liverpool Repertory Theatre. Today, the Redgrave family — son Corin is also an actor — is an extraordinarily flexible but united family.

Redgrave impressed on his children that an actor can't always leave his offspring a grand patrimony, but he can give them an education. He insisted that each child learn one language perfectly, for example. Redgrave himself was educated in France and Germany and at England's Cambridge University, from which he graduated in 1930 with honors in French, German and English.

When Vanessa was 8, Walt Disney wanted her to play Alice in his production of "Alice In Wonderland." But her parents refused to permit it, insisting she continue her schooling.

YET, VANESSA showed theatrical leanings early on, writing plays and acting them out at home. "And she had a mercurial temperament," says her father, "which is absolutely right for the theatre."

Lynn, however, was somewhat of a late bloomer.

As a child, she knew exactly what she would do when she grew up — jump horses in the show ring. And so she did, until the age of 15. Then she turned to her second love — cooking — and dreamt of starting a catering service for people who no longer employed cooks. But her plan was short-lived. One day, she notes, as she revisited Stratford-on-Avon, "It came to me in a blinding flash, suddenly that I wanted to act."

SHE HASN'T looked back since. Nor, ineed, do any of the Redgraves.

"We keep being offered fabulous fees to make joint appearances in plays and movies," says Sir Michael, "but, honestly, I think that would be just a stunt."

So the Redgraves march to success their own ways. Yet the family bonds remain intact.

SIR MICHAEL REDGRAVE, patriarch of Britain's most famous theatrical family, is the narrator of the Eugene O'Neill Center's National Theater of the Deaf dramatization of Dylan Thomas' "A Child's Christmas in Wales," to be shown on the "Festival of the Lively Arts for Young People" Sunday at 6 p.m. on Channels 5 and 10.

Kids Join Merv For Yule Show

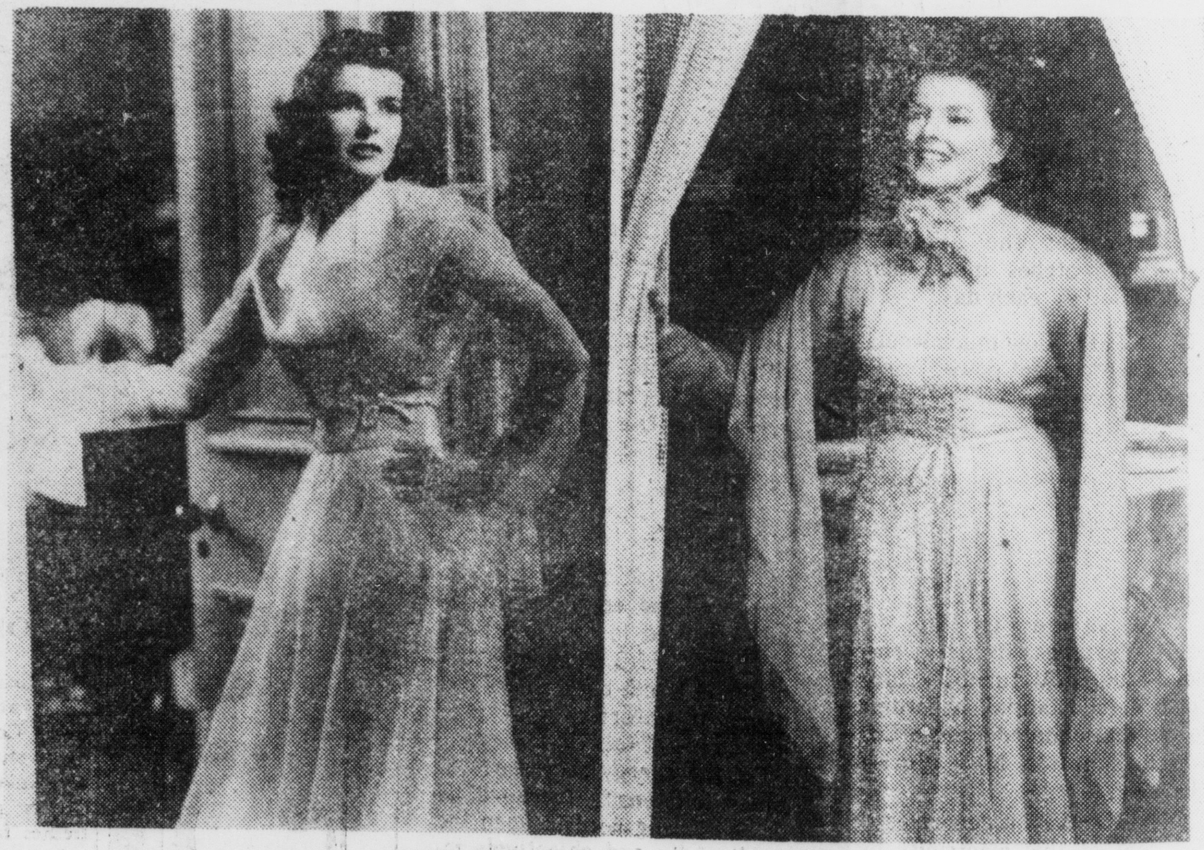
"Merv Griffin and the Christmas Kids", an hour-long musical holiday special starring Griffin and some of television's talented youngsters, will be seen on Channel 4 tonight at 7 p.m.

The program opens with a group of young ballerinas dancing through a snow-covered Christmas village, knocking on doors which open to reveal the guest stars, including Ricky Segall, Eric Scott, Mary Elizabeth McDonough, Kim Richards, The Mitchell Singing Boys, and special guest star Rodney Allen Rippy.

Among the other "Christmas Kids" featured are pianist Leland Greenwald, guitarist Randy Gray and young John Sheldon.

Merv Griffin is the only adult on the program, except for Santa.

The talented young performers, ranging in age from 3 to 15, all sing, perform and act in skits in keeping with the holiday theme. Rodney Allen Rippy sings "Santa Claus is Coming to Town" in his own inimitable style.



KATHARINE HEPBURN, 1940 and 1973

Same Actress And Same Dress

Katharine Hepburn, making her television dramatic debut in Tennessee Williams' "The Glass Menagerie" on the ABC Television Network Sunday at 8:30 p.m., comes on in the second act in a dress her character — Amanda Wingfield — has treasured for years.

As Amanda she says "I found an old dress in the trunk. . . it broke my heart when I had to let it out. . . I led the cotillion in this dress years ago."

What she doesn't say — as Katharine Hepburn — is that she also worte it in "Philadelphia Story," filmed 33 years ago. She has had it ever since. It seemsd right for Amanda's cherished memories, and so — with a few alterations by costume designer Patricia Zipprodt — the dress designed for Tracy Lord in "Philadelphia Story" becomes Amanda's treasure in "The Glass Menagerie."

One obvious addition is the high neckline, which has become a Hepburn trademark during the years since "Philadelphia Story." The other frills are obvious to the discerning eye and, as Amanda says, Miss Zipprodt "had to let it out a little."

But only a little.

Dwayne Hickman and Ann B. Davis, who co-starred on television 14 years ago with Robert Cummings, will be reunited on an episode of "Love, American Style."

Energy Crisis And Television

By JAY SHARBUTT

NEW YORK (AP) — About 66,200,000 homes in the United States have one or more television sets, says the A. C. Nielsen ratings company.

It estimates the average household watches more than six hours of TV each day.

QUESTION: How much would it ease the current power crisis if we cut down on our television viewing by just one hour each day?

Experts say there's no ready answer. It depends on where you live, the severity of your area's power shortage and its type of power.

Right here in Fun City, the energy savings from a one-hour-a-day TV turnoff alone could be substantial, according to the Consolidated Edison Co., which supplies New York's electricity.

CON ED SAYS it generates 70 per cent of this electricity by burning oil, and notes there's a severe shortage of oil here and elsewhere in the U.S. because of the Arab oil cutoff.

Now, the Nielsen ratings people say there's about four million black and white color TV sets —the latter require far more power to operate than the former — in New York City.

Con Ed calculates that if all the owners of these sets cut just one hour off their regular viewing schedule each day for a year, they'd reduce the city's need for oil by 630,000 barrels in that year.

TAKING A different approach, what about suggesting the networks trim their evening schedules by, say, an hour or half hour, with the idea of encouraging viewers to turn off their sets and perhaps their lights as well earlier each night and thus help ease the current power crisis?

The networks take a very dim view of any suggested dimout, although it must be said in their defense they didn't summon the man with the butterfly net when we asked about program cutbacks.

CBS simply said it has no plans for any cutbacks.

"WHILE WE are keenly aware of the energy shortage and the need to conserve power," said ABC, "we are not planning to cut back any of our news or entertainment programming at this time.

"If the energy shortage continues to intensify, there will be an increasing need to keep the public fully and objectively informed on all developments, as we are doing . . . the public interest, therefore, requires our maintaining a full broadcast service."

NBC also said it plans no cutback in its television schedule.

"SINCE ONE of the primary effects of the energy shortage will be curtailment of travel, requiring people to spend more time at home," it said, "it seems to us the public will be relying even more on television for entertainment and information, and a cutback would not be in the public interest."

John-Boy Makes Debut As Singer

Emmy Award-winning Richard Thomas is like the rest of us: he gets a bit apprehensive when he does something for the first time.

Thomas, of course, has been impressive as an actor. Now, he's doing something different, making his television singing debut as the special guest star on "The Bobby Van and Elaine Joyce Special" Monday at 10 p.m., on the CBS Television Network.

RICHARD THOMAS
'No threat to Sinatra'

"WHEN BOBBY and Elaine first asked me to appear on the special, and sing, I was terrified," says Thomas, who won an Emmy last season for his role as John-Boy on "The Waltons" on the CBS Network. "But I've known them both a long time and feel very comfortable with them. I really wasn't that hard to convince, because it's fun to do something different."

Actually, Thomas' television singing debut is a "comeback" of sorts for the 22-year-old actor. His first, and last, real singing appearance before an audience was at the age of 6, when he sang "You Gotta Have Heart" in a summer-stock production of "Damn Yankees."

"I really have had no professional singing experience since then," says Thomas. "So, I told Bobby and Elaine that they would have to take me by the hand and lead me, which they did. I may not worry Frank Sinatra, but it's been a real kick to sing and do comedy on a variety special like this.

WITH SEVERAL movie roles to his credit, plus "The Waltons," Thomas expects to expand his acting scope with more firsts. He was host-narrator for the D'Oyly Carte production of the classic Gilbert and Sullivan comic opera "H.M.S. Pinafore" on the "CBS Festival of the Lively Arts for Young People" in November. And then, in January, carring his expansion further, he'll star with Sarah Miles in a Los Angeles stage production of George Bernard Shaw's "Saint Joan."

"I think it's important that an actor expand in whatever way he can," Thomas says. "It keeps you on your toes and, after all, living is just one long learning process."

A Program That Involves Some 75,000 Volunteers

"The Killers" — which will examine genetic defects Monday at 8 p.m. on Channel 9 — has become the largest health project in the history of American television, according to series producer David Prowitt.

"The response from individuals and organizations across the country has been overwhelming," Prowitt said. "It now appears that more than 75,000 volunteers will have worked on the project by the time the series ends next spring."

"The Killers" consists of five 90-minute documentaries on the medical conditions that kill three out of every four Americans. The project also includes local follow-up efforts in more than 200 communities, according to Prowitt.

FOLLOWING THE first program in the series — an examination of heart disease — local stations launched projects that ranged from phone-in question-and-answer sessions with doctors, to filmed reports on local coronary care facilities.

More than 50 national organizations are supporting the project, and, in many cities, local chapters are working with public television stations on follow-up efforts.

In addition, "The Killers" is being used in high schools and junior colleges across the country, Prowitt said.

"We don't know exactly how many classrooms are using the project," he added, "but we do know we will have distributed more than 125,000 specially prepard cards for teachers by the time the series ends."

THE SERIES, which was produced by the WNET Science Program Group under a grant from Bristol-Myers Co., is designed to explain what causes disease and also what can be done to prevent it.

On the genetics program, for example, a wide range of screening and testing procedures are examined. In addition, the program shows how parents of children who are victims of genetic defects are coping with the problem.

In subsequent months, "The Killers" will examine pulmonary disease, trauma and cancer.

"The Killers" is public television's third major effort in the area of health. In 1971, "The Turned On Crisis" examind the country's drug problem and launched public television's first community follow-up effort. A year later, the special "VD Blues" presented an unusual look at venereal disease.

A YOUNG PRIEST, Tom Courtenay, right, unaware that he has only a short time to live is sent by his bishop, Dean Jagger, left, to a remote Indian village to learn about life and death from the Indian tribespeople in the "GE Theater" presentation of "I Heard the Owl Call My Name," Tuesday at 9:30 p.m. on Channels 5 and 10.

Director Takes His Cast North

"I Heard The Owl Call My Name," the first of a new series of 90-minute contemporary dramas, marks the return of the "GE Theater" to television on Tuesday on the CBS Television Network from 9:30 to 11 p.m.

Shot entirely on location on the rugged coast of Canada's British Columbia, "I Heard The Owl Call My Name" stars Dean Jagger and Tom Courtenay and was adapted from Margaret Craven's novel by Gerald Di Pego. The holiday presentation also marks the return of Emmy winning producer-director Daryl Duke to Vancouver, where he did "Almanac," the first TV show ever telecast there.

SO DUKE WAS on familiar ground when he assembled the cast and crew for "I heard The Owl Call My Name" — a true story about a young Anglican priest who, unaware that he has only a short time to live, is sent to a remote Canadian Indian village by his bishop. There, he gradually realizes that death is near.

By the time the "owl has called his name," the Indians have shown him that death, like life, is both beautiful and ugly, full of pain and joy. And he knows why the bishop sent him to this place.

Daryl Duke brought his stars and technical crew up to Ahousat, an isolated village on Vancouver Island, for 26 days of shooting in an area that could only be reached by plane or water taxi. There, he engaged the local Nootka, Ahousat and Coast Indians for roles in the film; some of them turned out to be the sons and daughters of Indians he had worked with years ago in the same region.

FOR TOM COURTENAY, the role of the young priest was a trying one. Nothing in his background or previous performances — he has starred in such films as "Dr. Zhivago," "The Loneliness Of The Long Distance Runner," "A Day In The Life Of Ivan Desinovich" and "Billy Liar" — prepared him for this role.

Unlike Director Duke, Courtenay, a Britisher, had never seen a North American Indian before flying to the West Coast for this role, but his inexperience with primitive Canadian customs and folklore fit right into his portrayal of a priest who had to agonize with unfamiliar and more primitive ways of life.

During the filming of "Owl," Courtenay learned many of the same things as the character he plays. It's summed up by Dean Jagger, that Hollywood institution, now in his 70s, who won an Oscar for "12 O'Clock High," in the role of the bishop:

"THE INDIAN knows his village and feels for his village as no white man for his country, his town, or even for his own bit of land. The village is not the strip of land four miles long and three miles wide that is his as long as the sun rises and the moon sets. The myths are the village, and the black and white killer whales that herd the fish to the end of the inlet to devour them. The village is the salmon who comes up river to spawn, the seal who follows the salmon and bites off his head, the bluejay whose name is like the sound he makes.

"The village is the talking bird, the owl, who calls the name of the man who is going to die. The fifty-foot totem by the church is the village, and the Cedar-man who stands at the bottom holding up the eagle, the wolf and the raven!"

The premiere episode, "Corpse and Robbers," has the Snoop Sisters launching an investigation into a mysterious phone call purportedly from a deceased friend.

TUNING IN THE TV

By JACK GAVER

Two mid-season replacements at CBS will be half-hour series, "Dirty Sally", with Jeanette Nolan in the title role, and something tentatively titled "Great Day", a comedy starring Esther Rolle in expansion of her current character in the "Maude" series. The character Miss Nolan plays is a spinoff from a two-part "Gunsmoke" story two years ago. The new shows replace "Calucci's Dept." and "Roll Out", both new last fall.

Cliff Robertson will star in a two-hour movie-for-television for ABC airing later this season. It is "My Father's House," based on the novel by Phillip Kunhardt Jr. about how a high-pressure publishing executive is led to rediscover his past after a heart attack.

A new CBS one-hour weekly drama series that will have its premiere Feb. 10 is "Apple's Way", which is about a successful big-city architect of today who moves his family of wife and four children back to the small Iowa town where he grew up. The series was created by Earl Hamner, who is responsible for "The Waltons" on BBS. "Apple's Way" replaces "The New Perry Mason", cancelled.

NBC has signed Burt Reynolds for a series of prime-time specials for the 1974-75 season.

A future "Barnaby Jones" episode on CBS will have the Services of Bonnie Ebsen, daughter of the star of the series, Buddy Ebsen. This will be her acting debut on television.

The spring of 1974 will bring to ABC another special starring Marlo Thomas, "Free to Be . . . You and Me", an hour inspired by the star's successful record album of the same title.

Judson Laire, remembered from the "Mama" series of many seasons ago, is a new addition to the cast of "The Edge of Night," the CBS daytime serial, playing a judge.

HELEN HUNT is cast as a young girl homesteading with her parents in the Wyoming Territory in the motion picture "Pioneer Woman," a motion picture salute to the women who contributed to the westward movement of America and to the growth of the new region. The 90-minute feature film can be seen Wednesday at 8:30 p.m. on Channels 7 and 11.

MARILYN IS HER MODEL

Connie Revels In Sex Symbol Role

(Editor's Note: The TV motion picture, "The Sex Symbol," discussed in the story below is based upon the novel, "The Symbol," by Alvah Bessie of Terra Linda. Bssie also wrote the play for television, but says the script has since been revised by another writer over his objections.)

CONNIE STEVENS
A change of image

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Marilyn Monroe has been dead for a decade, but who and what she was will be recreated by another blonde actress, Connie Stevens, in a 90-minute television movie, "The Sex Symbol."

The story is about the tragedy of a movie queen, but Screen Gems and ABC-TV are doing their best to make it appear to be a conglomerate of all the great glamour girls of the past.

Both companies want to escape law suits and other troubles arising from a biographical study of Monroe.

MISS STEVENS, a vivacious beauty who is as bright as she is sexy, has no such compunctions.

"I remember Marilyn very clearly," said Connie, "and I thought she was terrific. She was sexy, and she was beautiful. And she had one great thing going for her: other women didn't resent Marilyn Monroe.

"I never knew Marilyn personally, but I was at an awards party one time and she tripped when she passed my table. I grabbed her to keep her from falling. She just looked at me as if I didn't exist."

CONNIE, WHO co-starred this past week on "Bing Crosby's Sun Valley Christmas Show," said, "For the record this isn't supposed to be a story about Marilyn.

"But I'm using her for the model because she is the ultimate sex symbol with all the neuroses and problems that go with it. There isn't anyone around like her. Raquel Welch has a beautiful face and body, but that's as far as the symbol goes.

"Screen Gems suggested I look into the backgrounds of all the glamour girls — Jayne Mansfield, Carol Lombard, Jean Harlow and Rita Hayworth. I have, but I'm concentrating on Marilyn."

CONNIE IS HAVING a special screening of "The Prince and the Showgirl" held so she can study Monroe more closely.

"That picture and 'The Misfits' are the most representative movies she ever made," Connie said.

"I'm proud that they wanted me to play the part. It's a virtuoso role. It represents a lot of first for me. First time I've ever done a real tragedy. First time I'll be doing a lot of nude scenes for television.

"AND IT REPRESENTS a change in my image. I think my work in night clubs has changed the general attitude that I was mostly an ingenue and a comedienne. A sex element has become part of what I do."

Connie said there were people and organizations in Hollywood who were determined that "The Sex Symbol" was shelved.

"A lot of people don't want this picture made because they think it is too personally involved with Marilyn," she explained. "Several members of the cast have quit and have been replaced — even before shooting started. There has been a lot of pressure to stop the picture.

"Marilyn wasn't emotionally equipped to cope with the destructive elements of the movie industry. Neither are most glamour queens. This movie shows the rotten side of show business and how women accept it or reject it.

"The difference between Marilyn and me is that I reject it."

Rodney Pays Sammy Visit

Little Rodney Allen Rippy, the hamburger commercial kid, is joined by four Santas — Sammy Davis, Jack Cassidy, Tennessee Ernie Ford and Florence Henderson — in the Christmas edition of "Sammy Davis Starring in NBC Follies" Thursday at 10 p.m. on Channels 3 and 4.

Also featured in the show's Christmas salute is the International Children's Choir, singing its theme song, "Let There Be Peace, Let It Begin With Me."

Cassidy sings a Toyland medley, backed by a collection of walking Christmas packages, the Follies Girls.

Rodney, in the big holiday number, comes out of a street-corner crush and approaches Santa (Sammy), who gives him a special toy and a special song, "Have Yourself a Merry Little Christmas." The other Santas sing and dance to tunes of the season.

And a ho-ho-ho time is enjoyed by all.

COUNTRY MUSIC star Diana Trask guest stars on "Love American Style" as the new bride of a country music idol portrayed by Mel Tillis, on "Love and the Cryin' Cowboy," to be shown on Friday at 10 p.m. on Channels 7 and 11.

Bay Area Youth Is Heard Again In Season's Songs

One of the San Francisco Bay Area's most praised series of locally produced television specials, "The Young Sound of Christmas," will have its 13th consecutive showing Friday at 8 p.m. on Channel 7.

The highlight of this year's broadcast will be the appearance of television star Lorne Greene, title performer in the ABC-TV series "Griff" and star of the long-running western series "Bonanza."

In addition to serving as celebrity host for the annual televised Christmas musicale, Greene will perform with Walter Helms Junior High School Choir of San Pablo, the deeply moving "The Desiderata — You Are a Child of the Universe." This music was based on a 12th Century poem which is a father's wish to his daughter.

The word Desiderata is a longing or something to be wished for.

Other musical groups featured in this year's telecast include the Pinole Valley High School A'Capella Choir and Chamber Singers, Lincoln Elementary School Choir from Oakland, Portola Avenue School Chorus from Livermore, Marina Junior High School String Orchestra and Chorus from San Francisco, Santa Rosa Junior College Madrigal Singers, San Leandro High School's Swing Ensemble, Marin's Redwood High School's Swing Ensemble from Larkspur, and Tyrrell Junior High School's Tyrrell Two Tones from Hayward.

The Redwood High School students are scheduled for three numbers — "The Christmas Song," "Winter Wonderland" and "I Wonder as I Wander," the last a solo by Barbara Fanning.

LORNE GREENE
Host and performer

Other program highlights will include a "Jazz Gloria" by the Tyrrell Junior High School group, the traditional "White Christmas" by San Leandro High School, "Calypso Noel" by the Lincoln Elementary School children with soloist, and "Glory to God on the Highest" by the Santa Rosa Junior College madrigal singers.

R. Edwin Bowker is producer and director of the program, which will again be shown without commercials.

Sesame Producers Thinking About Commercial Shows

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Children's Television Workshop, producers of public television's award-winning "Sesame Street" and "Electric Company," says it's thinking about commercial TV ventures to help finance its public television efforts.

But a spokesman for CTW, a non-profit corporation heavily supported by federal funds, emphasized the idea is neither a certainty nor is it even under heavy consideration right now.

CTW officials aren't giving it "any higher priority at the moment than any one of a number of things we're considering," said Robert A. Hatch, CTW's vice-president for public affairs.

"SO I THINK that as far as we could go," he added, "is to say that it's one of many things that's under consideration at the Workshop as it explores means of survival as an experimental educational center."

He said CTW faces a financial crunch that primarily came about because the U.S. Office of Education, which gave CTW six million dollars the last fiscal year, plans to halve that amount this year.

Another factor, he said, has been a sharp reduction in financial support from private foundations for CTW's two children's shows.

HE WAS specifically asked if CTW might form a commercial arm to produce children's shows in hope of syndicating them or selling them to networks with the sole idea of plowing all profits back into the workshop's public television projects.

The question of CTW producing shows for commercial TV — either on a regular or an infrequent basis — was prompted by a Julie Andrews special on ABC-TV, "Julie on Sesame Street."

The program, aired recently, featured the Muppets of "Sesame Street" and the setting on which they appear on public television.

HATCH, ASKED if this wasn't laying CTW open to charges of commercialism, said, "I would hope not. We've got to live, we've got to exist. We're a non-profit operation and right now we're facing a drying-up of government and foundation money."

He said the net income from overseas sales of "Sesame Street" and the sale of related playthings, records and educational materials came to about two million dollars last year.

However, Hatch said, "our operating budget to make 'Sesame' and the 'Electric Company' was 11.8 million dollars, so you can see that doesn't cut very much of that big, big pie."

ALTHOUGH HE described the fee from Miss Andrews' special as small, he said the real benefit was the national prime-time exposure of "Sesame Street" to millions of viewers who may never have seen the show before on television.

But what income would that produce for the Workshop?

"Well," Hatch said, "I guess a larger audience will always mean we have a better chance to make a case with Congress, with the Corporation for Public Broadcasting, with others who'd support us."

FOR SEN. HENRY M. JACKSON (D-Wash:)

Didn't selling our wheat to the Russians trigger higher wheat prices in our country?—B. Evans, Marion, Ind.

● Our government has failed to keep an accounting of foreign wheat sales, and we've been taken to the cleaners so far. Sales to the Soviets triggered huge price increases in bread, meat and poultry products here, and U.S. taxpayers paid $362 million in subsidies so the Russians could buy our wheat. Even Secretary George Shultz admitted we got burned. By the way, there have been rumors that Russia has been re-selling our wheat at handsome prices to countries like Italy. We're investigating this, too. Under the terms of the agreement, Russia is permitted to trans-ship our wheat only to Eastern European countries. American grain companies have already completed negotiations for more sales to the Russians, and I'm calling for restrictions on any exports that might upset food prices.

FOR TERRY ANNE MEEUWSEN, 1973 Miss America

I understand you came from a mixed-religion family. Has this caused you any discomfort?—L. Maxwell, Reno, Nev.

● Not at all. My father is Catholic, my mother is Lutheran. My two brothers and sister and I took turns going to both churches with our parents. We learned to share both of their religions.

FOR GEN. CREIGHTON W. ABRAMS,
Army Chief of Staff

Why is the Pentagon always investing in new weapons systems that grow obsolete as soon as they're developed?—Ray Forney, Washington D.C.

● We keep updating our weapons because each time we have faced a major war, we have barely gotten ready in time. In World War II, it was months before we could act; in Korea, it was weeks. In future wars, we will have only days to get ready. With your support, we won't have to pay the price of being unprepared.

FOR SUSAN DEY, Laurie on "The Partridge Family"

What do you think of Women's Lib?—D. E. F., Hobbs, N.M.

● Which one? Within the woman, or exterior liberation? If you are talking about outside the home, then just look around a Hollywood set. The only women are in wardrobe and hairdressers. There aren't even good acting parts for women. But in the home, that's different. There are women who like waiting on men. I happen to like doing my boyfriend's laundry, for example.

FOR JOE LOUIS

As heavyweight champion, you fought all comers. Who hit you the hardest?—John Williams, San Diego, Calif.

● Uncle Sam—in the pocketbook!

FOR REP. GEORGE H. MAHON (D-Tex.),
chairman of the House Appropriations Committee

How much has the dollar slipped in value in the last year or so?—B. T. Goron, Asbury Park, N.J.

● The dollar was devalued last year by 7.89 percent. This year, the dollar has been devalued by 10 percent, but actually the dollar has fallen further than just 10 plus 7.89 percent. The acceleration value of other currencies and the world monetary situation generally makes it correct to say that the dollar has lost about 30 percent of its value in recent months.

FOR LORNE GREENE

I read that you are an advocate of acupuncture. True?—Debra Kotecki, Marinette, Wis.

● Yes. I had a bad back about six years ago that had not responded to conventional treatment. Someone on the "Bonanza" set recommended an Oriental doctor who did acupuncture. I'd never heard of it, but I figured I had nothing to lose. And yes, it did help me.

FOR ERMA BOMBECK, columnist

Does any of your three children want to follow in your footsteps and become a writer?—G. D. Kent, Lansing, Mich.

● My kids would not follow me into a lifeboat if it were the last one leaving the Titanic. They have seen first-hand the work and the frustration of writing. One wants to be a food taster for Totie Fields, another wants to be an only child, and the third (according to college testing exams) aspires to become a weak king.

FOR FLIP WILSON

What is your real name, and how did you get the name "Flip"?—Pamela J. Smith, Gary, Ind.

● When I was in the Air Force, I used to entertain the troops with crazy, off-beat routines. The guys used to say, "He's flipped." And so I became Flip. My real name is Clerow.

FOR CHER BONO, singer

You're always saying Sonny sings out of tune. Is that true, or is he just acting?—Terry Hendricks, Refugio, Texas

● Sonny actually has a very pleasant voice. We both agree he isn't the greatest male vocalist around, but he certainly isn't the worst.

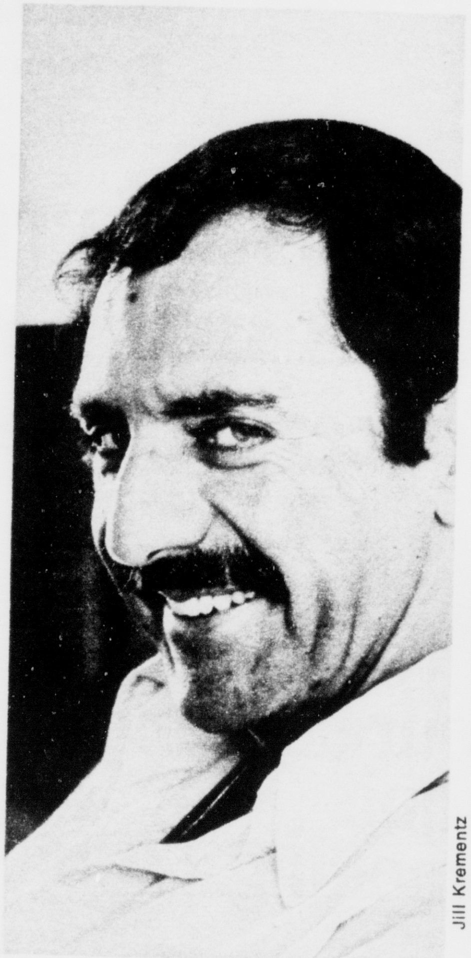
The Day FDR Met My Mother's Quince Jelly

By William Peter Blatty

Author of "The Exorcist"

"Suddenly, flashbulbs began to explode, FDR dropped the gold-plated scissors in horror, and a covey of startled and uncertain Secret Service men reached for revolvers and surrounded the car. Too late. My mother had gotten to the President."



Jill Krementz

William Peter Blatty

William Peter Blatty became a best-selling author, and then some, with "The Exorcist," which has sold six million copies in U.S. editions and has now been translated into 17 languages. In his new book, "I'll Tell Them I Remember You," he writes about his mother—and about experiences that convinced him there was life after death. The Pittsburgh Press wrote: "No matter what one believes about immortality or eternity, the final chapters of this beautifully written book will be difficult to refute."

"Mother was unstoppable and she knew it."

You would have loved my mother. An immigrant, destitute, suffering, loving, illiterate, defiant, a lion, a giant, she supported five children in New York, on Manhattan, on that heart-squeezing island where the sidewalks leap snarling, in the place where the kiss of the rich is indifference and the sleep of the poor is ice wounds that never knit and the fire-escape flame in August night without end; where they sleep without sleep. And in this place, in this bullying, terrifying place, my mother, in an elevator, desperate and hungry, desperate and pleading with an arrogant social worker, a woman dispatched by the city to look into our eligibility for charity, for Home Relief, hauled off and punched the proud woman in the stomach when she called her "Mrs. Blatty" in a condescending tone. She told girls that I was trying to impress, "You very fat" and is solely responsible for the fact that I am the only living mortal in the universe to have won a "fixed" beautiful baby contest. Her page of life had been printed in boldface. No Everest eluded her reach.

Listen! In 1939, in the summer, the President, Franklin Delano Roosevelt, our Number One official, commander in chief of the armies and the caissons, of the windswept armadas and the U.S. Marines, happened by our little neighborhood slum to officiate at the opening of the Queens Midtown Tunnel. The tunnel spilled out onto East 35th Street, two doors down from our tenement apartment building. It had once been a rain-catching lot where I'd moped and cursed fate and poled timbers indefinitely across mud-sullen ponds strewn with hopes. "When he comin'?" rumbled Mama like Vesuvius in ponder when I told her FDR would be loitering around. "I wanna meet him." When I advised her that it couldn't be done, she advised me in return, "You cuckoo, Willie."

On the day of the ceremony, my mother and I were standing at the outer circumference of a cordon of spectators. Mama's left hand held a brown paper shopping bag. I ignored it; the bag was her custom. All eyes at the time were on FDR as he reached from his car with a gold-plated scissors and neatly snipped the broad silken multicolored ribbon that drooped from side to side across the entrance to the tunnel like an unconvinced rainbow. Then, before anyone knew what was happening, my mother was grimly advancing on the President.

Suddenly, flashbulbs began to explode, FDR dropped the gold-plated scissors in horror, and a covey of startled and uncertain Secret Service men reached for revolvers and surrounded the car.

Too late. My mother had gotten to the President.

"I wanna shake you hand," she told him warningly in a voice of quiet command; then reached out and took his hand in a grip which had the power of her mesmerizing presence, imbued with an illusion of crunching strength. FDR started numbly. He might have been thinking, it occurred to me then, about a possible upcoming meeting with Stalin, though of course I can't be sure; I was only a boy and not entirely reliable. But this I remember, this I know: when my mother leaned over and reached in the shopping bag, several Secret Service men leaped from their socks and never noticed the time, but they barely got a glove or a thought on my mother before she had withdrawn from the bag a rather large, sticky jar filled with murky and rust-colored substance. She handed it over to the dumbfounded President.

"Homemade quince jelly," she grunted. Then she added, "For when you have company."

The President went visiting some planets for a while; then he turned on the sun with his flashing bright smile and he took my mother's hand in his again and he spoke to her softly and gently. He doubtless said, "Thank you," but I couldn't make it out.

Two Secret Service men escorted my mother to the spectators' circle, and the moment that her gaze locked on mine, I saw her eyes flicker briefly with triumph. She was unstoppable and she knew it.

"What did he say to you, Mama?" I asked her when again she was standing at my side.

"He say to me, 'Willie, you son, he's cuckoo.'"

She was dynamite.

She still is. Though I tend now to see her as she was in those days; as she is in the cracked, brownish photo now before me that was taken in 1936 by a weary old man in Central Park. It had cost her a dime: she had bargained him to that. It is framed in a yellowing, tattered cardboard. At the top it says, "Somewhere in the U.S.A." My mother is staring at the lens of the camera. Rigidly corseted, chin held high, she is squinting into sunlight. Her shoes are torn. She looks at once vulnerable and unvanquished. She is wearing a thrift-shop middy skirt and blouse and a California sport hat made of felt; the front brim is pushed all the way up and back as if in jaunty defiance of the odds. The odds are not small: her husband has left her; she can barely speak English; she has less than a grammar school education. She is 43. With no job. No skills.

But see how proudly her back is arched; and from a face of carved walnut her eyes great and dark leap with boldness, with challenge; though within them, very faint and far back and pain deep, glows a light that is meek and pleads, "Peace! Give us peace!"

The light is very tired this day. Never mind. A satisfied wiliness creases her eyes. It has been a good day peddling jelly in the streets and her hand holds the strings of a cake box from Cushman's. "Willie, surprise!" she will call to me, beaming. Stubborn and truculent, an anomaly, an irresistible force, in the heart of her champion's heart is a rose. You cannot tell that from the photo. From the photo you can only tell that she is beautiful, patrician in feature and bearing: a darkly complexioned Ethel Barrymore, but with Anna Magnani's fire.

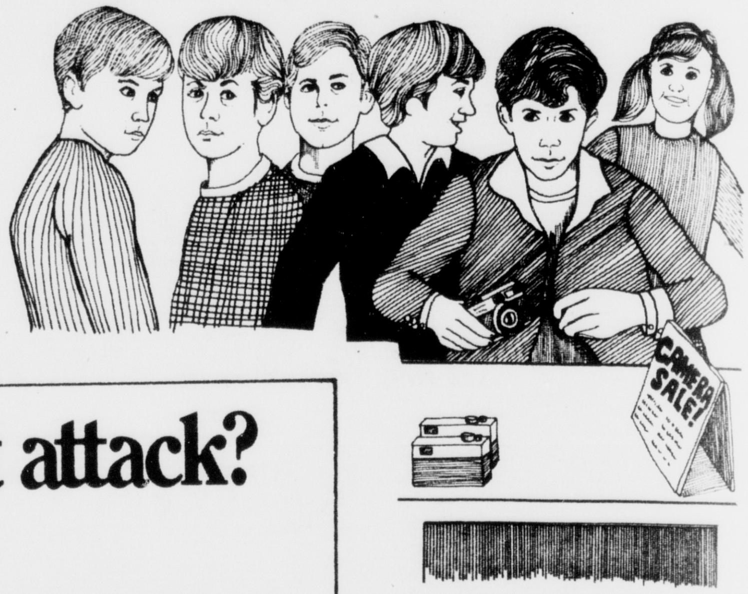
People Quiz

By John E. Gibson

Children:

How Well Do You Understand Them?



CAMERA SALE!

True or False: A child is less likely to become involved in delinquent behavior when he's alone than when he's with other children. (See number 5)

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. Gifted children tend to be like skyrockets. Their brilliance develops early, shoots skyward with the approach of the teen years, but diminishes gradually after maturity sets in.

2. When it comes to handling unruly or spirited youngsters and inspiring good behavior, an adult of the same sex has the inside track.

3. Boys are more open, more outgoing and less given to subterfuge and deceit than girls are.

4. Whether a child gets a name that's easy for him to live with, or is handicapped with a handle he's unhappy with, is likely to depend on whether he was born first, last, or in between.

5. A child is less likely to become involved in delinquent behavior when he's alone than when he's with other children.

6. The satisfaction a child between the ages of 8 and 11 derives from his leisure-time activities has a direct bearing on how well adjusted he will be when he reaches the age of 30.

ANSWERS

1. False. As one behavioral scientist observes after evaluating the findings of studies of gifted children: "Such individuals appear to have a longer mental growth span than others. They appear to continue growing in mental age even into their seniority, whereas others decline." Studies show that the ability of gifted children to think, reason and do various forms of mental work tends to increase with each passing birthday – long after middle-age has set in.

2. False—as shown by National Institute of Mental Health studies. It was found that boys tended to respond more favorably to a woman's influence, while men had an edge when it came to keeping girls on their best behavior. Conclusion of the investigators: "Young children are motivated to please an opposite-sex adult more than an adult of the same sex."

3. True—as evidenced by a study of the personality dimensions of over 3,000 seven- to fifteen-year-old boys and girls. Girls, though less obstreperous and better behaved than boys, were found to be appreciably less frank and outspoken, more emotional, more inclined to conceal their real feelings, to "put on a good face," to resort to various wiles and subterfuges. The boys, in addition to being more optimistic and easy-going, tended to be more inconsiderate and callous toward others, had a far greater disregard for danger, and shared a penchant for making fools of other people, devising means to upset them.

4. True—as shown by the findings of a psychiatric study of the things that go on in parents' minds when naming their children, and the reasons why one offspring may draw a name he likes and a brother or sister may end up with a label he wishes his parents hadn't foisted on him. While it is true that other factors influence the naming of offspring, the investigation showed that "Birth order enters into the naming situation, and first children often bear the heavy burden of multisyllabic, family-tradition-conveying names, while later children are named by indulging and self-indulgent parents who return to the favorite names of childhood, remembered from nursery rhymes and fairy tales."

5. True—according to University of Washington studies of 800 children, who were monitored by observers and given opportunities to steal when alone and when in the presence of other children. Findings: "Group presence led to significantly more stealing."

6. True—Studies conducted at the Institute of Human Development, University of California, have demonstrated a definite relationship "between childhood leisure-time activities and satisfactions and psychological adjustment at age 30." The age period of 8 to 11 tended to be the most predictive. The more a child is getting out of life at that time, the fewer personality conflicts and emotional problems he'll have when he reaches what are likely to be the most productive years of his life.

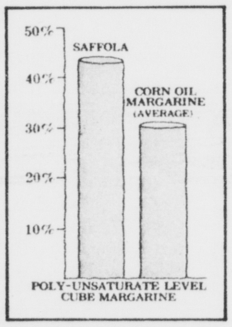
Saffola® will help lower his cholesterol.

Following the doctor's orders isn't always easy. So when he recommends a low saturated fat diet, it's nice to get some help. Unlike the high-priced spread, Saffola (and, in fact, most margarines) contains no cholesterol. But that's only the beginning. Saffola Margarine is made from safflower oil – lower in saturated fats, higher in polyunsaturates than corn oil. In conjunction with a low saturated fat diet, Saffola actually helps reduce the level of blood cholesterol.



It's reassuring to know that if your doctor recommends cutting down on saturated fats, you don't have to cut down on flavor.

Saffola tastes so much like the high-priced spread, chances are your family won't notice the difference.

In a candle-lit dining room: Roast Goose Burgundy with Orange and Cranberry Stuffing; Baked Smoked Ham with Apricot-Bourbon Glaze; Savory Green Beans and Red Peppers; and Baked Curried Fruit are ready to be served.

ROAST GOOSE BURGUNDY

With Orange and Cranberry Stuffing

1 10-12-lb. ready-to-cook goose, thawed
4 cups water
1 onion studded with 2 whole cloves
1 bay leaf
¼ teaspoon whole black peppercorns
½ teaspoon salt

Stuffing:

¼ cup butter or margarine
1 cup chopped onion
1 cup chopped celery
½ cup chopped parsley
1 large clove garlic, chopped
1 teaspoon thyme leaves
1 teaspoon sage leaves
1 teaspoon savory leaves
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon ground black pepper
1 pkg. (7 ozs.) herb-seasoned croutons
1 can (6 ozs.) frozen orange juice concentrate, thawed, undiluted
2 tablespoons honey
½ cup chopped fresh cranberries
⅓ cup water
⅓ cup burgundy

Burgundy Glaze:

2 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted
2 tablespoons honey
½ cup burgundy or dry red wine
½ teaspoon liquid gravy seasoning

Burgundy Sauce:

½ cup goose drippings
6 tablespoons flour
3 cups goose broth
1 cup burgundy or dry red wine
1 teaspoon salt
Few twists freshly ground black pepper
2 teaspoons liquid gravy seasoning
2 tablespoons frozen orange juice concentrate, thawed

Garnish

Parsley
2 cups fresh cranberries
6 orange-slice twists
2 pkgs. (1 lb. each) frozen bacon-flavored potato rounds

1. Preheat oven to 400°F.

2. Remove neck and giblets from body cavity; rinse. Place neck, heart and gizzard in 2-qt. saucepan with 4 cups water, clove-studded onion, bay leaf, peppercorns and ½ teaspoon salt. Bring to boiling. Cover, boil gently about 1½-2 hours, until very tender. Add goose liver last 20 minutes of cooking.

3. Remove heart, gizzard and liver and chop finely. Use neck meat for sandwiches; discard onion and cloves. Save broth (you should have 3 cups).

4. Remove excess fat from body cavity and excess neck skin. (Reserve fat and render for use in other cooking if desired.) Rinse bird and drain.

5. Tie wings flat against body with cord around each wing and across back.

6. Make stuffing: In large skillet, heat butter until melted. Add onion, celery, parsley and garlic and sauté, stirring frequently, for 5 minutes. Stir in thyme, sage, savory, salt and pepper.

7. Turn vegetable-herb mixture into large bowl. Add croutons, orange juice concentrate, honey, cranberries, water and the burgundy. Mix well with large spoon.

8. To stuff: Fill neck and body cavity loosely. Fasten neck skin to back with skewer. Close body cavity with skewers, poultry pins or stitching. Tie legs together tightly with cord.

9. Place goose, breast side up, on rack in shallow foil-lined roasting pan. Insert meat thermometer deep into inside thigh muscle.

10. Prepare Burgundy Glaze: Combine all glaze ingredients in small saucepan, heat to boiling point.

11. Brush goose liberally with glaze. Roast goose, breast side up, 30 minutes. Remove from oven, turn goose breast side down and baste again with glaze. Return to oven and roast 30 minutes longer.

12. During roasting, spoon, pour or siphon off accumulated fat. This should be done at half-hour intervals so that the fat doesn't brown excessively.

13. After roasting for 1 hour, reduce the oven temperature to 325°F. Turn the goose breast side up again, and continue roasting.

14. Roast until thermometer in thigh registers 180°-185°F. Stuffing temperature should also be checked and it should register 165°F.

15. If a thermometer is not used, press meaty part of leg between protected fingers. It should feel very soft. Also prick thigh with a fork. The juices running out of thigh should be beige in color, not pink. The skin should be deep mahogany brown and crisp.

16. Place goose on heated serving platter. Cover loosely with foil to keep warm.

17. Make gravy: Pour ½ cup drippings into 2-qt. saucepan, blend in flour smoothly. Add reserved goose broth and burgundy. Bring to boiling, stirring. Season with salt, pepper, liquid gravy seasoning and frozen orange juice concentrate.

18. To serve: Garnish goose platter with parsley frosted cranberry garland and orange twists. Spoon hot potato rounds (prepared as pkg. label directs) on the side of goose.

Makes 6-8 servings,
5½ cups gravy

BAKED HAM WITH APRICOT-BOURBON GLAZE

1 (12-13 lbs.) fully cooked smoked ham
1 cup apricot jam
2 tablespoons bourbon
5 drops green food coloring
Water
Candied citron, cut into thin strips
15 dried apricots, soaked briefly in ¾ cup warm water
3 whole Maraschino cherries, drained
Blanched whole almonds

1. Preheat oven to 325°F. Place ham fat side up in shallow foil-lined roasting pan. Insert meat thermometer so that tip is in center of thickest part of meat and does not touch bone or rest in fat. Do not add water. Do not cover.

2. Roast ham for approximately 3 hours 15 minutes, allowing 10-15 minutes per pound. Meat thermometer should read 130°F.

3. Forty-five minutes before end of baking time, remove ham from oven. Remove rind with sharp knife and kitchen shears.

4. In small bowl, combine apricot preserves and bourbon. Set aside 2 tablespoons glaze for garnish.

5. Brush ham with apricot glaze; return to oven. Bake until done, brushing 3-4 times with glaze. When golden brown remove from oven and transfer to serving platter. Cover loosely with foil to keep warm.

6. Meanwhile, prepare garnish: While ham is baking, combine food coloring and water; soak citron in water for about 10 minutes to tint bright green.

7. To garnish as pictured: Form 3 apricot flowers on the ham. For each flower overlap 5 apricots in a circle, place cherry in center. Make stems from the strips of citron and leaves from almonds. Brush reserved glaze on apricots, cherries and almonds to make them glisten.

Makes 17-26 servings

SAVORY GREEN BEANS AND RED PEPPERS

2 lbs. fresh whole green beans, stemmed
1½ cups boiling water
½ teaspoon salt
2 red peppers, seeded and cut in strips*
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
Few twists freshly ground black pepper

1. Cook green beans in boiling, salted water about 10-15 minutes, or until as tender as you like. Toss beans once during cooking to cook evenly.

2. Add pepper strips and cook 2 minutes longer. Drain, save liquid, either to drink or to use in soups or gravy.

3. Add butter and pepper, tossing until well combined. Serve immediately. Makes 6 servings

Bake a holiday gift.

And bring back the feeling of an old-fashioned Christmas.

Give these delicious, home-baked Christmas cookies to someone special. But don't give away the secret ingredient, Karo® Syrup. It's Karo that makes them so rich in good old-fashioned flavor, so crisp and tender. Karo makes cookies brown up smooth and even. Makes the different flavors come through richer, truer, fresher-tasting. No wonder these Karo Christmas Cookies bring back warm memories of a real old-fashioned Christmas.

CHERRY DELIGHTS

Mix 1 cup Mazola® margarine and ½ cup sugar. Stir in ½ cup KARO light corn syrup, 2 egg yolks and 2½ cups flour. Chill. Roll into 1-inch balls. Dip into slightly beaten egg whites then 2 cups finely chopped nuts. Place on greased baking sheet. Press candied cherry halves into centers. Bake in 325°F. oven 20 minutes. Makes 4 doz.

BROWNIE MOUNDS

Sift 3⅓ cups sifted flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder and ½ teaspoon salt. Mix ⅔ cup Mazola margarine and 1½ cups sugar. Stir in ⅔ cup KARO light corn syrup and 2 eggs. Stir in flour, 6 (1-ounce) squares melted unsweetened chocolate, 2 teaspoons vanilla and 1½ cups coarsely chopped nuts. Drop by heaping tablespoonfuls onto greased baking sheet. Bake in 350°F. oven 10 to 12 minutes. Makes 4 doz.

DECORATED SPICE COOKIES

Sift 3 cups sifted flour, 2 teaspoons ginger, 1½ teaspoons cinnamon and 1 teaspoon ground cloves. Mix 1 cup Mazola margarine and ½ cup sugar; stir in ½ cup KARO dark corn syrup. Mix in flour. Roll out ⅛-inch thick on floured surface. Cut into shapes. Place on baking sheet. Bake in 350°F. oven about 10 min. Decorate. Makes 8 doz. 2-inch cookies.

PECAN TARTS

Mix ½ cup Mazola margarine and ½ cup sugar. Stir in 2 egg yolks, 1 teaspoon almond extract and 2 cups sifted flour. Press evenly into tiny tartshells or muffin cups. Bake in 400°F. oven 8 to 10 minutes. Bring to boil ½ cup margarine, ⅓ cup KARO dark corn syrup and 1 cup confectioners' sugar. Stir in 1 cup chopped pecans. Spoon into shells. Top with pecan halves. Bake in 350°F. oven 5 minutes. Makes 4 doz.

Make a festive package from any type of box. A shoe box is ideal.

Rath hickory smoking. It brings home the bacon flavor.

At Rath we still cure our bacon the slow old way over smoldering hickory.

Because there's just nothing like real hickory smoke to put the finishing touches on that nut-sweet bacon flavor.

So the very next time you want to treat your taste-buds to something sort of special—just send them a smoke signal from Rath.

Blue Cheese Filled Mushrooms

DANABLU STUFFED MUSHROOMS

1 lb. large fresh mushrooms
½ lb. Danish blue cheese, mashed
½ lb. (2 sticks) butter or margarine, softened
1 cup fine-curd creamed cottage cheese
Paprika or finely chopped parsley

1. Rinse quickly, pat dry and remove stems from mushrooms (save stems for use in soups, stews or sauces, etc.).

2. In a medium bowl, combine remaining ingredients; blend well with electric mixer.

3. Spoon or pipe through a large No. 8 star pastry tube into mushroom caps. Sprinkle with paprika or parsley if desired. Refrigerate covered if not serving immediately.

Makes 15-18 stuffed mushrooms

BAKED CURRIED FRUIT

1 can (1 lb. 14 ozs.) cling peach halves, drained
1 can (1 lb. 14 ozs.) pear halves, drained
1 can (1 lb. 13½ ozs.) sliced pineapple, drained
½ cup Maraschino cherries, drained
1 can (1 lb. 14 ozs.) apricot halves
½ cup syrup from apricots
⅓ cup butter or margarine
3 teaspoons curry powder
¾ cup light-brown sugar

1. Preheat oven to 350°F. Drain all fruits, except apricots. Reserve ½ cup apricot syrup, then drain. Pat fruits lightly with paper towels.

2. Arrange fruits in a large shallow baking pan.

3. In small skillet combine apricot syrup, butter, curry powder and brown sugar. Heat to boiling, stirring until butter melts and sugar dissolves. Drizzle syrup mixure over fruit.

4. Bake 30 minutes. To serve: Gently spoon fruits into casserole, serving dish or chafing dish; serve hot. Makes 2½ qts.

Make-ahead note: Can be made ahead through Step 3. Refrigerate, covered. Bake just before serving.

Editor's note: Can also be made using 1 lb. 1 oz. cans of fruit, ¼ cup Maraschino cherries and same amount of syrup-curry mixture. Makes 1¼ qts.

DEVILED EGGS WORCESTER

12 hard-cooked eggs
4 tablespoons mayonnaise
2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
2 tablespoons finely chopped sweet-pickle relish, well-drained
½ teaspoon salt
1 jar (2 ozs.) red salmon caviar, optional

1. Peel and halve eggs. Remove yolks and mash with a fork. (Or a glass pie plate is fine for this.) Set whites aside.

2. To yolks, add mayonnaise, Worcestershire sauce, pickle relish and salt. Blend well.

3. Spoon lightly or pipe through a pastry tube into reserved egg-white halves. Arrange on plate, cover with plastic film and refrigerate.

4. Just before serving, garnish with red salmon caviar if desired. Makes 24 stuffed eggs

TIPS ON "DOING" A GOOSE

How much to buy: Allow ½ lb. ready-to-cook weight per 3-ounce serving.

Thawing and storage: You can thaw a goose three ways–in your refrigerator, by leaving it in your sink under running cold water, or by placing it in a paper bag and letting it thaw at room temperature. Always leave the bird in its original wrap. A 10-14-lb. goose will take 1½-2 days in a refrigerator; 5-6 hours in cool water; or 10-12 hours at room temperature. Refrigerate or cook goose immediately after thawing.

Roasting time: A 10-12-lb. goose takes 1 hour at 400°F., plus another 2-2½ hours at 325°F.

It's a light dessert delight: Eggnog Chiffon Pie.

EGGNOG CHIFFON PIE

Chocolate Pie Shell

- ¾ cup semisweet chocolate morsels
- 2 teaspoons vegetable shortening
- 1 cup very finely chopped walnuts

1. Line a 9-inch pie plate with enough aluminum foil to extend about an inch over edge; keep foil smooth and even.

2. In top of double boiler, over hot, not boiling, water, melt chocolate and shortening. Remove from heat. Blend well. Stir in walnuts.

3. Working quickly with spatula or back of large spoon, press warm chocolate mixture evenly onto bottom and sides of foil-lined pie plate.

4. Chill in refrigerator about 30 minutes, or until firm.

5. Holding foil at edges, carefully lift firm shell out of pie plate. Gently peel off foil. Return shell to pie plate. Place in refrigerator.

Eggnog Filling

- 2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
- ¼ cup cold water
- 2 eggs, separated
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon ground nutmeg
- 2 cups canned eggnog
- 1 teaspoon pure vanilla extract
- ¼ cup light or golden rum
- ¼ cup sugar
- 1 cup (½ pt.) heavy cream, whipped, optional
- Sweet cooking-chocolate curls, optional

1. Sprinkle gelatin over cold water; soften 5 minutes.

2. In top of double boiler combine lightly beaten egg yolks, salt, nutmeg and eggnog. Cook over hot, not boiling, water 12-15 minutes, stirring until mixture thickens slightly and lightly coats a spoon.

3. Stir in softened gelatin until completely dissolved. Blend in vanilla extract and rum. Chill over ice water, stirring frequently, until consistency of unbeaten egg white.

4. In medium bowl beat egg whites until soft peaks form. Gradually beat in sugar until stiff peaks form.

5. Fold beaten whites into eggnog mixture. Chill over ice water until mixture mounds slightly when dropped from a spoon.

6. Turn into chilled chocolate shell. Refrigerate 3 hours, or until filling is set.

7. If desired, garnish with whipped cream rosettes and chocolate curls. In a hurry? Lightly spread whipped cream on top of pie and lightly sprinkle with ground nutmeg.

Makes 8 servings

Spirited Egg Nog. Nice and Easy.

Here's a nice-and-easy way to delight friends and relatives with delicious eggnog.

Just chill one quart can of Borden Egg Nog. Stir in 12 oz. Bacardi dark rum. Sprinkle with nutmeg or cinnamon and serve. Makes eleven 4-oz. servings.

Easy, isn't it? And it tastes like holiday eggnog should taste.

That's because Borden Egg Nog is rich, creamy and pure. And Bacardi dark rum is smooth, dry and mellow. So together they create a taste that's just great.

Keep them both on hand and you'll always be ready with something special for any occasion.

'Tis another reason to be jolly.

Pearl Bailey: "Add a Little Dash of Yourself"

"I cook just like I do shows: whatever crosses my mind."

Pearl's cooking wizardry has now been published in book form: "Pearl's Kitchen" (Harcourt, Brace, Jovanovich, $6.95).

By Pearl Bailey

In conversation with
Helen Dorsey

I cook just like I do shows: whatever crosses my mind.

I enjoy spontaneity. That's why I never use measuring cups and measuring spoons. You've got to inject a little bit of yourself into what you're doing, otherwise it isn't any fun! Therefore, my recipes are guidelines. Just use your imagination.

PEARL'S TURKEY

Take a great big onion, a stick of butter and some garlic and cram that into the turkey with some bacon. Sometimes I lay some bacon across the top of him. Put some salt, pepper and monosodium glutamate in him and that's it. And that makes it moist on the inside. (By the way, you can do the same thing with roast chicken.)

PEARL'S RICE PUDDING

4 cups cooked brown rice
1 qt. milk
½ pound (about 1½ cups) raisins
5 eggs, lightly beaten
1 cup sugar
6 tablespoons butter or margarine, cut up
1 tablespoon pure vanilla extract

Place all ingredients in a 3-qt. casserole; mix well. Bake uncovered in a preheated 350°F. oven for 5 minutes; stir well. Bake 1 hour longer, or until pudding is set. Serve warm or cold, with vanilla ice cream, if desired. Makes 10 servings

Sweeten up your holidays!

fudgie scotch ring

It's so easy and so good. Here's all you need:

1 6-oz. pkg. (1 cup) Nestlé's® Semi-Sweet Chocolate Morsels
1 6-oz. pkg. (1 cup) Nestlé's® Butterscotch Morsels
1 can Borden Eagle® Brand Sweetened Condensed Milk* (not evaporated milk)
1 cup coarsely chopped Diamond® Walnuts
½ teaspoon vanilla extract
1 cup Diamond® Walnut halves

*Magnolia® or Dime® Brands may be used

1. MELT chocolate & butterscotch morsels with sweetened condensed milk in top of double boiler over hot (not boiling) water. Stir occasionally till morsels melt and mixture begins to thicken. Remove from heat; add chopped walnuts and vanilla. Blend well. Chill for 1 hour till mixture thickens. Line bottom of 9" pie pan with a 12" square of foil. Place ¾ cup walnut halves in bottom of pan, forming 2" wide flat ring.

2. SPOON chocolate mixture in small mounds on top of walnuts to form ring. Decorate with remaining walnuts.

3. CHILL in refrigerator until firm enough to slice. Cut into ½ inch slices.

Makes about 36 slices.

The Dolphins' BOB GRIESE:

"I Think of Myself as a Chess Player"

Bob Griese, quarterback of the defending Super Bowl champion Miami Dolphins, is the "All-American boy" of pro football. Blond, blue-eyed and married with two children, Griese dresses like a business executive off the field—and as a matter of fact lives that role as a sales representative for National Airlines and Sears-Roebuck. . . . His approach to football is just as businesslike. "In a game, I think of myself as a chess player," he says. "If you know exactly what's going on, you can maneuver your people like chess pieces and manipulate your offense to take advantage of what the defense is showing.". . . Preparation is a key to Griese's success. Each evening, he studies game films and takes copious notes, to the point where he is ready for almost every defense move in the next game. . . . Griese led the Dolphins to the American Football Conference playoffs three years ago and, finally, to a Super Bowl title last January. . . . The 190-pound native of Evansville, Ind., dreamed of playing for Notre Dame, but when he was turned down, he enrolled at Purdue. In 1965, he got his revenge by leading his team to an upset win over the No. 1-ranked Irish. . . . Griese disdains the "rah rah" approach in leading his team. "It's not necessary when you have great professionals who know their jobs," he says. "All you do is call the right play at the right time and they'll execute it for you."

BLUE PLATE Special 1.19

Even at the firemen's parade, everyone seems to have a gimmick—almost everyone. Pick the one who doesn't.

1. Sorry. Meet "Clean Ed" Mealmangel, discount diner owner. Gimmick: Leaves his thumb print in mashed potatoes. Smokes ABL's "Any Brand Left" in the ash trays. 2. No. And no. Tex'n'Tilly, icky-poo radio-TV personalities. Gimmick: If it moves, interview it. They once even used a stethoscope to talk to a mole. 3. Jerry Jibroni. Spends so much time setting up, he never sees parade. Smokes cigarettes so super-long he almost needs binoculars to light them. 4. He's Tom Thump. His bass drum really is a gimmick: Can't stand the noise, but he likes to wear it. Puts cotton in his ears and in his cigarette filters. 5. Right. He enjoys the passing parade, without any gimmicks. That's why he smokes Camel Filters. They're good tasting, easy and honest. His kind of cigarette. 6. He's "Sweeps" Streate. Hopes mounted police won't parade. But they always do.

PLUS AN EXTRA BONUS GIFT

This attractive, solid-state

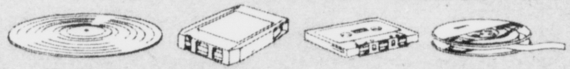
TRANSISTOR RADIO

SOLID STATE

From Hong Kong

This compact transistor radio fits in the palm of your hand—yet enables you to hear your favorite programs with amazing clarity. Colorful, high-impact styrene case. Complete with battery, swivel wrist strap, and earphone too. It's yours as a gift for joining now!

ALL SELECTIONS* SHOWN ARE AVAILABLE ON



12″ stereo records — 8-track cartridges — tape cassettes — 7″ reel-to-reel tapes

 Selections marked with a star are not available in reel tapes

Here's a great new offer—exclusive with the Columbia Record & Tape Club! We not only offer you a big introductory package of 11 stereo tapes or records for only $1.97—we also give you an all-transistor radio as an extra bonus for joining.

Just mail the application together with your check or money order for $1.97 to order your 11 stereo tapes or records (and your transistor radio). Be sure to indicate whether you want cartridges, cassettes, reel tapes or records. In exchange . . .

You agree to buy just nine more selections (at regular Club prices) in the coming two years. That's right!—you'll have two full years in which to buy just nine selections . . . so you are not obligated to buy a record or tape every month, or even every other month! And you may cancel your membership at any time after you've purchased your nine selections.

Your own charge account will be opened upon enrollment . . . and the selections you order as a member will be mailed and billed at the regular Club prices: cartridges and cassettes, $6.98; reel tapes, $7.98; records, $4.98 or $5.98 . . . plus processing and postage. (Occasional special selections may be somewhat higher.)

You may accept or reject selections as follows: every four weeks (13 times a year) you will receive a new copy of the Club's music magazine, which describes the Selection of the Month for each musical interest . . . plus hundreds of alternate selections from every field of music. In addition, about six times a year we will offer some special selections (usually at a discount off regular Club prices). A response card will be enclosed with each magazine.

. . . if you do not want any selection offered mail the response card by the date specified

. . . if you want only the Selection of the Month for your musical interest, you need do nothing—it will be shipped to you automatically

. . . if you want any of the other selections offered just order them on the response card and mail it by the date specified.

You will always have at least 10 days in which to make a decision. If for any reason you do not have 10 days in which to decide, you may return the regular selection at our expense and you will receive full credit for it.

You'll be eligible for the Club's bonus plan upon completing your enrollment agreement—a plan which enables you to save at least 33% on all your future purchases. This is the most convenient way possible to build a record or tape library at the greatest savings possible—so act now while you can still take advantage of this special offer!

COLUMBIA RECORD & TAPE CLUB

Helps Shrink Painful Swelling Of Hemorrhoidal Tissues Caused By Inflammation And Infection

Also Gives Prompt, Temporary Relief in Many Cases from Pain and Burning Itch in Such Tissues.

There's an exclusive medication which actually helps shrink painful swelling of hemorrhoidal tissues caused by inflammation. And in many cases gives prompt relief for hours from rectal itching and pain in such tissues.

Tests by doctors on patients showed while it gently relieved such pain, it also helped reduce swelling of these tissues.

The medication used in the tests was Preparation H®. No prescription is needed for Preparation H. In ointment or suppository form.

INFLATABLE SEAT BELT
Safer in overturns?

Here's the latest in the car-safety field. As shown, inflatable seat belts combine the traditional seat belt with an inflatable air-bag device—a system that has been the subject of many experiments. According to the Allied Chemical Corp. in Morristown, N.J., where the inflatable seat belt was developed, the new seat belt is inflated by a compressed gas cylinder under the seat in a time of 10 to 15 milliseconds, as a hidden sensor detects a crash. The belt expands to a pillow of six inches in diameter to protect the passenger's lap and chest. Unlike the air-bag system, the belt remains inflated, providing longer safety to the passengers should the car overturn. Whether the inflatable seat belts can also be used as water wings remains to be seen.

Tony Bennett

QUOTE: One reason he's still successful after all these years, says singer Tony Bennett, is because people like mistakes. "Live audiences are a challenge. If I goof, they know it. Mistakes are spontaneous, and the results are better than any comedy writer could make up. It shows I'm human, I don't want to make mistakes—but when I do, it's a great accident." UNQUOTE.

LOVE STORY
Who could die of loneliness?

"My little 'grandchild' would lean over and kiss me and pat me and kiss me again. It would just lift me . . . lift me right up high. Who could ever go home and die of loneliness after that?" octogenarian Lutie Cone asked a group of senior citizens recently. Mrs. Cone of Nashville, Tenn., is just one of nearly 10,000 volunteers currently working in children's institutions under a federally funded program called Foster Grandparents, which operates all over the country to bring together low-income senior citizens and institutionalized children. "It just goes to show that us old folks aren't ready for the shelf yet!" says Mrs. Cone.

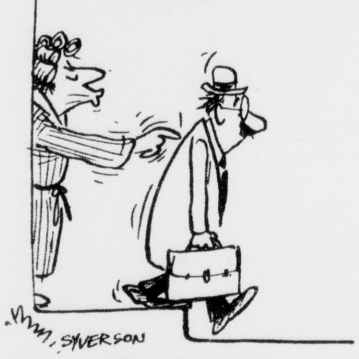
ARMOUR'S ARMOURY
By Richard Armour



FORGET FULL

Things I forget are such as these:
My driver's license and my keys,
My checkbook and my credit card
(Which makes a purchase rather hard),
My glasses, which I oft misplace,
And just as oft my glasses case.

But still, as I proclaim in verse,
Things could, in truth, be even worse.
I might forget to don my pants,
And people then would look askance.
I might forget what should be known,
Such as my street address, my phone.
I might forget still more things yet,
Just what they are, though, I forget.

When four-year-old Mark asked why his father had to go to work, he was advised, "Because I have to earn money to pay for this house."

And Mark replied earnestly, "Can't Grandpa pay for it? He's not doing anything."

Some time ago, one of the little girls in my neighborhood stopped in to see me. She had a new puppy and was all excited, but mentioned they were keeping it out in the garage. When I asked her why they were keeping the puppy in the garage, her reply was, "Well, it has to stay out there until it is heartbroken."

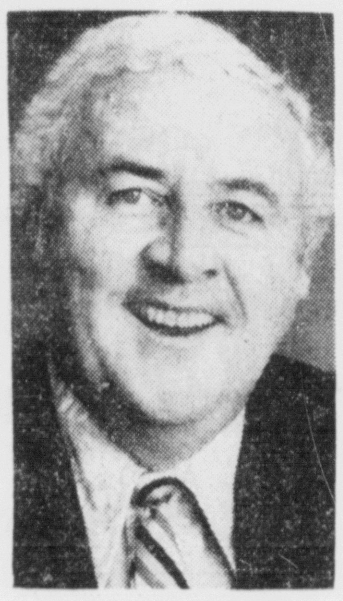
McGuire Seeking Democratic Bid



TERRENCE McGUIRE
Seeks nomination

Terrence V. McGuire, a San Rafael businessman, today announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination in the Fifth Congressional District.

McGuire, 45, said in a press statement that his decision to run was based "on a deep frustration with our political system, the lack of concern, and inaccessibility of the professional politicians with the people who elect them.

"How does a father explain to his children the corruption and lack of credibility in the government which will some day belong to the young?" he asked. McGuire said professional politicians "have made a mess of the system. It's about time the average citizen took an active interest in government," he added.

McGuire spoke Thursday night before the Marin County Democratic Central Committee, saying then he was considering entering the race.

Three others already have announced they will seek the nomination. They are Alan F. Reeves and Alan D. French of San Francisco and Lloyd F. Harolds of Novato. Assembly-

'NOW LISTEN, SANTA'

Gregory Tood, 4, has a lot of important things to tell Santa Claus. The Youngster, who met that "merry old elf" (played by Robert Cooper) yesterday at Sears in Northgate, first chastised the old man. "You forgot me last year," he told Santa. Gregory was also afraid that Mr. Claus would find out that he had not been a perfectly good boy all year. "No peeking in my closet, because it's a mess," the youngster warned. (Photo by Fred Arn)

Truckers Hijack A Crane

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Police said dissident truckers today had hijacked a crane sent to help pull a derailed Penn Rentral freight train back on the track at East Liverpool, Ohio.

"That's true, they commandeered a crane,," said East Liverpool police Lt. Orin Smith. "The freight train just jumped the track and nobody was hurt. There were 600 or 700 trucks at a truck stop near the tracks."

The crane was recovered and no arrests were made as a result of the incident—one of a number of violent actions apparently made by independent truckers trying to halt highway traffic in their protest against high fuel prices and low speed limits.

More than 85 incidents, half of them shootings, were reported in Ohio by 2 a.m. today, "but nothing has happpened since then," the Ohio patrol said. "They've apparently calmed down and gone home."

Shortly before midnight, the patrol succeeded in clearing some 500 trucks corralled in the Decima Truck Stop on Interstaate 70 near Dayton.

"They headed them up and moved them out," the patrol said.

The shutdown began early Thursday and violence erupted at the outset, as the drivers who chose to continue to operate their rigs were stoned and shot at in at least a dozen states from Colorado and Montana to the East Coast.

One truck in Arkansas was blown up. The tires of some trucks were slashed when the trucks stopped for fuel. Hundreds of truck drivers were bottled up in truck stops by protesting truckers using their vehicles to keep others from getting fuel and moving on.

Despite the violence, there were only a few scattered reports of minor injuries.

Three truck drivers were arrested in Pennsylvania for throwing rocks at trucks, and one of the leaders of the shutdown, John Sassi, was arrested in Glasgow, Del., on charges of carrying a gun. Policemen who arrested Sassi were responding to complaints he and three other men were threatening truck drivers trying to operate in the area.

A Suggestion Of Service At Napa

By ERIK INGRAM

A state health official yesterday proposed that Napa State Hospital be used for Medi-Cal psychiatric patients who are refused admittance to Ross General hospital and cannot be cared for elsewhere in Marin.

The suggestion from Andrew G. Robertson, deputy director of the State Department of Health, came at a meeting with county officials to review the latest financial crisis to hit local mental health services.

Robertson also announced his agency will audit the use of state psychiatric funds at local facilities, such as Ross General. He said Ross is not without blame in the crisis and "has tried its case in the press."

As reported Thursday, Ross General has laid off 20 employees and refused to admit medical patients to its 54-bed psychiatric ward in a dispute with the county over allocation of state funds.

Ross officials say they were promised about $650,000 this fiscal year and accepted patients on a "good faith" basis without a contract.

In November, five months into the fiscal year, Ross received a contract from the county limiting the hospital's annual allocation to $350,000 — to be paid over 12 months.

Based on the original understanding that $650,000 would be forthcoming, Ross General had already used about $300,000. When the actual allocation was made only $50,000 was left for the remaining seven months.

Marin General Hospital, meanwhile, the only other major facility offering hospital psychiatric care, is continuing to accept patients, but officials have complained of a similar financial pinch.

The state audit of both psychiatric programs and funds was requested last week by Betty L. Presley, director of the county department of health and human services.

Miss Presley said yesterday she asked for the audit to help find the causes of the financial crisis in the mental health community.

County officials have acknowledged they are, in part, at fault for the funding foul-up because of delays in submitting contracts. However, officials say Ross General may have contributed to the problem.

Robertson said his audit (to be completed by February) will determine whether Ross accepted out-of-county Medi-Cal patients without clearance from mental health officials in the

Tentative Hospital Contract Is Reached

A tentative contract to end the eight-day-old strike at 14 Kaiser Foundation hospitals, including the San Rafael facility, was negotiated early today.

Agreement on the proposed new contract for about 4,800 workers was reached at about 3 a.m. by negotiators in Oakland who had talked for almost 13 hours.

Union members will meet tomorrow to vote whether they accept or reject the new pact. Details of the contract will be released then by Hospital and Institutional Workers Local 250.

Wages and fringe benefits are the major points of the dispute that led to the strike. The union has been seeking pay and fringe benefit increases averaging 8.6 per cent, while Kaiser had offered 6.4 per cent.

Talks aimed at settling the 13-day-old butchers strike have opened at the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service in Washington, D.C. The remaining issue in the dispute is a cost-of-living pay hike.

No progress was reported in the strike of carpenters protesting a federal limit on a pay hike for them.

INDUSTRY IN SAUSALITO IS FEATURED

The Marin Living section of today's Independent-Journal focusses upon industrial Sausalito.

One story deals with a Sausalito industry of the past — whisky-making — at the old American Distilling Co. distillery and its much earlier, colorful predecessor, the John Mason Irish Malt Whiskey Distilling Co.

Another story tells about a 75-year-old manufacturing business still functioning and growing in Sausalito — the E. D. Bullard Co., specialists in the marketing of industrial safety equipment ranging from hard hats to first aid kits.

Conference Delay Is Seen

Strategy Round In Damacus

DAMASCUS, Syria (UPI) — U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger discussed the scheduled Middle East peace conference with Syrian leaders Saturday in the first visit to Damascus by an American Secretary of State since 1953.

Shortly before Kissinger arrived in Damascus, a highranking American official traveling with him said the peace conference, originally scheduled to covene Tuesday, may be postponed "a day or so" because of "procedural matters."

(Arab sources in Geneva said the issue of Palestinian representation at the session may cause a delay.)

Kissinger, on a tour of six Arab capitals and Israel, is the first U.S. Secretary of State to come here since John Foster Dulles 20 years ago.

Hundreds of plainclothes police, many carrying machineguns, guarded the airport and the streets used by Kissinger's official motorcade upon his arrival from Saudi Arabia.

Saudi sources said Kissinger tried, but failed, to get King Faisal to agree to lift his embargo on oil shipments to the United States when the Geneva conference opens.

The sources said Faisal insisted the embargo would be lifted only when Israel has started withdrawing from all Arab territory occupied during the 1967 Arab-Israeli war under an American-guaranteed agreement.

Syria, which has had no diplomatic relations with the United States since the 1967 six-day Arab-Israeli war, has expressed official skepticism about the projected Geneva conference and Kissinger's sincerity in seeking an Israeli withdrawal.

Its refusal to provide a list of Israeli prisoners except "within the framework of a plan for complete Israeli withdrawal from the occupied Arab territories" had threatened to torpedo the conference.

There was no indication whether Kissinger planned to bring up the subject of the estimated 127 Israeli prisoners held by the Syrians since the October war. There are about 300 Syrian prisoners in Israeli hands.

Line Will Be Open To Santa Claus

Marin children who want to talk to Santa Claus will have a direct line to the North Pole between 7 and 9 Tuesday and Wednesday nights.

On those nights the Mill Valley, San Rafael and Novato Junior Chambers of Commerce will join with the Independent-Journal in providing a holiday hotline.

The telephone numbers are 388-2900 in Mill Valley, 454-3020 in San Rafael and 892-9000 in Novato.

Kids from all over the county may call any of these numbers, according to John Leonard of the I-J classified advertising department. Volunteer Jaycees will act as Santa Claus, he said.

"This is the 16th year we've done this," Leonard said. "Usually we get around 4,000 calls."

YOU DON'T EVEN NEED A DIME — Inspector Edward Klementovich of the Marin Sheriff's Department displays an electronic gadget, known as a "blue box" which "phone phreaks" use to defraud the telephone company. The device enables individuals to make long distance calls all over the world without paying for them.

'PHONE PHREAKS'

Telephone Company Breaking Up Calls

By GEORGE NEVIN

The Pacific Telephone Co. has come up with a new way to trap "phone phreaks," electronic wizards who up to now have been outwitting Ma Bell.

The system, which depends on tapping the telephone of anyone suspected of using electronic gadgets to avoid paying for long distance calls, came to light yesterday with the arrest of a Point San Pedro man.

Armed with a search warrant, Marin sheriff's deputies converged on the home of Sanford Herschel Kosman, 32, of 34 Marine Drive.

There, according to Sgt. Garrett N. McDonald, they discovered a "blue box," the name given by phone phreaks (as they call themselves) to a sophisticated electronic device.

Officers also confiscated a seven-page booklet explaining how to use the gadget, and arrested Kosman, a manufacturer of custom motorcycle parts.

McDonald said Kosman bought the device from an out-of-state friend for $325 and had been using it for about three weeks.

The manual describes how the "blue box," — which has 10 buttons which emit musical tones when pressed — works:

A phone phreak uses the box to beep out a number, either a long distance information number or one of the toll-free numbers in the 800 area code series.

Once hooked into the long distance equipment, the phreak punches more box buttons, disconnecting his phone from the information or toll-free number. He then punches out a new number anywhere in the world.

The phone company was powerless to catch the phreaks until recently, McDonald said, when its computerized billing equipment was modified to show when any phone was used to

It's Official: Time Change Set Jan. 6

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon today signed legislation putting most of the nation on year-round daylight saving time for the first time since World War II.

Clocks will be put ahead at 2 a.m. January 6, in an effort to conserve energy by reducing use of electricity for lighting and heating.

The legislation cleared Congress late Friday and Nixon moved quickly to sign the bill, which will keep the United States on daylight saving time until October, 1975.

Nixon signed the bill at midmorning in his White House office and issued a statement praising Congress for acting quickly on his DST proposal.

He said the change would produce energy savings equivalent to about 150,000 barrels of oil a day during winter months with "only a minimum of inconvenience and . . . equal participation by all."

Nixon urged Congress to act equally swiftly on other energy-saving proposals he has submitted even though they might "require inconvenience and sacrifice" for the public.

"I call upon the Congress to complete action before the recess on responsible bills to provide the energy emergency authorities we need to deal with the problem and to give a statutory base to the Federal Energy Administration to provide the necessary focused leadership," the statement said.

The energy legislation Nixon was referring to passed the House early this morning, but with a number of amendments not included in a Senate approved version. A conference committee will try next week to reconcile differences so that the legislation is finally passed before Congress adjourns, probably about the end of the week.

A White House spokesman said Nixon would issue an executive order later in the day to grant exemptions to certain areas.

Rep. Norman Lent, R-N.Y., who had proposed a year-round DST bill more than a year ago,

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Ervin, Weicker Reveal Tax Returns

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sens. Sam J. Ervin and Lowell P. Weicker revealed their 1972 tax returns yesterday and both paid far higher taxes on far less income than President Nixon.

Ervin

The move came after the President made public his controversial tax returns, and the White House challenged his critics to do the same.

In a related development, Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., says a congressional investigation of the IRS — undertaken after the "enemies list" came to light — shows the IRS may have "treated too favorably" some of President Nixon's friends.

Weicker

He says the investigation by the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation, of which he is vice chairman, showed the IRS did not harass taxpayers on the enemies list.

Weicker, R-Conn., and Ervin, D-N.C., waved their tax returns on the Senate floor last night in reaction to stories that White House aides wanted Nixon to challenge his critics to reveal their income tax returns. The two senators then submitted their returns for publication in the Congressional Record.

They showed that Ervin paid $15,485.55 in federal taxes in 1972 on an adjusted gross income of $63,440. Weicker paid $14,350 on an income of $67,939.

Nixon reported a 1972 income of $268,777 — on which he paid only $4,298 in taxes.

Bus Explodes

BELFAST (UPI) — Alerted by a bus driver, police in Belfast last night cordoned off a downtown area and — while "Silent Night" echoed through the deserted streets — waited for a bus packed with bombs to explode.

The bus, hijacked by four gunmen, blew up two hours later, shattering windows and collapsing dozens of storefronts. No one was injured.

Extra Trains

MONTREAL (UPI) — Canadian National said yesterday it will add at least 50 extra passenger trains to its service on the Christmas-New Year's holiday to handle an expected 500,000 passengers.

With the first extra trains moving out as early as Dec. 20, the traditional turkey and plum pudding supplies have already been ordered, he said.

Watergate Blame

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — President Juan D. Peron suggested Friday that the U.S. military hatched the Watergate scandal as part of a campaign to discredit civilian politicians throughout the southern hemisphere.

"We have to defend politicians all over the world and especially in Latin America, where politicians have been slandered," said the 78-year-old president.

Swearing-In Delay

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Although Sen. William B. Saxbe, R-Ohio, is assured of confirmation as attorney general, he will delay his swearing-in until after the first of the year when he will be eligible for a congressional pension.

But William Hoiles, Saxbe's administrative assistant, said yesterday the delay had nothing to do with the fact that Saxbe will become eligible for the pension after Jan. 3. He described it as a "fortunate occurence and not the rationale."

At that time Saxbe will have completed five years of his first term and will become vested in the pension program.

American Killed

SAIGON (UPI) — Communist troops today ambushed a helicopter after it landed only 12 miles from Saigon and killed an American officer who stood up to show he was unarmed. He was the first American killed since the Vietnam truce.

Saigon government spokesmen said a South Vietnamese aboard the helicopter was also killed and seven other persons were wounded.

New Patent Head

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Curtis Marshall Dann, an executive of the DuPont Co. in Wilmington, Del., was nominated by the President yesterday to be U.S. commissioner of patents. He will succeed Robert Gottschalk, who resigned the post last June.

Young Getty, With An Ear Missing, Is Freed

ROME (UPI) — J. Paul Getty III, his right ear missing, was freed from five months' captivity by his alleged kidnapers today. He ate spaghetti, held a tearful reunion with his mother and then was taken to Rome for police questioning.

Police found the 17-year-old grandson of the American billionaire shivering in freezing rain by the side of a country road near the town of Lagonegro, about 100 miles south of Naples. He was clad in only a shirt, trousers and tennis shoes.

Fernando Masone, chief of the Rome Police Flying Squad, drove young Getty back to the capital hours after his release. Getty was freed two days after the family completed payment of a $2.9 million ransom.

Getty, the red-haired, freckled "golden hippie" of Rome's teen-age set, was examined by a doctor and then questioned briefly by police and the district prosecutor of Lagonegro.

"I am ill," police quoted young Getty as saying. "I want to leave here. I don't want to talk about it."

Police said they suspected a band of Calabrian drug runners organized the kidnap. Getty was abducted the night of July 9 in front of the French Embassy in Rome's Piazza Farnese.

J. PAUL GETTY III
In frail health

Police said young Getty "devoured" a plate of spaghetti with butter they prepared for him at their Lagonegro barracks. Later, a doctor examined him and the bandaged wound where his ear had been severed, allegedly by his abductors.

The doctor said apart from numbness from the cold, Getty was in good physical condition.

The boy's mother, Mrs. Gail Harris, left her Rome apartment and drove with Masone to the Lagonegro barracks. There, weeping, she hugged and kissed her son repeatedly.

"It's finally finished," police quoted him as saying to his mother.

"Paul, only now I'm beginning to live again," she was quoted as telling him. "I have always believed in you."

Police said the youth was standing in the rain under a gas station shelter. As soon as the police car pulled up to the station, he ran toward it.

"I am Paul Getty, captain," police quoted him as saying. "Can you give me a cigarette? Look, they cut off my ear."

Police quoted the youth as saying of his kidnapers: "They left me here several hours ago. I walked a great deal in the rain. I haven't eaten for several days. For five months they kept me traveling."

During the five months of negotiations, Getty's alleged kidnapers sent a human ear to a Rome newspaper and said it was his. They later sent a poor quality photograph to another newspaper showing the youth without an ear and threatened to cut him up "piece by piece" if the ransom money were not paid.

Sailors Killed On Kitty Hawk Caught In A 'Wall Of Flame'

SUBIC BAY NAVAL BASE, Philippines (UPI) — The commander of the U.S. aircraft carrier Kitty Hawk said today the six sailors killed in Tuesday's shipboard fire were caught in a "solid wall of flame" in the vessel's main machinery room.

Capt. Robert E. Kirksey told reporters the blaze broke out when fuel being transferred to oil tanks ignited and sent flames racing through the machinery room as the big ship was about 700 miles east of the Philippines.

He said when the fuel ignited, it touched off a fire that "resembled a solid wall of flame and spread quickly throughout the upper levels of the space. Within 10 minutes smoke and fumes had completely filled the main fore and aft passageway."

The six men who died were standing watch in the room when the fire broke out. A total of 39 others were injured, most of them aiding in rescue operations.

Kirksey said the fuel was being transferred from storage tanks to service tanks in the No. 1 machinery room when the fire broke out. He said an investigation was still under way to determine exact cause of the blaze.

The dead men were identified as Fireman Apprentice Samuel J. Cardenas, 20, Pueblo, Colo.; Fireman Apprentice Alan J. Champine, 18, Mt. Clemens, Mich.; Fireman Recruit Michael R. Deverichi, 19, Romulus, Mich.; Fireman Recruit Kevin W. Johnson, 17, Yakima, Wash.; Fireman Recruit Linn C. Schambers, 19, Van Nuys; and Fireman Apprentice Joseph P. Tulipana, 19, Dover, Mo.

Reporters were not allowed to see the damaged machinery room, located on the ship's fifth and sixth decks. Kirksey said no vital equipment was damaged and the 80,000-ton vessel with its 5,500 men was "fully operational."

The Kitty Hawk arrived last night at Subic, the main service base in the Pacific for the U.S. 7th Fleet, 50 miles northwest of Manila.

Pat Nixon Wins In Magazine Poll

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Good Housekeeping magazine's "Most Admired Woman" is Pat Nixon for the second year in a row. The magazine said yesterday Mrs. Nixon won twice as many first place votes as Mamie Eisenhower, the runner-up.

Rose Kennedy placed third, followed by Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir, Lady Bird Johnson, Shirley Temple Black, actress Patricia Neal, Princess Grace, and Dr. Joyce Brothers.

Julie Nixon Eisenhower finished tenth in the poll for her "spirited defense" of her father, President Nixon, the magazine said. About 1,500 of the magazine's subscribers were selected at random to participate in the poll.

Fired Detective Is Suing Macy's

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A former detective for Macy's department store claimed in a $2 million suit Thursday that his business telephone was tapped by the firm's security chief.

Alfred C. Byrd, 36, said in the suit that he was fired without written notice or a hearing.

Ten persons, some of them Macy's employees, filed a $13 million suit last week and said the store tapped their conversations.

Byrd said in his Superior Court suit that he was fired because he is black and his former supervisor disliked him.

Electrical Cuts Loom In Britain

LONDON (UPI) — Britons already suffering blackouts, strikes, three-day work weeks, slow moving trains and possible mass unemployment faced new woes today—the prospect of electicity cuts to their homes of up to 40 hours a week.

The warning came as government leaders voiced agreement that Britain was in the midst of its worst national crisis in decades. Opposition Labor Party leader Harold Wilson said yesterday, "the power crisis presents us all with perhaps the gravest situation we have faced since the war."

Ronald Richardson, deputy chairman of the government's Electricity Council, said if householders did not respond to Prime Minister Edward Heath's appeal for strict economy in the use of electricity, cuts of up to 40 hours a week would have to be made.

"Either the public—particularly in their homes—responds to the need, or they will face the fiercest and most savage cuts this country, or indeed any country has ever faced," he said.

Whether or not they are hit with the electricity cuts, Britons apparently are going to pay more taxes.

Political sources predicted Chancellor of the Exchequer Anthony Barber will double the value added tax to 20 per cent on consumer goods and raise the tax on alcohol and tobacco when he announces his crisis budget Monday.

Wilson told a nationwide television audience the country's coal miners' overtime ban, the slow-down by train engineers and the national oil shortage "have all hit Britain at a time when we were already weakened by the worst economic sitaation we have had for a generation."

Press Club Boss

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Clyde LaMotte, an energy and environment specialist with the LaMotte News Bureau in Washington, was elected president of the National Press Club yesterday.

Span Director Resigns Key Chairmanship

Golden Gate Bridge District Director Ben K. Lerer, citing his disagreement "with certain of the fiscal policies" of the board majority, resigned yesterday as chairman of the key finance-auditing committee.

Lerer, a San Francisco attorney, declined to answer questions by newsmen about which policies he opposed. He said only that it "wouldn't be fair to take it out of context."

Board chairman Stephan C. Leonoudakis, also of San Francisco, promptly appointed director Lowell Edington of Napa County to replace Lerer as committee chairman. Leonoudakis accepted the resignation "with regret."

Many directors long have been dissatisfied with Lerer's detailed review and sharp questioning of expenses, particularly those for the ferryboat system. He has been a bridge director for 19 years and chairman of the committee for the past five years.

Lerer repeatedly has cast minority and often solitary votes against district expenditures, arguing the spending rate soon would bankrupt the district.

Golden Gate Bridge District directors also:

FERRIES — Approved additional automatic docking and passenger loading equipment for the three new ferryboats being built in San Diego, at an added cost of $103,800 for all three vessels.

GASOLINE — Referred to committee a staff proposal to cut from three to two gallons the maximum amount of gasoline sold to motorists who run out of fuel on the span. The price should be held at a bargain 40 cents a gallon, the staff said.

JANITOR — Extended for one year a $1,712-a-month contract with Cervetto Building Maintenance Co. to serve the administration building, bunker offices and San Francisco ferry terminal.

SUBSTITUTE — Appointed Dale Norton, chief of administration and security, to serve also as acting general manager when Gen. Mgr. Dale W. Luehring is absent.

SALARY — Hiked the annual salary of district Secty. Peter D. Clainos from $18,780 to $23,532, his first pay hike since he joined the district more than three years ago.

SAUSALITO — Received a proposal from the City of Sausalito that the district negotiate for land for its permanent downtown ferry terminal with both the city and lease holder Madden and Lewis.

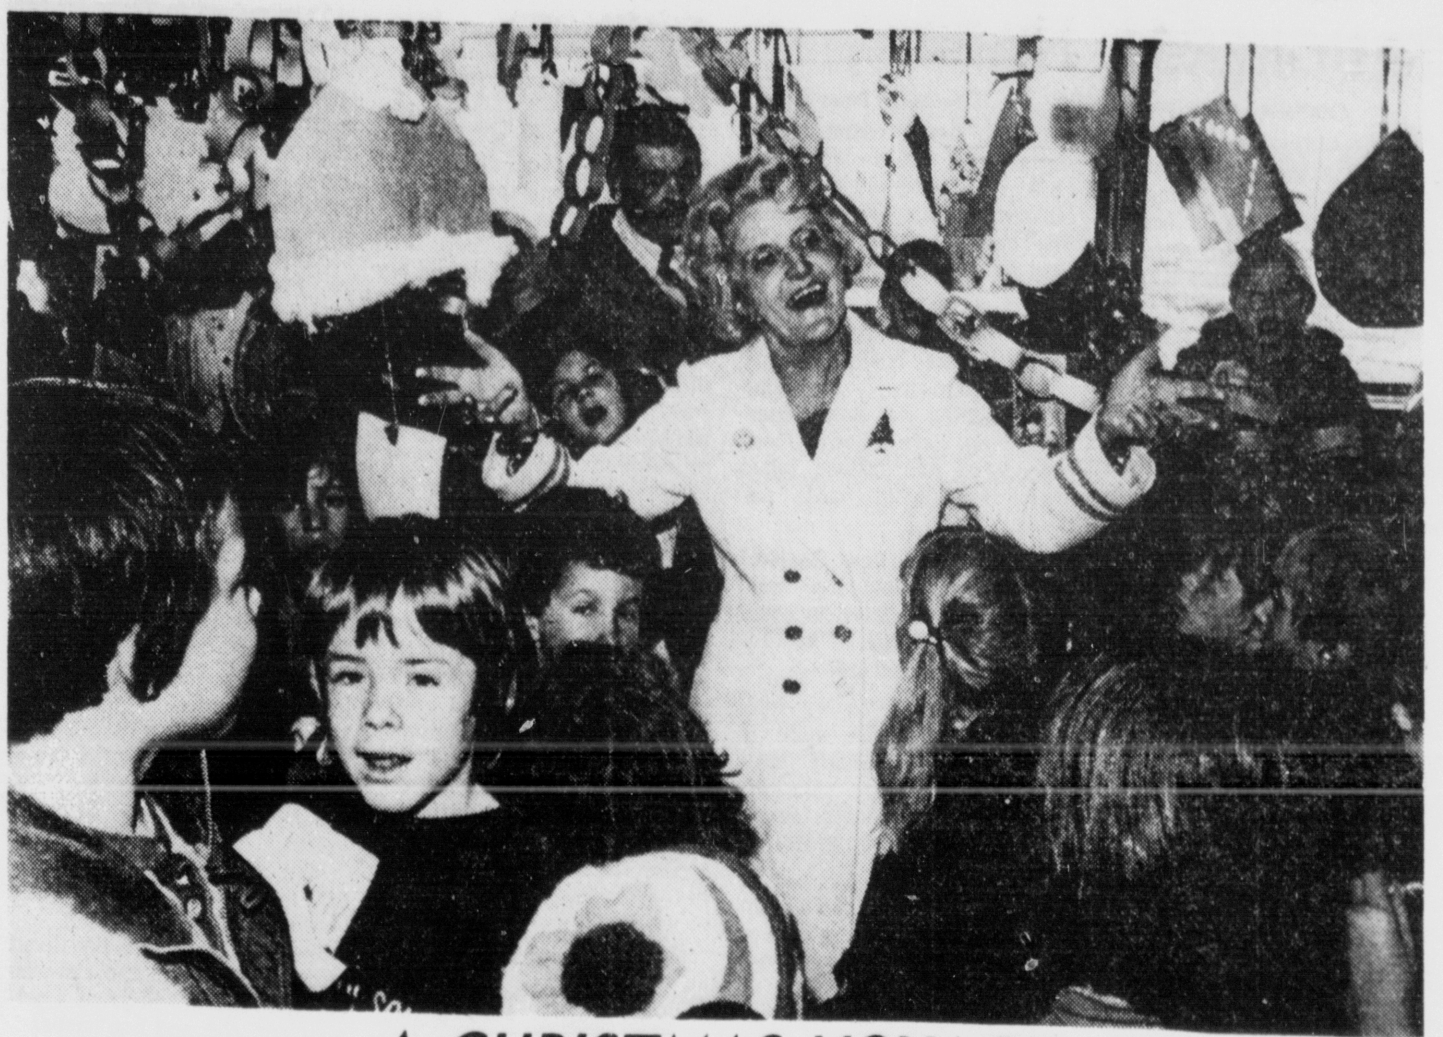
SAN RAFAEL — Referred to committee a proposal by the San Rafael City Council that the district and city form a joint powers agreement to finance expanded parking for commuters using district buses.

ELECTION — Reelected existing officers for a second one-year term: Leonoudakis as president, Edwin Fraser of Del Norte County as first vice president, and San Francisco Supervisor Peter Tamaras as second vice president.

Wrapped Package Warning Is Issued

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Christmas travelers have been warned by officials at San Francisco International Airport against carrying any wrapped gifts with them.

"Travelers who carry wrapped gifts run the risk of having to open them for inspection by the security officers," said a spokesman. "Gifts should be put in their luggage."



A CHRISTMAS VOYAGE

Edwina Cordoni, former principal of Coleman School in San Rafael, leads the school's first graders in Christmas carols after they decorated the ferryboat Golden Gate yesterday in Sausalito. The 81 students worked on the Christmas decorations since Thanksgiving. As a reward for their labor, they were given a free ferry trip to San Francisco.

Governor Shakes Up State Panel

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan has drastically shaken up the state Air Resources Board five days before it will consider his request to change requirements that 5 million 1966-70 cars install antismog devices.

Reagan appointed four new members to the five-member board.

Reagan has asked the board to again reconsider its decisions to require installation of antismog devices on the older cars. The board has repeatedly turned down requests to scrap the program.

Reagan appointed former Republican Assemblyman Charles J. Conrad of Sherman Oaks as chairman of the board.

Conrad served 26 years in the Assembly, losing his seat in 1972. He was not known for antismog legislation.

Another new Reagan appointee to the board is a former vice president of Standard Oil of California, Augustus H. Batchelder of Santa Rosa. He replaces R. Robert Brattain of Pebble Beach, who resigned.

The other new members are David I. Kline of Visalia, who replaces resigning Allen B. Lemmon of Sacramento, and Roger L. Mosher of Palo Alto, who replaces Gladys Meade of Redondon Beach, who was fired.

The new appointees must be confirmed by the Senate.

Rancho Cotate Students Begin Government Program

Some 22 students attending Rancho Cotate High School will participate in a students in local government program Monday, the first such event in Rohnert Park.

The students, members of classes studying "The Maze — Study of an American City," have elected city councilmen, chosen a mayor and appointed a city manager in accordance with California election laws, according to their teacher, Don Kite.

Jeri Cochran will act as mayor, and other councilmen will be Jason Seale, Mary Brock, Tom Sheehan and Jeff Roberts. Randy Robinson was named city manager.

The students will hold an executive session at 3 p.m. at the high school and then join in a potluck dinner with city leaders at the community center. They will officiate at the first part of the real Rohnert Park city council meeting, scheduled to begin at 7 p.m. in the city hall.

The students have spent hundreds of hours preparing for the day, Kite said.

NO BEAR LIKE AN OLD BEAR

Elizabeth Valladarez is completely fascinated by two bears which have been around for a long time, probably long enough for her mother, or even her grandmother, to have played with as children. Shortly after photographer Jim Kean snapped the picture, the 4-year-old San Francisco girl could resist her natural impulses no longer, she reached out and petted both bears gently. The stuffed animals are part of a collection of antique toys now on display in the California Room at the Marin County Library at Civic Center.

Claude S. Brinegar said he expected dissident truckers to end their work stoppage during the weekend, but protest leader J.W. Edwards, known as "River Rat" on the trucker's radio network, sharply disputed him.

"Secretary Brinegar does not speak for the trucker," Edward said. "At this time there has been nothing settled.

"To begin with, this was not a 48-hour boycott. It was a strike to get what we have to have to stay in business. If we don't get what we need those trucks won't be rolling."

However, William J. Hill, chairman of the Fraternal Association of Steel Haulers, who represts 10,000 independent truckers, said the shutdown "has been successful" but ended Friday night.

Edwards and several fellow independent drivers met with an aide to Brinegar Friday as well as with representatives of the Interstate Commerce Commission, Federal Highway Department and other agencies, but not with Brinegar himself.

In Belleville, Ill., James R. Hoffa said if he still headed the Teamsters union, he would support the shutdown.

"I have no idea why the Teamsters aren't supporting them." Hoffa said. "If I were in charge, I'd be out front supporting them. The independents are taking the right action, even though I don't support violence or intimidation. The officials in Washington wouldn't listen if it weren't for the blockade."

Hoffa recommended the pooling of trucking equipment, limits on number of deliveries and a business week of five days as means of conserving diesel fuel.

man John L. Burton, D-San Francisco, has said he will make his candidacy official in January.

McGuire, brother of Marin County Superior Court Judge E. Warren McGuire, is a third generation San Franciscan. He attended St. Ignatius High School and was graduated in 1949 from the University of San Francisco. He later served on the university's board of governors.

He is active in Little League and Pop Warner football.

A former insurance agent, he owns a real estate business.

McGuire and his wife, Lavonne, have four children, Kathleen, Brian, Patrick and Molly. They have lived in Marin since 1951.

He has promised, if elected, to install a 24-hour "hot line" so citizens can telephone him in Washington.

The district includes all of Marin, and slivers of Southern Sonoma and northern San Francisco. The Republican incumbent, William S. Mailliard, has promised to announce soon whether he will seek reelection despite redistricting that cost him large areas that traditionally vote Republican.

patients' home counties. Admittance of out-of-county psychiatric patients must be cleared through those officials. The patient's home county is then billed for the Marin services.

A citizens' group told the county mental health advisory board Wednesday its investigation indicated that Ross General may not have followed those procedures and instead billed Marin for out-ot-county patients.

L.C. Johnson, Ross Hospital administrator, told the Independent-Journal later he could not comment until he has reviewed hospital records.

Robertson told county officials that, while the audit is under way, the county may finance hospital care from other state mental health funds allocated for other programs.

If Ross General declines to accept new patients, he continued, the patients can be sent to Napa State hospital at no cost to the County.

(Robertson said the state has abandoned plans to close down the state hospital system which he referred to as "the backbone of the state's mental health system.")

He said his agency's primary concern is to make sure all who need mental health care can get it — now and in the future.

Robertson said he was aware of the financial problems in Marin last May, when the hospitals proceeded to spend more than $600,000 more than their allocations.

He said his agency did not initiate an audit then because "we had bigger problems elsewhere in the state" and felt confident county government could work out the problem.

Meanwhile, the psychiatric ward at Ross General may be sold to a hospital corporation specializing in mental health care.

Hospital administrator Johnson confirmed discussions are underway between the Hospital Corp. of America, present owner of Ross General, and the Community Psychiatric Center Group.

Only the psychiatric ward is being considered for sale Johnson said, adding that sale negotiations were prompted,in part, by the hospital's difficulties with the county over funding.

OBITUARIES

EDNA LESTER

Edna Lester, 68, of 225 Solano Street, San Rafael, died yesterday at her home after a long illness.

Mrs. Lester was born and reared in Virginia. She and her husband, Kella E. Lester, moved to Marin County in 1943 when he was stationed at Hamilton Air Force Base. He retired from the Air Force in 1953 and worked in civil service until his retirement.

She was a member of the Mill Valley Veterans of Foreign Wars Auxiliary and the Senior Citizens of Fairfax.

In addition to her husband, Mrs. Lester is survived by two sisters, Nancy Longum of San Francisco and Ruth Parker of Clearwater, Fla., and a brother, Wilsie Joyner of Hampton, Va.

Funeral will be at 1 p.m., Monday at Keaton's Mortuary, San Rafael. Burial will be in Mount Tamalpais Cemetery.

JANET BLAKE

Janet Cox Blake, 71, of Fairfax, died yesterday afternoon in a local hospital after a long illness.

A native of Oklahoma, she had lived in Marin for the past 50 years. She resided at 2555 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard.

Mrs. Blake is survived by a sister, Dorothy Cox Ward of Pittsburg, Pa., and a brother, G.W. Cox of Oregon. Her husband, Arthur L. Blake, died in 1961.

Funeral arrangements were pending at Keaton's Mortuary, San Rafael.

MELVIN STANLEY

A memorial service for Melvin D. Stanley of Fairfax, a retired music teacher, will be at 2 p.m. Wednesday at Christ The Victor Lutheran Church in Fairfax.

Stanley, 81, died Thursday in a local hospital after a long illness.

He was born and reared in Adamsville, Tenn. He and his wife, Minnie M. Stanley, were married in 1914. They moved to Lake Charles, La. where he worked in orchestras which played for silent movies and vaudeville and for the Long-Bell Lumber Co.

They moved to Texas for two years and then to Weed, Siskiyou County. He taught music in McCloud and Dunsmuir schools until 1956. The couple moved to 2555 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, Apt. 8, 10 years ago.

Stanley was a member of the National Retired Teachers Association and Dunsmuir Lodge 296, Free and Accepted Masons.

In addition to his wife, he is survived by a son, Melvin D. Stanley Jr. of Fairfax; three sisters, Ela Smith, Nell Brockman and Zell Hines, all of Texas; and two grandchildren.

Inurnment will be at Mount Tamalpais Cemetery.

Memorial contributions to a favorite charity would be preferred by the family.

VICTORIA KLANG

Funeral for Victoria N. Klang of San Francisco, mother of Harold S. Klang of San Rafael and Annette Smail of Novato, will be at 1 p.m. tomorrow at Chapel of Hills of Eternity, Colma.

Mrs. Klang, 81, died Thursday in a local hospital after a long illness.

She was born and had lived most of her life in San Francisco. Her father, Sigfried Hartman and she and her husband, the late Leon Klang, operated a general store. Hartman and Klang in Rutherford in the Napa wine country from 1912 until her father's death in 1926. The Klangs then sold the store and moved back to San Francisco where her husband became a canned food broker.

Mrs. Klang was a member of the Council of Jewish Women and the Red Cross.

In addition to her son and daughter, she is survived by four grandchildren.

Entombment will be in the Portals of Eternity, Colma.

Memorial contributions to Hadassah would be preferred by the family.

HOWARD VAN ORDEN

Howard L. Van Orden, native San Franciscan and a partner in printing firm there, died yesterday in a San Francisco hospital after a brief illness. He was 84.

Van Orden is the father of H. L. Van Orden Jr. of Novato.

The elder Van Orden attended public schools in San Francisco and was partner in Phillips and Van Orden Co., firm which printed the San Francisco and Oakland telephone books for many years.

An active member of the Masonic Lodge, Van Orden also was a charter member of the East-West Shrine Football Game Committee which began the game to benefit crippled children.

He was a member of the San Francisco Rotary Club, Society of California Pioneers and Presidio Golf Club.

Survivors, in addition to his son, are a sister, Viola Berry of Union, N.J., and three grandchildren.

Funeral will be Monday at 2 p.m. at N. Gray and Co. in San Francisco. Interment will follow at Olivet Memorial Park.

The family prefers memorial contributions to the Shriners Hospital for Crippled Children or a favorite charity.

Information On Robbery Sought

Corte Madera police are seeking information on Thursday's robbery of $4,000 from Sierra National Bank in the Corte Madera Shopping Center. Officers have asked that anyone who saw anything suspicious at the center around 2 p.m. Thursday contact police.

The center was sealed off by police, highway patrolmen and sheriff's officers shortly after the crime occurred, but the robber, carrying a sawed-off double barrel shotgun, escaped. He was described as 30 to 40 years old, five feet, eight inches tall, fair skinned with sandy-reddish hair and medium build.

Police said they are "pretty short on leads" in the search for the robber.

call a long distance information or an 800 number an abnormally long time period, such as 30 minutes.

McDonald said this kind of call drew the phone company's attention to a customer.

It was then, other Marin law enforcement sources told the Independent-Journal, that the phone company began its taps.

If phone company records reveal that a customer is making a lot of long calls to San Diego information, for example, a tap is placed on his telephone.

If the phreak makes the suspicious calls from a pay phone, the company will tape the telephone of anyone receiving a lot of unpaid calls from that pay phone number.

A Pacific Telephone spokesman yesterday refused to say whether the company uses taps to trap phone phreaks and referred all calls on the Kosmos arrest to the Marin district attorney's office.

Kosman was arrested on suspicion of two misdemeanors, defrauding the telephone company and possessing a device to do so.

He was released on his own recognizance and will be arraigned Thursday in Marin Municipal Court.

Victim Of Motorcycle Fall Said Improved

A Sebastopol youth's condition was reported improved from poor to fair today but he remained in the intensive care unit at Santa Rosa Memorial Hospital with head injuries suffered yesterday in a motorcycle accident.

Delmar James, 16, was injured when he fell from a cycle driven by Paul Dumont, 17, of Sebastopol, on Commerce Boulevard in Cotati. The cycle then went into a ditch.

Only Adoption

The Independent-Journal erred yesterday in a headline saying that Rohnert Park has adopted an ordinance to check recreational vehicles. It should have stated that the city's planning commission recommending adopting such an ordinance.

Pair Is Given Jail Terms, Fines

Gerry Buckley of Stinson Beach and Michael Kranzler of Berkeley received jail terms and fines yesterday in Santa Clara Superior Court after they pleaded guilty to charges of transporting LSD and receiving stolen property.

Buckley was sentenced to one year in the county jail, fined $100 and placed on five years probation by Judge John T. Racanelli.

Kranzler was sentenced to nine months in the county jail, fined $750 and placed on five years probation.

The two pleaded guilty Nov. 16 to the two counts charges that they possessed stolen airline tickets when they were arrested June 30 in the South Bay Area were dismissed by the judge.

Another Skunk Found Rabid

A skunk killed at Point Reyes National Seashore Dec. 7 is the 47th known rabid animal found in Marin this year.

The skunk, staggering and falling down while trying to walk, was killed by two park rangers, according to Carolyn B. Albrecht, Marin County Health officer. There were no known human or animal exposures to the animal.

Another rabid skunk was found within the park boundaries Nov. 11 and a third discovered on an adjacent ranch Nov. 8.

LIBRA II

Bel Air Woman Begins A Car Pool Operation

By REBECCA LARSEN

First there were neighbors forming car pools among themselves. Then there were groups like the Sierra Club trying to promote carpools. Now there's a company in Marin which will organize car pools for a fee.

BARBARA LOOMIS
'Just the thing'

Barbara Loomis, whose astrological sign is Libra, launched the company, Libra II, in her home in Bel Air, just outside Tiburon. She hopes to match up hundreds of drivers from all over the Bay Area.

Newspaper ads have drawn about 175 responses to her business, including even Daly City residents who live near the Bay Area Rapid Transit line.

For $5, Mrs. Loomis guarantees one match to a driver or rider within 90 days after an individual sends in his name, address, phone number, destination, arrival and departure times.

If the first match does not work out within the first six months, she guarantees to provide one more per customer. After that the driver or rider has to pay $3 more to reregister.

Mrs. Loomis is a former traveling saleswoman who came to Marin about a year ago after several years spent living in the Far East.

"I was looking for a timely business to get into and with the energy crisis, I think car pooling is just the thing," she said.

She received advice from another, similar firm which has been operating successfully for three months in the Los Angeles area.

Car Pools are a far better solution to fuel problems than public transit, Mrs. Loomis believes. "With car pooling you have the luxury of a limousine service which goes from door-to-door. It can also be a social thing that develops many new relationships for people."

What can she offer that a group like the Sierra Club cannot?

"I don't think any public organization can sustain a car pooling drive on a long term basis. This is something that has to go on and on," she said.

Mrs. Loomis will do her matching by by hand at first, using detailed maps of the bay area and an extensive filing system. If the response grows, she will lease computer time.

She does not have enough customers yet to do much matching, but she thinks that after Jan. 1, there will be more replies.

"That's when taxes come due, and the holiday bills arrive, and people start looking for an alternative to driving an expensive car to work every day," she said.

Mrs. Loomis hopes to get large companies to put her notices on their bulletin boards. "Then I'd have lots of people going to the same destination from all sorts of places," she said.

"It's an ideal business to get into during the energy crisis. I don't even need a car myself," she added. "I can pedal down to the Post Office on a 10-speed bike to collect my mail."

Nursing Homes Given A Temporary Rate Hike

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The state has approved a temporary $13.4 million rate increase for nursing homes and other private health facilities which care for state-supported patients.

Dr. J.M. Stubblebine, director of the Department of Health, said the "interim" increase would raise average daily rates per patient from $15.83 to $16.78.

At a hearing last month, some operators of nursing homes and other health care facilities cited increasing costs and sought an average daily rate of $22 per patient.

Stubblebine said yesterday while granting the 6 per cent increase, which will cost $13.4 million through June 30, the department also is starting cost audit surveys to determine the "eventual payment" levels for nursing homes, intermediate care and nonmedical out-of-home care facilities.

The increase will apply to skilled nursing and intermediate care facilities, which treat Medi-Cal patients, as well as certain facilities for the mentally ill and mentally retarded.

The last rate increases, totalling 17 per cent, were granted between January and June of 1972.

Growth Talks Monday Night

The Novato City Council and Marin County Board of Supervisors will have a meeting at 8 p.m. Monday at the Novato Community House to discuss a proposed growth control ordinance.

The city has decided to limit growth in the Novato area, including the unincorporated sectors, to 500 dwelling units a year. The two agencies will consider an ordinance to implement the policy.

Moose Conducting Christmas Drive

Residents wishing to contribute to the San Rafael Moose Lodge 1803 Christmas drive for children may send donations to the lodge at San Rafael P.O. Box 2356.

Lodge secretary T. E. Pekonen said members will distribute food, toys, candy and nuts to children at the Center Medical Group and Marin County Juvenile Hall on Christmas Eve.

Ford Will Build More Small Autos

DETROIT (UPI) — The demand for vehicles that use less gasoline has convinced the Ford Motor Co. to build 450,000 more small cars in 1974 than it did in 1973.

"An early end to the oil embargo would not eliminate the shortage of petroleum products, but it would increase the supply and improve the outlook for the economy and for sales of full-size cars," said Henry Ford II, chairman of the nation's No. 2 automaker.

"It seems certain, however, that public concern over gasoline supplies and prices will lead to continuing growth in demand for small cars," he said.

Ford predicted small cars will account for one of every two sales in the automobile industry in 1974 as demand for the economical models increases. That compares with 42 per cent this year and 38 per cent in 1972. The firm turned out 1.1 million small cars in 1973.

In a year-end statement yesterday, Ford echoed predictions of his counterparts at General Motors and Chrysler that sales will drop substantially in 1974 after three record years in a row. Ford said sales could drop 13 per cent from this year's 11.5 million cars to around 10 million in 1974, adding that the industry's move to small cars will keep sales from dropping below the 10- million mark.

Part of Ford's planned $800 million expenditure in the United States in 1974 is for conversion of three assembly plants to small car production and Ford said additional changes are being considered.

New Agency Brings Supervisors A Slap

The Marin County Grand Jury has rapped the county board of supervisors for creating the department of corrections before necessary organizational studies had been made.

The interim report, to be considered Tuesday by supervisors, said the department's relationship with other county departments has yet to be defined even though it will go into operation Jan. 1.

It noted the department was budgeted in June, a director hired and an advisory commission appointed in July — all before the department was officially established this month.

"The relationship of this new entity to the courts, the sheriff's department and the probation department has yet to be defined," the report said. "At present the director (Ralph Merola) is answerable to board of supervisors and the county administrator; because of this, no one has the authority to settle disputes" (between agencies).

The new department is slated to take over operation of the sheriff's Honor Farm next month and will offer some rehabilitation programs to jail inmates.

The grand jury recommended the board move quickly to resolve questions about the department's administrative structure and its role and establish a channel to resolve disputes between the new department and the courts, sheriff and probation departments.

Nixon Selects Ambassadors

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nominations of Viron P. Vikay, a career Foreign Service officer, and Lloyd I. Miller, a Cincinnati lawyer, to be ambassadors to Colombia and Trinidad and Tobago respectively have been announced by President Nixon.

Vaky, 48, Corpus Christi, Tex., now ambassador to Costa Rica, will succeed Leonard J. Saccio, who has resigned.

Miller, 49, chairman of the Cincinnati Transit Co. since 1956, will replace Anthony D. Marshall in Trinidad and Tobago. Marshall recently was nominated ambassador to Kenya.

THE LAST WORD

Time Can Come And Time Can Go, But Trouble Stays Forever

By BETTY FROST

Disillusioned with contemporary crises? With dwindling energy supplies, shaky political leadership and empty markets?

Let's escape in fantasy to an older world of castles and kings, and see what comfort travel can offer.

The feudal castle of Beersel was built in the 13th Century to defend Brussels from attack from Flanders. A fairy-tale castle with a moat and drawbridge, it was stormed several years ago by a group of Belgian college boys who pulled up the drawbridge and held it for a week.

Once a powerful fortress, it boasts a famous torture chamber for the enemies of the Dukes of Brabant, who were the original owners. Peaceful now in the fall sunshine, it has been restored with great authenticity, and is maintained by a non-profit organization, the Historic Homes of Belgium. The courtyard is often used as the setting for dramatic productions.

Each evening the castle was lighted by the Union des Enterprises d' Electricite de Belgique. It must be dark now, in response to power restrictions in Belgium.

IN COPENHAGEN the Amalienborg Palace is the royal residence. Each day at noon the opera bouffe ceremony of the changing of the palace guards in the vast cobblestone courtyard attracts visitors. The boyish guardsmen look so young that one visitor quipped, "No wonder they say 'God Save the Queen'."

The royal swallow-tail flag flying above the palace indicated that Queen Margrethe II was in residence. Was she watching the pageant discreetly behind the lace curtains?

Later that October day, a large demonstration against the Common Market centered near the palace, delaying homebound commuter traffic.

Now the streets of Copenhagen are empty of automobiles on Sundays.

The castle at Plon in Schleswig-Holstein was turned into an academy for Prussian princes about 100 years ago, and still continues a useful role as a private boys school. In Northern Germany, where the sun goes down early in the winter months, the cost of electricity is about four times what it is here in Marin. Long before the energy squeeze here the German people were using power economically. Plon preppies don't burn the midnight oil.

THE DOCTORS Harald and Waltraud Walter of Preetz, Germany, who have brought leadership to the School Affiliation Service Exchange program between Schiller Gymnasium in Preetz and Redwood High School since it began 10 years ago, pointed out a castle where some friends of theirs live.

To the visitors' exclamations of enthusiasm about such privilege, Frau Doktor Walter disagreed. Her friends are elderly and they most fervently wish they could move to a cozy apartment.

The Hohenzollern Castle, near Tuchingden, in Germany would delight any nature-loving Marinite because of its location high atop a wooded hill with a view of forests and valleys. Completely renovated inside about 100 years ago, its furnishings are Victorian. It was the home of the last of the German Kaisers.

One appealing drawing room, furnished in overstuffed chairs and settees covered with hyacinth blue linen, seemed so liveable one could have forgotten it was in a castle except for a seating arrangement in a turret with a view of the central court. Now maintained as a museum, it is popular with the German people, who love to hike, and walk up the steep patns to the castle for a day's excursion.

In France one soon adds "la greve" to his vocabulary. It means "strike." Because of a strike of caretakers at the Palace of Versailles, that most famous palace built for Louis XIV, was out of bounds to tourists this fall.

THE PALAIS du Luxembourg in Paris was built for Marie de Medici, Queen of France, when she was regent for her son Louis XIII. The Queen must have been an early women's liberation partisan, because close to the Renaissance-style castle are many statues of former queens and female saints.

What could mar the perfection of the gardens, quiet pools and works of art that lead to the Palace of Luxembourg? Vandalism, that's what. In one section of the park some miscreant had smeared red and brown paint on the priceless statues, all the more shocking since in France's well cared for parks and public buildings it was the only incidence of defamation we observed.

So much for escape. Maybe we should just say with the French, "The more it changes, the more it remains the same," or take to heart the words of Sausalito philosopher Sally Stanford, "The devil you know is better than the devil you don't know."

A Special Christmas Gift To Be Unwrapped In Sausalito Tomorrow

Marin Women

By BETTY FROST

Three months of preparation have gone into a very special Christmas gift, which will be unwrapped tomorrow for the delight of the congregation of the Sausalito Presbyterian Church and any others who would like to share it.

"Why the Chimes Rang", a film with a cast of 30 Marin children ranging in age from 2 to 14 years of age, will have its premiere showing at the church at 4:30 p.m. tomorrow.

Responsibility for the production rests with Barbara Nelson and Paula Fancher, although the two Sausalitans are quick to point out that the children, their parents, other church members and indeed the whole community participated.

In September Mrs. Douglas Fancher wrote the script, adapting a Christmas story by Robert Alden, to the movie medium.

"It is the story of a mountain village where the church chimes ring only on Christmas Eve when an unselfish gift is given at the altar. They had not rung for years, but as the plot unfolds a child's unusual gift activates them," Mrs. Fancher explained.

MRS. GENE Nelson, who directed the movie with Mrs. Fancher, also did some of the camera work. Douglas Fancher also filmed some scenes. All of the filming was done in Sausalito, and much of the action takes place within the 70-year-old church on Bulkley Avenue.

Filming began in October and was completed just before Thanksgiving. Problems included bad weather which delayed outdoor shooting, retakes as the young actors settled into their roles, and handling crowd scenes.

"However, we have saved the out-takes, those scenes not suitable for inclusion in the finished product, because they are so marvelously funny," Mrs. Fancher said.

"Just as we were finishing the last scene, one of the stars, Rebecca Barnes, 8, came down with tonsilitis. We wondered if we would have to write her out of the script," Mrs. Nelson said.

"A dream sequence about pirates made on location atop Wolf Back Ridge was a near disaster. After waiting for the rain to clear we took the children to the setting, and a malfunction of the camera, caused another postponement. Then it rained for another three weeks," Mrs. Fancher said.

ON THE plus side Mrs. Nelson observed," It is a valuable thing for adults to work with children, and a spirit of great comraderie and cooperation is developed. We found that some of the children show great promise. The performances of 6 and 7 year olds was remarkable."

"Such a film can be saved for years and provides a part of the church history," Mrs. Fancher added.

The directors agreed that they had learned that good organization is most important, because it gives the child actors confidence.

For the half-hour show, the Presby Kids Productions company had a budget of $150. The directors said individuals had donated the costumes, supplied camera equipment and some of the film.

GENERATION RAP

Pam's Parents Should Relax Tight Controls, Ignore Gossip

RAP:

I've got a friend I'll call Pam. About a year ago her parents made her break up with this dude and she almost had a nervous breakdown. When she got out of the hospital, she had an "I don't care" attitude which I set out to change.

After she "came back to life," we were still best friends. Then someone called her folks and told them I was hooked on drugs and laid out of school almost every day to get high. The first couple of phone calls they ignored, and then it began to get to them.

Meanwhile, a mysterious caller informed my mother Pam was a put-out with the guys and a regular sot. Mom doesn't believe anything until it's proved, so she told the caller politely where to go unless she had facts.

Well, Pam's parents made her break off with me, but six months later I persuaded them to let her come to a party I was giving, for her 17th birthday.

Both my parents were present the entire time, two other parents dropped by, and Pam's mother called twice. But someone just couldn't resist telling her that the party wasn't chaperoned and it was loaded with dope and booze.

The adult chaperones all said they were surprised at how well-behaved we were, but Pam's mother heard the wrong side.

Some gossiper or gossipers are having a darn good time ruining Pam's and my friendship. What can we do? — HELP

HELP:

Seems to me Pam's parents are overly anxious to believe stories which could easily be proved lies. Or are they overanxious — period?

If you two could get your parents together for a talk, your problems might be solved. — HELEN

HELP:

Why not snoop around and try to locate the gossiper? That shouldn't be hard: after all, how many stinkers do you know who are so jealous of Pam's friendship with you that they'd like to break it up? — SUE

HELEN AND SUE:

Why is it that when you're overweight and not reducing, everyone wonders why you don't have more will power, and makes you feel worthless for not going on a diet?

Then, when you go on a diet and try desperately hard to resist food, everyone offers you fattening things, and gets their feelings hurt if you refuse them?

Like I was at a girl friend's and she'd just made a pudding-cake. I say, "No thank you" and she thinks I'm saying her cake is no good. Like the gang ordered pizza sent over the other night and when I wouldn't eat my share they made me pay for it anyway.

Please tell people to help someone on a diet. Not make it tougher for them. — LOSING BATTLE

DEAR L.B.:

You've already told 'em thanks — they needed that. — HELEN AND SUE

DEAR RAP:

I have some old eyeglasses and wonder if you have an address where I can send them. I've heard of an organization that uses them for poor people. — FOUR EYES

DEAR F.E.:

Send your old eyeglasses to Eyes for the Needy, Short Hills, N. J., 07078. This non-profit group can use not only glasses of all kinds, but also unbroken plastic or metal frames with lenses, old silverware, watches and jewelry containing precious metals. — H AND S

endeavor in film-making for the women. Two years ago they had made "Our Gift to Jesus" for the church. "In that one a donkey from the Marin County Humane Society was the star," according to Mrs. Fancher.

They also did "Escolito Escapades", a movie sequence incorporated into the jinx productions of 1973 for the Sausalito Woman's Club.

Barbara Nelson studied drama at New York State University at Alfred, N.Y., where "a powerful drama coach" encouraged her. She is a member of the Ross Valley Players, the Masque Unit, and the Actors Playhouse of Marin. She has played major roles in the productions of these organizations. Her experience has given her a background in film making and drama, and she enjoys working with children in education and church work.

Barbara is the wife of Gene Nelson, KSFO radio show host, who has contributed his expertise to "Why the Chimes Rang". Their son, Christopher, 10 is one of the actors.

AFTER THIS experience, Barbara is thinking of writing a book about filming with children, and would like to continue working with children and movie-making, perhaps in a school situation.

Paula Fancher is a graduate of the University of California at Berkeley, where she majored in psychology. She claims she doesn't know anything about drama except what she has learned from Mrs. Nelson. She does like to write, and now she is interested in learning more about photography.

She is the wife of Douglas Fancher, sales manager for Annex Motors in San Rafael. Fancher's hobby is movie photography. They have two children, Christian, 3, and Justin, 2.

The directors were hard at work during the week, synchronizing the sound with the finished film.

"We violated a cardinal rule of drama by having two directors," Mrs. Nelson said, "but it has truly been a joint effort."

After tomorrow's premiere, a second showing of the Christmas story will be given at 7 p.m. Christmas Eve at the church. Both programs are open to the public.

SEW SIMPLE

Some Ideas For Holiday Gifts

By EUNICE FARMER
Distributed by the Register and Tribune Syndicate

Looking for last minute Christmas gifts? Have you considered giving a beautiful piece of fabric to friends or family? Everyone loves a fabulous piece of fabric for a coat, skirt, dress, pant suit, or whatever, and it would surely be an original idea. Many of you who have access to great fabric shops can really give someone a thrill who hasn't such resources at their fingertips.

Beside fabrics, there are all sorts of notions that make small stocking gifts as well as the important items such as a really fine pair of nine-inch cutting shears, velvet needle board, etc. that anyone who sews would treasure. To top the list, how about a gift certificate for your favorite home seamstress so she can buy the sewing machine of her choice after the holidays.

Sewing machines are so expensive that they take lots of comparison and shopping for that one that gives exactly what you want. I personally know of many who have received sewing machines which their husbands purchased, not knowing what they were getting, who disliked sewing from that point on.

Let's face it, we sewers need all the help we can get and I can't think of a better beginning than a fabulous sewing machine. Remember, buy a sewing machine the way you would buy a new car —shop them all and then try them before making a purchase.

DEAR EUNICE,

I have just completed a bias cut skirt designed by Anne Klein, with two deep folds in the front of the skirt. It looked so graceful in the picture but it is a disaster on me. I can't get the skirt to hang smoothly from the waistband. Instead it draws and pulls across my waistline and hips, and causes a roll of fabric to form under the waistband. I followed the directions carefully and my waist measurement was the same as the pattern. — ANNE R.

DEAR ANNE,

Your problem is practically universal. It's not the waistline measurement that's important, it's that measurement just below the waistline. Most women, unless they are built like a stick, curve out just below the waistline, some more so than others. The pattern is angled in and doesn't allow for this figure roundness, thus your skirt, whether bias or straight must raise up to the place where there is enough fabric to go over this area, causing the skirt to form that fold right under the waistband.

It's a good idea to check your figure first before selecting a bias skirt or bias bodice. If your figure is full and rounded, avoid anything bias like the plague. It will only stretch and distort the garment and call attention to the areas you want to disguise.

No matter what your figure, it's always best to keep the skirt slightly larger than the waist measurement and ease the skirt to the bodice or a pre-fitted waistband.

This ease you have allowed can be distributed evenly and won't be noticed if you will machine stitch two rows of stitching, one at the seamline and the second row just above the seamline.

PULL THE bobbin threads slightly and the ease will be there, but it won't show or look gathered. Most of your ease will be on each side, front and back, and very little at the center back. If you are large in the stomach, you will need ease here.

DEAR EUNICE,

Most of the dressy patterns today call for circular fullness in the skirts rather than a straight skirt with gathers for the waistline. My problem is that the fabric I have chosen will have to be pieced in order to cut the skirt. I have checked other patterns and it seems that most of them have to be pieced. I am not used to this suggestion. Won't the piecing seam look noticeable? — MRS. L.G.

DEAR MRS. L.G.:

You are right — it's impossible to make a full circular skirt in the long length without piecing the fabric.

The only patterns that can avoid this is where you have a skirt with many sections, tapering from the waistline and flaring at the hem.

I think this seam is only noticeable while you are working on the gown. Just be sure it doesn't pucker and that you press it smooth. These flowing skirts have so much fullness that the seam is almost hidden in the folds of the skirt. It's the over-all appearance that's important, not each and every seam under construction.

THE SUBURBAN SCENE

Dinner Will Precede P-TA Dance

By MOLLY MARIN

The hospitality of the Christmas season is well underway this weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. John G. Eliot Jr. of Mill Valley will entertain at a dinner party tonight before going on to the Old Mill Parent-Teacher Association's "Fourth Annual Parents Night Out" Christmas dance at the Ralston White Estate in Mill Valley.

ALL FOUR children of Dr. and Mrs. Corwin Hinshaw will be in Belvedere tomorrow for a family reunion at their Belvedere Lagoon home.

The former Dorothy Hinshaw, now Mrs. Gregory Patent of Missoula, Mont., is here with her husband, a professor at University of Montana, and their sons David and Jason.

Dr. and Mrs. Horton Hinshaw of Tiburon will attend the dinner with their daughter Judy.

The Corwin Hinshaws' older daughter, Mrs. Barbara Baird of San Anselmo, will bring her daughters, Laura, Robin and Bonnie, and Dr. and Mrs. William Hinshaw have traveled from Burbank with their children Michael and Lisa for the family reunion.

JANE MARSH
On quick visit home

OPERA SINGER Jane Marsh is making a whirlwind visit to her mother, Mrs. Mary C. Marsh, in Mill Valley this weekend. The soprano, now a member of the Dusseldorf Opera Company in Germany, travels with the company throughout Europe.

An opera engagement in Pittsburgh, Pa., enabled her to come back to Marin for a four-day visit. This afternoon a group of her former classmates from Tamalpais High School days attended an open house given by Mrs. Marsh for Jane.

The singer, who made her American professional debut with the San Francisco Opera in "Magic Flute" in 1967, leaves Monday for a performance in Italy, where she will spend Christmas.

PARADISE HARBOR Yacht Club will hold its Commodore's Party tomorrow from 3 to 5 p.m. at the clubhouse in Tiburon to honor the new commodore, Ralph Neelands.

Chairmen Dr. and Mrs. Burt Richardson have asked each member to bring hors d'oeuvres for the cocktail party.

The club's Christmas tree was trimmed this afternoon when the Richardsons served hot chocolate and cookies while the club's junior members trim the tree, play guitars and sing carols from 1 to 3 p.m.

THIRTY NEIGHBORS swapped cookie recipes at the Tiburon home of Mrs. Robert Kennedy yesterday morning, Friday, Dec. 14 as they sampled one another's homemade cookies.

Dawn Kennedy had arranged plates of cookies, each with its recipe, on her buffet and supplied pencils and blank cards.

"Some spend a whole year looking for just the right recipe. After four years of swapping we have enough to make a cookbook," said one guest, Mrs. William Bergmann.

TIBURON PENINSULA Club will welcome Santa Claus (Vernon Perry) to its family Christmas party tomorrow from 3 to 5 p.m. Chairman Mrs. Vernon Perry has arranged for members to bring cookies and fruitcake, and Mrs. Brooke Halsey will pour the punch. Mrs. William Bergmann helped with arrangements.

Decorations were made by the children of members, under supervision of Mrs. Perry.

MICHELLE ROACH, godchild of Mrs. Richard Parks, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Parks in San Francisco, and she and a friend, Jackie Penna will attend the matinee of the Marin Civic Ballet's "Nutcracker" at Marin Veterans Memorial Building today.

Michelle attends the Nesta Brooking School, a ballet boarding school in England, and she and Jackie will spend Christmas in Honolulu after their Bay Area visit. Mrs. Parks is librarian of the Lori Meislin Library of the Marin Civic Ballet building in San Rafael and is former director of the Academy of Dance in San Francisco.

SANTA CLAUS will arrive by sailboat as the main attraction of the children's Christmas party which will be given by the Sausalito Yacht Club Women's Auxiliary from 1 to 3 p.m. tomorrow at the clubhouse in Sausalito.

Mrs. Lowden Jessup is chairman for the party.

SPORTS ANALYSIS

Energy Crisis And Racing

By LEW CODDINGTON

The "energy crisis," with its threat of fuel rationing and higher prices, is not worrying the Marin auto racing community a bit. In fact, some see a silver lining in the smoggy cloud.

The burdens of any national belt-tightening will fall unequally, benefitting sports cars rather than stockers or Indy types, and helping local tracks rather than regional ones. Marin stands to gain because of that.

One thing which will not happen, apparently, is complete elimination of fuel for auto racing. The Nixon administration believes that gasoline used in racing is not being wasted.

"Motor sports has been defined as an industry — a multibillion dollar industry," said Del Owens, public relations director of the Sports Car Club of America, by telephone from Denver.

"Each industry will be asked in the coming weeks to say by what percentage it is prepared to cut down its usage of fuel," Owens added, and their recommendations are likely to be observed.

The actual amount of fuel used in auto racing is relatively low. Races are so short and infrequent that the amount of gasoline burned on the track is surprisingly small. No fuel is used for heating or lighting the track most of the time. The biggest fuel usages are by owners, carting their vehicles to and from the tracks; and by spectators, driving to the races.

IN MARIN, sports cars occupy the time and attention of most drivers and owners. They race at lower speeds and get better mileage than the turbocharged Indianapolis monsters or the super Porsches.

"In a 30-minute race, we burn maybe six or eight gallons of gas," said Joe Huffaker, who has built many successful sports cars in his San Rafael garage.

"We burn maybe 30-40 gallons a weekend, which is probably more than anybody in the area," he continued. "Last year we ran in nine events. Our MG Midget gets 35 gallons on the street, and maybe 17 or 18 on the track, which is better than most people get going to the grocery store."

Hauling the car to and from the track probably uses more fuel than does the actual racing. Huffaker said his diesel truck gets about six and a half miles to the gallon. "We go up to Seattle twice and Portland twice a year," he said. "We may have to cut back to one."

THE LARGEST FUEL consumption is by spectators traveling to and fro. "In the event of gas rationing, people would still save up their gas to go," was Owens' optimistic forecast. "There might be car pools or public transportation, too."

"Where it will hurt," said Huffaker, "is for people to travel long distances, to Indianapolis or Ontario to see the Indy-type cars, or to points in the South to see stock cars."

Where it will help is in the pocketbooks of local track owners, including Sears Point International Raceway at the junction of Highways 37 and 121.

"If people can get up and back (from San Francisco) on half a tank of gas, then they're more likely to come to our track," said co-owner Hugh Harn. "We're as close in as we can get."

The prospect of higher fuel prices causes no fear among local owners. Much gasoline is provided free as a promotional effort by the tracks and the remainder is available at approximately pump prices, says Dick Raymond, a Novato Can-Am car owner. "We use so little anyway," adds Huffaker.

THE CHIEF problem may lie in the attitude of sponsors. The sight of a car whirring around a track in an apparently pointless figure, smoke belching from its exhaust pipes, is bad public relations.

Raymond says he had one prospective sponsor sold on backing a car until the crisis began to loom. Others, especially national radio and television sponsors like breweries and cigarette companies, are taking a wait-and-see attitude. Automotive products firms, like STP, are committed by the very nature of their products.

Ultimately, the future of auto racing depends on the attitude of "the people on the hillside," in Raymond's words. If fans buy the argument that auto racing provides great recreational pleasure for minimum energy expenditure, the sport will survive.

THERE IS another attitude in the land, though, which considers the automobile a polluter and an energy-waster, and opposes its glorification. Proponents of this hardly care that auto racing ranks fairly low on the scale of energy consumers at 93 million gallons of fuel petroleum annually. They are more concerned about the prestige which racing bestows on automobiles in general.

The automobile's place in society is due for a hard reexamination, which will affect everything from the Indy 500 to dragging the main on Saturday night.

The Marin auto racing community is not faced with that problem just now, and local owners and drivers are not losing much sleep.

As Harn says, "We are waiting for our President to lead us out of this."

San Rafael Meets Drake For Crown

By LEW CODDINGTON

Byron Stewart and Eddie Joe Chavez, with strong and steady help from their teammates, dazzled the crowd with sparkling individual performances last night to lead their schools into the championship game of the Drake Pirate Classic basketball tournament.

Stewart scored 27 points as San Rafael High toppled Novato, 57-46, and Chavez tallied 20 as the host Pirates pulled away from San Marin, 70-58, before an estimated 900 fans.

San Rafael and defending champion Drake will meet for the title at 8:15 p.m. tonight, while Novato will play San Marin for third place at 6:30 p.m.

In losers' bracket games yesterday, Ells of Richmond defeated Petaluma, 63-51, and Terra Linda outlasted Napa in overtime, 73-68. The winners were to play for the consolation title at 5 p.m. and the losers for seventh place at 3:30 p.m.

San Rafael center Stewart stands 6-foot-7, holds the ball high and releases it quickly, making his jump shot virtually impossible to stop. To his shooting, he added 11 rebounds.

Coach Bret Tovani, however, seemed happiest about his team's defense. "It took us awhile to learn to play this defense, but now the kids are

Warriors Host Bullets Tonight

OAKLAND (UPI) — With their television image tarnished, the Golden State Warriors returned from Oregon to meet the Capital Bullets tonight at 8 o'clock at the Coliseum-Arena.

Blowing a 17-point lead in the first quarter, the Warriors dropped a 109-101 decision to the Portland Trail Blazers last night in a game televised locally from Portland. In their previous appearance on TV, the Warriors were upset by the Phoenix Suns.

Geoff Petrie, who scored only two points in the first half, sparked the Portland comeback with 22 points in the second half to help sink the Warriors. Golden State's two-game lead over Los Angeles in the NBA's Pacific Division was sliced to one game.

Cazzie Russell was just about the only effective Warrior shooter. He wound up with 37 points while guard Jim Barnett added 18. Guard Jeff Mullins was held scoreless.

Portland tied the game early in the third quarter and went ahead to stay 64-63 with 8:43 remaining.

Sidney Wicks topped the Trail Blazers with 25 points.

A NON-CONTACT GAME

The National Basketball Association star underwent surgery Wednesday to repair torn cartilage in his right knee. The 6-foot-10, 240-pound giant is expected to be sidelined 10 weeks after his latest ailment sustained in what is considered a non-contact sport.

Marin Tar Five Spanks Moffett

By TOM THOMPSON

Goliath kicked sand in David's face last night in the non-conference College of Marin Invitational, as the host Tars annihilated Moffett Field naval air station of Mountain View, 104-50, on opening night of the basketball event.

Actually what Marin sent hurtling in the Flyers' faces shouldn't be called sand — it was more like boulders. Marin dominated from the outset, grabbing a 10-2 lead in the first two minutes and increasing the bulge as the game progressed.

The only real excitement for the sparse Kentfield crowd of about 500 came when George Swift sank a field goal from underneath with 47 seconds left to play, pushing the unbeaten Tars (8-0) over the 100-point mark for the first time this year. The score at that point was 101-49.

Tonight the Tars take on Reedley at 9 o'clock. The Pirates traveled four hours from the Fresno area and lost, 86-60 to Moffett's opponent tonight at 7 o'clock, Santa Rosa.

"They're a much better team than tonight's score would indicate," said Panagakis of the Pirates. "They must have been tired after that long trip but came out and played. Even the (Golden State) Warriors have a hard time doing that."

Fourteen of the 15 players on Marin's roster scored as coach John Panagakis cleared his bench early and substituted liberally. Wil Garner topped the game's scorers with 21 points, despite playing only around 12 minutes. Three other Tars scored in double figures with Raymond Williams finishing with 11 points, while Bill Gombos and John Peloza had 10 each.

It was the second time the Tars had beaten Moffett this year. In the season opener, Marin won, 74-52.

"We knew what they could do," said Panagakis. "We knew that if we shut off number 41 (Nick Chargin), who gave us trouble in the first game, we could win." Chargin finished with nine points.

"Everyone did well tonight," the winning mentor continued. "Its a pleasure to get a game where everyone plays well."

Moffett Field 18 32 - 50
Marin 45 59 -104

Redwood, Wildcats Triumph

Playing "our best half of the year," Redwood High School pulled away from Livermore last night for a 91-65 victory and a place in the championship game of the Yuba City basketball tournament.

In other tournament action, Marin Catholic qualified for the consolation game of the Rose City tourney in Santa Rosa with a 61-42 triumph over St. Patrick's of Vallejo.

Redwood (4-3) outscored Livermore in the second half, 59-38, to reach the finals for the sixth time in eight years. The Giants have won three titles, and lost to Livermore in last year's finals. This year's foe will be Mira Loma of Sacramento, an 81-68 victor over host Yuba.

Neil Hennessy led Redwood's scoring last night with 25 points and John Troppmann contributed a personal high of 21. "Our bench did a fine job, too," said coach Dick Hart. Dirk Wells scored nine points and Ross Malonek eight.

The game was ruled by referees' whistles, with Livermore committing 28 fouls and Redwood 23. The Giants took advantage by making 33 of 42 free throws (79 per cent), with Troppmann sinking nine of nine and Hennessy 11 of 12. Livermore was 21 of 36.

Seals Prove To Be Tough Hosts

OAKLAND (UPI) — At home, the Califonia Golden Seals are nearly unbeatable.

Reggie Leach scored on a 15-footer with 3:07 remaining last-night to lift the Seals from a two-goal deficit to a 2-2 tie with the defending Stanley Cup champion Montreal Canadiens.

It broke a three-game losing streak and kept the Seals unbeaten at home in their last four games. The tie also gave California a 6-4-3 record at home compared to a 1-15 mark on the road.

The tying goal came at 16:53 when Leach took a pass from behind the net by Walt McKechnie and lofted it past the outstretched glove of Canadiens goalie Marcel Plasse.

Montreal jumped to a 2-0 lead on Steve Shutt's first—period goal and Jacques Lemaire's tip in on a power play at 8:57 of the second period.

Exactly two minutes later, McKechnie pushed a loose puck past Plasse and Leach followed with the only score of the final period.

Rookie goaltender Bob Champoux of the Seals faced 27 shots, the same number as Plasse. The crowd of 7,676 was the Seals biggest home turnout of the season.

California now goes on the road for a game tomorrow at Boston before meeting the Canadiens again at Montreal Tuesday night.

Score by periods:
Montreal 1 1 0—2
California 0 1 1—2

First period—1. Montreal, Shutt 4 (Cournoyer, Lefley) 8:58. No penalties.

Second period—2. Montreal, Lemaire 11 (Lapointe, F. Mahovlich) 8:57; 3. California, McKechnie 9 (Leach, McAneeley) 10:57. Penalties—McAneeley 2:13, Gainey 5:40, California bench 7:46, Savard 12:58, Montreal bench 15:41.

Third period—4. California, Leach 4 (McKechnie, McAneeley) 16:53. Penalty—McAneeley 6:02.

Pro Sports Is Big Business

By PHIL ELDERKIN
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

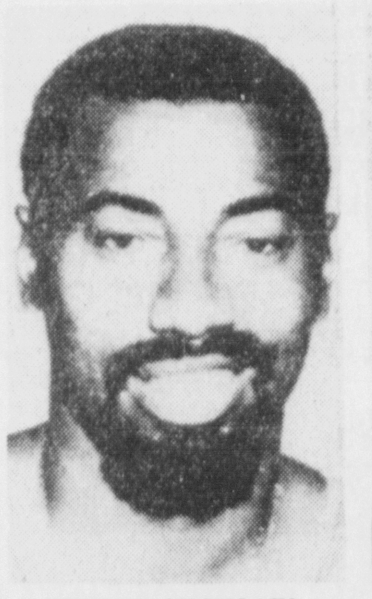
There is a headline in a national magazine this month which asks the question: "Dad, why does Joe Namath make more money than the President?"

And the answer isn't necessarily that Namath had a better year than Mr. Nixon. It's because Joe Namath plays for a professional sports team — the New York Jets.

Pro sports are big business — have been, in fact, for a long time now. Gone are the days when you could purchase a National Football League franchise for $2,500, which is what Art Rooney paid for the Pittsburgh Steelers back in 1933.

Gone, too, are the days when baseball's superstars would play for $20,000 a season and meal money was more the size of a teen-ager's allowance.

Today, according to Mainliner Magazine, at least 150 players make $100,000 or more in the four major pro sports — baseball, football, basketball and hockey. And that doesn't include bonus money, deferred income or a high-powered pension plan.



WILT CHAMBERLAIN
Tops at $600,000

BOB COUSY
$8,500 Pact

Mainliner says that baseball's highest paid players, by position, are:

First base — Dick Allen, Chicago White Sox, $225,000.

Second base — Joe Morgan, Cincinnati Reds, $90,000.

Third base — Brooks Robinson, Baltimore Orioles, $110,000.

Shortstop — Luis Aparicio, Boston Red Sox, $100,000.

Outfield — Pete Rose, Cincinnati Reds, $135,000.

Outfield — Carl Yastrzemski, Boston Red Sox, $165,000.

Outfield — Hank Aaron, Atlanta Braves, $200,000.

Catcher — Johnny Bench, Cincinnati Reds, $110,000.

Pitcher — Bob Gibson, St. Louis Cardinals, $160,000.

Curious about the money a player, especially a quarterback, can make in pro football? Here are Mainliner's figures:

Joe Namath, New York Jets, $250,000.

John Unitas, San Diego Chargers, $250,000.

John Brodie, San Francisco 49ers, $180,000.

Sonny Jurgensen, Washington Redskins, $180,000.

Roman Gabriel, Philadelphia Eagles, $125,000.

Fran Tarkenton, Minnesota Vikings, $125,000.

Len Dawson, Kansas City Chiefs, $100,000.

Bob Griese, Miami Dolphins, $100,000.

Bill Kilmer, Washington Redskins, $100,000.

Larry Brown, Washington Redskins, $100,000.

Leroy Kelly, Cleveland Browns, $100,000.

The Gold Standard is also high in basketball and hockey. The war for player talent which started several years ago between the National Basketball Association and the American Basketball Association has driven average salaries beyond the $40,000 level.

Wilt Chamberlain of the San Diego Conquistadors is tops at $600,000, but even players like Jim McDaniels of Seattle (who doesn't even start) is in the $300,000 class. Only a little over

AGAINST RAIDERS

An Error-Free Broncos' Plan

OAKLAND (UPI) — "We have planned an errorless game for Oakland."

That was Denver Bronco coach John Ralston's optimistic view of tomorrow's 1 p.m. match with the Oakland Raiders — a game which will decide the American Football Conference.

"We don't do anything fancy on offense," said Ralston. "Our offense is all right just the way it is. But we have made some adjustments on defense. Heck, we had to after the way we played against San Diego."

Against the Chargers last Sunday, the Denver defense yielded 341 yards, prompting Ralston to observe "if we play that way again, and Oakland plays the way it did against Kansas City, we'll lose by 70-0."

But Ralston, a man who likes to think positively, said he believes his Broncos can beat the Raiders and thereby participate in their first postseason action since joining the American Football League as a charter member in 1960.

"Oakland is an outstanding team with few if any weaknesses," said Ralston, "but we think we are a pretty good team, too. We feel we can win if we don't make any mental mistakes."

The Raiders came out hitting from the opening kickoff against Kansas City last Saturday and eventually wound up with a 37-7 victory.

"They (the Raiders) played about as perfect a game as anyone could expect," said Ralston of the Chiefs game. "That's the kind of game we have to play and I think we can do it. One thing, we came to town ready to accept the challenge."

The Raiders are 8-4-1 and the Broncos 7-4-2. The winner, or Oakland in case of a tie, will host the first round of the AFC playoffs next Saturday against the wild card team — Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Cleveland or Buffalo — while the loser goes home to think about what might have been.

The game will be televised locally on channel 4 as well as to most of the nation with the Raiders 8½ point favorites to win their sixth division title in the last seven years — one of pro football's most consistent marks.

"We've studied the Broncos closely all week," said Raiders coach John Madden. "We know they do a lot of things well. Their quarterback (Charlie Johnson) is a veteran pro and they have excellent running in Floyd Little and Joe Dawkins."

What Madden and the rest of the Raiders are looking for is another solid running performance from Marv Hubbard (850 yards), Charlie Smith (670) and Clarence Davis (531).

"They have to be as good and as steady as they were against Kansas City," said Madden. "If they are, then we can control the tempo of the game, and that in a line is how you win football games."

Little needs only 63 yards to reach the 1,000 yard mark for the second time in his career. Dawkins has rushed for 659 yards.

Oakland's Ken Stabler is primarily a short passer while Johnson, despite the zone defenses, still likes to throw long. Stabler has hit on 151 of 240 attempts for 1,858 yards and 13 TDs while Johnson has connected 173 of 324 for 2,374 yards and 19 TDs.

On paper, it looks like an even matchup, which means the game might be decided by field goal specialists George Blanda and Jim Turner. The two matched long kicks in the final minute of this year's previous meeting for a 23-23 standoff. Under the circumstances, the Raiders would accept another tie, but not the Broncos, who have to win.

Quarry Needed Fast Kayo Vs. Shavers

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

NEW YORK — Jerry Quarry had no choice.

"I knew I'd hurt it the instant it happened," said Quarry, holding his swollen left hand in a bucket of ice only minutes after his first round technical knockout over Earnie Shavers last night. "I knew I had to put him away quick."

Quarry hurt his hand after catching Shavers with a left hook on the top of the head shortly after the start of their scheduled 12-round heavyweight bout. The hook was the beginning of the end for the hard-hitting Shavers, who was trapped against the ropes and battered to the canvas. Shavers arose after taking the mandatory eight count but was immediately set upon again by Quarry before referee Arthur Mercante ended the fight at 2:21.

enjoying it," he said. (Guard) Eric Wheeler did a super job defensively, and (forward) Arthur Brooks did a helluva job on the boards in the second half."

San Rafael was only 1-3 entering the tournament, but stunned previously unbeaten Petaluma Wednesday, 65-46. "It surprised me," admitted Tovani. "We put in all the ingredients early in the year, but we didn't know when they would all come together."

Novato (4-1) was the second straight team to be knocked from the unbeaten ranks by the Bulldogs. The Hornets' Willie Barnes had 12 points and 13 rebounds, and Curtis Saine had 15 points.

San Rafael rocketed out to an 11-2 lead and was ahead the rest of the way, holding Novato to a paltry 30 per cent from the floor (12 of 40), while shooting 48 per cent (23 of 48) themselves.

Drake (6-1) had trouble with San Marin until Chavez, a quick and creative 6-1 guard-forward, broke the game open with a 12-point third quarter. He picked up loose balls, made steals, handed out assists and grabbed rebounds.

Until Chavez' outburst, Drake was kept in the game by the inside work of Dan Trimble, Andre Carson and Gary Peak. Trimble had 18 points and 13 rebounds, Carson 15 points and 15 rebounds, and Peak 16 points and eight rebounds. Chavez had 11 rebounds.

San Marin (4-3) got production of 16 points from Bruce Smith, 12 each by Bruce Vollert and Terry Kom, and 10 by David Harris. The Mustangs trailed only 30-28 early in the third quarter.

Terra Linda (3-3) saw Doug Carlisle pop in three straight shots in the overtime period to defeat Napa. He finished with 16, as did Matt Flynn. Buck McCusker had 12.

Hard-luck Napa (1-6), which lost to Drake by four points Thursday night, got 21 points from Ed Bianchi and 20 from Mat Moon in the losing effort.

Petaluma coach Mark Reischling lamented the fact that "we don't have a big board man" after Ells' 6-5 center, Willie Washington, controlled the middle and scored 14 points. From the outside, Greg Cooper fired in 23 for the Eagles (3-2).

Chris Mungle was high man for the game with 25 for Petaluma (4-2), which fell behind in the first quarter, 18-8, made a run in the third period to close the gap to one point, but fell back again.

Shrine Coaches Arrive Tomorrow

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Five of the six coaches in the 49th annual East-West Shrine football game are expected to arrive in the Bay Area Sunday.

They include East head coach Paul Dietzel of South Carolina and assistants Harold Raynond of Delaware and John Jardine of Wisconsin and West head coach Jim Sweeney and assistant Jim Stanley of Oklahoma State.

West assistant mentor Don Fambrought of Kansas will head west after his team meets North Carolina State in Monday night's Liberty Bowl and most of the players are due Tuesday.

The game will be played Dec. 29 in Candlestick Park.

COLLEGE BASKETBALL

Long Beach Is Battling For National Recognition

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

That classic cage matchup betwen unbeatens UCLA and North Carolina State is not the only game tonight in which Pacific Coast teams are battling for national ratings.

Long Beach State, which won in impressive style Thursday at Cannisius, is in New York tonight to battle Long Island University. Nevada-Las Vegas, looking like the West Coast Athletic Conference favorite since University of San Francisco has had its problems, gives its frosh-laden squad its toughest test yet at Oregon State.

USF, now 1-3, tries to pick up the pieces at Seton Hall and tall Stanford hosts Colorado State.

Nineteenth-ranked USC looked especially sharp in disposing of Santa Clara 85-61 last night. Gus Williams hit on 9 of 16 shots for an 18-point output. Glen Hubbard had 17 for the outgunned Broncos. The Trojans host Arizona State tonight.

A couple of Coast teams took tourney wins last night as Seattle's Frank Oleynick hit a 20-footer at the buzzer to give Seattle the 62-60 win over Penn State at the Utah Classic. The Chiefs, who rallied from a 15-point deficit, battle host Utah in tonight's finals after the Utes blasted Dartmouth 85-54.

Ron Lee's 19 points led Oregon past Princeton 54-53 in the Jayhawk Classic and tonight have to play host Kansas, which belted Washington State 66-51.

In other action involving the Pac-8, Washington ran its record to 4-1 with a 75-53 romp over Gonzaga as Ray Price hit 20 in the first half and 22 in all and Stew Morrill had 16 for the losers.

Elsewhere last night, Fullerton overcame a 29-point performance by Tommy Lipsey to edge Los Angeles State 73-69. Mighty mite Duane Bonner bombed 17 for the Titans.

Rick Reed scored 28 to lead Azusa over Claremont 70-55 and Geoff Northrup's 28 gave Pomona the 67-48 victory over Los Angeles Baptist.

Western Montana held John Hampton of Westminister, who had a 47-point average, to 31 in winning 84-75. Portland State made its record 5-1 with a 71-63 win over Western Washington. James Mason hit 7-of-9 from the field and 20 points and Frank Williams 7-for-7 and 15. Northridge fell at Idaho State 90-62 and Nevada Reno hit 64 per cent from the floor in dispatching Sacramento State 96-70.

In more action, Great Falls outclassed Chico State 93-67, Grand Canyon outscored Adams State 99-85, Pomona outshot Los Angeles Baptist 67-48, Lewis and Clark outhustled Humboldt State 97-92, Whitworth outmuscled Western Baptist 101-80, Pacific (Ore.) outlasted George Fox 69-67, and Montana State outbattled Seattle Pacific 80-73.

Some other action tonight finds Portland at Nevada Reno, Pepperdine at UOP, San Jose State at North Dakota, Bakersfield State and Los Angeles State, unbeaten Fresno State at home to Wyoming, and Cal greets Loyola.

factor in the victory of Marin Catholic (3-3), according to coach Dave Gonsalves. Sophomore Gary Johnson, starting ahead of flu-ridden Chris McCarthy, scored 13 points and grabbed 14 rebounds.

Tom Cronin, the only Wildcat senior on the floor, grabbed 19 rebounds to lead his team to a whopping 61-22 edge in that department. Terry Ahern led the scorers with 19 points, many from the 20-25 foot range.

The 'Cats were to play Cardinal Newman of Santa Rosa for the consolation title at 5 p.m. today.

PRO FOOTBALL

Rams Seeking Club Records Tomorrow

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Los Angeles Rams can set a few league and team records tomorrow at 1 p.m. against the Cleveland Browns but all Coach Chuck Knox wants them to do is win the game.

The Rams are 10-point favorites to run their record to 12-2 which would be the best ever for the club.

They have made 167 first downs rushing in 13 games and in the season's finale should easily break the National Football League record of 170, set by Miami last year.

Rookie Lawrence McCutcheon has gained 1,014 yards rushing and will probably break Dick Bass' club record of 1,090.

If the Browns fail to sack quarterback John Hadl, the total for the season in this category will remain at 15—a new low for the Rams.

Knox, the rookie coach who clinched the NFC West two weeks ago, won't even comment about the Rams' chances of going to the Super Bowl.

"We want to beat Cleveland," he says. "We're concerned about winning, not about statistics. Cleveland is a good team. It has an explosive offensive... runners like Leroy Kelly and Ken Brown...fine receivers—Fair Hooker, Milt Morin and Frank Pitts."

In other games tomorrow, Cincinnati faces lowly Houston; Buffalo meets the Jets in New York, where the Bills' O.J. Simpson needs 61 yards to break Jim Brown's single season rushing record of 1,863, and NFC eastern division attention centers on the Dallas at St. Louis and Philadelphia at Washington encounters.

Dallas and Washington are tied at 9-4 and if both win tomorrow, the Cowboys earn the title on the basis of a 34-21 point advantage over Washington in head-to-head meetings.

New England plays at Baltimore, San Diego is at Kansas City, New Orleans at Atlanta, Minnesota at New York Giants and Green Bay at Chicago.

CHARITY FOOTBALL TOMORROW

The third annual Marin County Charity Bowl football game will be played tomorrow at 1 p.m. at College of Marin, matching two teams of local ex-high school and college stars.

The Marin All-Stars will play the Kentfield Firemen, with proceeds going to the Kentfield Medical Center for Handicapped Children.

Tickets cost $1 and will be available at the gate.

Frosh Basketball

The Redwood High School freshmen basketball team (1-3) yesterday beat visiting St. Ignatius of San Francisco (1-1), 61-50, in Larkspur.

A MARIN NEED

Mountaineering School Slated

Wanted: a recreational sport geared to improving the physical and emotional conditions of participants.

Found: mountaineering as taught by Mill Valley's Anthony Sottile in the Bay Area's first mountaineering school with international scope.

His Matterhorn School of Mountaineering for beginning, intermediate and advanced outdoorsmen will cover rock and ice climbing and a combination of cross country skiing and mountaineering highlighted by trips to the Sierra and Cascade ranges, and also Mount Tamalpais.

"When you know how to do this right, you have no emotional problems, no weight problems, no anxieties and you're in excellent physical condition," Sottile began. "It's you against the mountain. You're not competing against anybody else."

The 28-session course commencing Jan. 5 costs up to $525 and is to include traveling in the wilderness in all seasons, back packing, snow camping and bivouacs. Fees do not include certain equipment such as boots, food and travel expenses.

Sessions will be held all year round throughout the week for those paying the initial $50 refundable deposit. Sottile, a 45-year-old mountain climbing veteran, said that schedules will be arranged to suit individual needs. Sessions will consist of three to five man groups plus guide.

The program, which will be affiliated with European alpine clubs will run in conjunction with guides possessing worldwide experience in mountaineering.

Sottile's purpose is to promote the sport and its safety features. "I want people to know the basics and everything else they would want or need to know about mountaineering. After all, it's a way of life. You learn self control and discipline.

"You learn about correct posture for climbing up and down — diagonally or horizontally. You learn the necessary knots for ropes. The beginners start out at Mount Tam. The intermediates go to mountains in the Sierra and Cascades. And I would take advanced students to, say Lover's Leap (near South Lake Tahoe on Highway 50)."

Adventurous persons seeking the challenges from Mount Tam to Lover's Leap can contact Sottile at 145 Marguerite Avenue, Mill Valley, 94941.

CAZZIE RUSSELL

Warriors' 6th Man Is Leading Scorer

By ERIC PREWITT

OAKLAND (AP) — Cazzie Russell, who accepted coach Al Attles' assignment and became the Golden State Warriors' sixth man, is now No. 1 among the team's scorers.

"If we had everyone healthy, I'd still like to use Cazzie as the sixth man," Attles said after Russell scored a career-high 49 points in a victory over Houston Tuesday night.

"It might not be best for the individual, but I think it would be best for the team. Cazzie and I have an understanding."

The understanding was set aside when Clyde Lee, who was starting with Rick Barry at the forward positions, suffered a knee injury four weeks ago. Russell became a starter again, and is now averaging 22.8 points a game, high for the Warriors.

Russell, the former Michigan All-America, came to the Warriors in 1971 after playing behind Bill Bradley and Dave DeBusschere with the New York Knicks. He was a Golden State starter until Barry rejoined the team last season and Attles decided that Lee's rebounding strength could best complement Barry's shooting.

"I guess it used to be a big deal to be a starter and to get introduced before each game, but it's not anymore," says Attles. "Cazzie would play almost as many minutes as the sixth man."

Russell, who was scoring almost 20 points a game before returning to the starting lineup, admits, "I used to get down on myself too much. Now, I know that whatever happens, it's not the end of the world."

Barry scored 50 points last Saturday night against Los Angeles but watched Tuesday night's game from the bench because of a sprained ankle. He is averaging 21.3 points per game.

"I suppose I got more shots because Rick was out, but I'd rather have him in there," Russell said, "because then they're going to be watching him closely, and I'm going to get better shots."

Despite the impressive statistics of each shooter, Attles says, "I'd still like to use Cazzie as sixth man, because of his versatility. He can come off the bench when Rick is having a cold night.

"Suppose they're in there together and they're both cold?"

The way Russell and Barry are scoring now, Attles shouldn't have to worry about that possibility.

20 years ago Bob Cousy signed with the Boston Celtics for $8,500.

Hockey salaries have gone out of sight since the established National League had to give multi-year contracts to keep its talent from jumping to the rival World Hockey Association.

Right now defenseman Brad Park of the New York Rangers probably is the highest paid star in the National Hockey League. But even if Park gets a raise, he may not come close to the figures the Boston Bruins will soon have to give to both Bobby Orr and Phil Esposito, whose present contracts will soon expire.

The real question is: Can the hockey fan who pays the freight (and freight is definitely the right word here) afford another increase in ticket prices to watch his heroes in action?

I know some wives who say he can't!

Abraham, 13, Bowls 602 Series

Marin County bowling followers should be most enthusiastic today about their game's future when considering the recent exploits of junior stars Bill Abraham and James Massara.

Abraham, a 13-year-old student at Davidson Middle School, bowled 51 pins over his 149 average last Saturday morning when he recorded a 602 series in the Juniors League at Country Club Bowl in San Rafael. He had games of 218, 191 and 193.

Meanwhile, Massara, who notched an eye-popping 670 at Nave Lanes Dec. 1, continued his domination in the Ignacio house with a 547 this week.

COUNTY CLUB BOWL will present the 14th annual Adult-Juniors Christmas Tournament next Saturday. Squad times are 10 a.m. and 1 p.m.

Juniors, paying $2, and adults, $3, bowl three games with handicap and total pins scoring used in this doubles tournament.

UCLA unleashes its potent power sweep in the 1956 Rose Bowl.

TIME MACHINE

Rose Bowl Victory To Michigan State

PASADENA — Senate majority leader Lyndon Johnson (D—Tex.) has returned to Washington after a four-month recuperation period from a heart attack.

On the other side of the country in January, the 1956 Rose Bowl is expected to be a thriller.

Michigan State University, coached by 40-year-old Duffy Daugherty is ranked second in the nation. They run a multiple T offense triggered by quarterback Earl Morrall.

Their opponents are the UCLA Bruins. The Red Sanders coached Uclan show the old fashioned single wing from a balanced line. They are rated fourth nationally.

Early in the game, Morrall goes to the air, but Bruin halfback Jim Decker intercepts and runs to the Spartan 16 yard line. They drive to the two before UCLA fullback Bob Davenport dives into the end zone for the game's first score.

Morrall brings MSU back with a touchdown pass to Clarence Peaks. At half-time the score is 7-7.

In the third quarter, Peaks throws a halfback pass to end John Lewis for a 67-yard touchdown and Michigan State has the lead, 14-7.

However, UCLA tailback Sam Brown, a slashing runner, is hurt. Sanders inserts Ronnie Knox, the brilliant Bruin passer, who broke his leg earlier in the season. Knox immediately puts the ball in the air to Decker and Rommie Loudd. The Bruins are in scoring territory and Doug Peters, a substitute fullback, ties the game by blasting into the end zone.

A field goal could win it now as time runs out, but Spartan fullback Jerry Planutis misses one from the 24. The Bruins fail to get out of their own territory, giving the Spartans a final crack. MSU advances to the Bruins' 31 in the waning seconds. Daugherty then tabs end Dave Kaiser to try a field goal from that point. With seven seconds left, Kaiser succeeds; and Michigan State triumphs, 17-14.

SONOMA BASKETBALL

Casa Grande Waltzes; St. Vincent Defeated

Casa Grande High School of Petaluma (4-3) parlayed tremendous defensive pressure with fine outside shooting last night to take an 89-54 nonleague basketball game from visiting Tomales (1-7).

In other high school basketball games last night, St. Vincent of Petaluma (4-4) fell to non-league host Cloverdale, 58-44.

From the outset of the game, the Gauchos put on a full-court press which resulted in numerous Tomales turnovers. After the Braves went ahead 3-1, Casa Grande picked off two straight errant passes to go ahead permanently at 6-3.

Tomales played the Gauchos a little closer in the second quarter, but Casa Grande's 51 per cent field goal shooting carried it to a 41-25 halftime lead. Larry Thomas did most of the damger for the Gauchos in the second period, hitting four 20-foot jumpers.

The Braves made their only run of the game in the third quarter, cutting the margin down to 45-35 at 4:34, but two minutes later the Gauchos were back up by 18 points and that was the game.

3-Year Contract For Wisconsin's Coach Jardine

MADISON, Wis. (UPI) — Wisconsin football coach John Jardine has been given a new three-year contract, university officials announced yesterday.

The Wisconsin athletic board voted yesterday to add two more years onto the one year Jardine has left on his present contract.

Jardine has been head coach at Wisconsin for four years and his teams have compiled a 16-52-2 record. He has not had a winning season yet, but the teams have been exciting and have improved and Wisconsin has become one of the top halfdozen in attendance in the nation since Jardine took over.

Jardine, 38, came to Wisconsin from UCLA where he was an assistant to former Bruin Coach Tommy Prothro.

Surprising Bills, Eagles Each Place Three Players

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Buffalo Bills and the Philadelphia Eagles, two of the surprise teams of the National Football League this season, each placed three players on United Press International's third annual NFL All-Rookie team.

The Bills, 4-9-1 last season, turned around completely this year and were 8-5 with still a glimmer of a playoff hope entering Sunday's season finale. And much of the credit for the reversal must go to the three rookies, quarterback Joe Ferguson, guard Joe DeLamielleure and linebacker John Skorupan.

Ferguson, from Arkansas, started all of the Bills' games while DeLamielleure, from Michigan State, was part of the wall which helped O.J. Simpson move to within striking distance of Jim Brown's single season rushing record. Ferguson was joined in the rookie backfield by Lawrence McCutcheon of Los Angeles and Charles "Boobie" Clark of Cincinnati.

The Eagles, 2-11-1 last season, started as many as eight rookies at one time this season and were 5-7-1 entering their final game.

Tight end Charles Young of Southern Caliornia, offensive tackle Jerry Sisemore of Texas and center Guy Morriss of Texas Christian were the Eagles selected to the All-Rookie team.

Isaac Curtis, the speedster from San Diego State who gave Cincinnati a deep threat this season, and Darryl Stingley of Purdue, one of New England's three first-round picks last January, were selected at wide receiver while Robert Woods, the New York Jets' No. 2 pick from Tennessee State, joined Sisemore at tackle.

The guards were DeLamielleure, the Bills' No. 1 draft pick who almost was forced out of a pro career with a heart condition, and John Hannah of Alabama, another of New England's No. 1 drafts.

Defensively, Denver's Barney Chavous (South Carolina State) and St. Louis' Dave Butz (Purdue) were named at end and John Matuszak, Houston's No. 1 pick in the entire draft from Tampa, and Wally Chambers, taken by Chicago from Eastern Kentucky, were chosen at tackle.

Joining Skorupan at outside linebacker was Green Bay's Tom McLeod, from the University of Minnesota, while Houston's Gregg Bingham, a former defensive tackle and the third Purdue alumnus picked this year, was chosen at middle linebacker.

The cornerbacks were Eddie McMillan of Los Angeles, chosen out of Florida State, and Levi Johnson of Detroit, taken out of Texas A&I. The Jets' No. 1 pick, Burgess Owens of Miami (Fla.) was named at strong safety and Detroit's Dick Jauron from Yale was selected at free safety.

Oakland's Ray Guy, the first punter ever drafted on the first round when he was picked out of Southern Mississippi, was selected as the punter.

Cedeno's Attorney Demands Speed-Up

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (UPI) — Quirico Perez, defense attorney for Houston Astros' star Cesar Cedeno, said he will demand a speed-up in the legal processing of his client next week before the wheels of Dominican justice grind to a halt, Dec. 21 through Jan. 7, for the Christmas-New Years-Three Kings Day holidays.

Cedeno, 23, waited out the weekend in La Fe precinct jail where he has been since Tuesday, when he was charged with "voluntary manslaughter" in the motel slaying of his girl companion, Altagracia de la Cruz, 19.

Perez said he will ask Magistrate Socrates Diaz Curiel to step up the pace of the preliminary hearing, which has held two sessions. Perez seeks to persuade the magistrate to reduce the charge so that Cedeno may be freed on bail.

"Voluntary manslaughter," tantamount to the U.S. charge of second degree murder, is not a bailable offense, but "involuntary manslaughter" is.

Police called the pre-dawn shooting "accidental," and said that the girl was killed when a .38-caliber pistol she was examining went off as Cedeno tried to get it away from her.

Police reported earlier that Cedeno had legally registered the weapon, but the prosecutor has demanded documentary evidence. Cedeno could also face an illegal possession of firearms charge.

As it is, he will most likely miss spring training because of the slow movement of justice here, criminal lawyers opined.

WEEK IN BUSINESS

Market Ends On An Optimistic Note

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Arabs sneezed late this week, and Wall Street said, "Bless you!"

Investors, deep in gloom yesterday following three consecutive sharp declines, suddenly turned optimistic after spokesmen from the State Department said there is "a slightly better than 50-50 chance" the Arabs might lift their current oil embargo in connection with the Arab-Israeli peace talks slated to begin Tuesday in Geneva.

The Dow Jones industrial average soared 15.22 points yesterday to close the week at 815.65, but the gain was not enough to put the widely watched index on the up side. For the week, the Dow was down 22.40 points.

Most of the damage occurred between Tuesday and Thursday, when the average of 30 blue chips slid 50.71 points. During that period, the market apparently reacted to actions by both the Israelis and Arabs that cast doubt on the outcome of the impending peace talks. The Dow plunged 16.93 points Tuesday.

As Walter X. Burns, Lynch, Jones & Ryan analyst, observed, Wall Street has a tendency to hit upon a single blanket cause for an extended decline, such as the one that has occurred between October and the present. The result, he said, is hypersensitivity to any slight change in news—real or imagined.

This explains why, on only a hint the Arabs may change their oil policies, the market has been capable of wild swings for the last two months—both up and down.

Standard and Poor's 500 stock index dropped 3.22 to 93.29. The New York Stock Exchange index slid 1.73.

Declines outnumbered advances, 1,345 to 466, among the 1,992 issues traded.

Sales for the week totaled 95,013,364 shares, compared with 102,622,800 a week earlier, and with 87,039,040 the year before.

The last two months of protracted decline also have exaggerated some normal yearend market habits; in particular, the custom of many investors to sell weaker stocks for tax losses.

With the list crammed full of weak issues, Robert Amster of Rosenkrantz, Ehrenkrantz, Lyon and Ross said tax selling "may be the heaviest in years," and clearly is greasing the market's slide.

A special set of year-end problems has come up for glamor stocks. Many of them are multinational, and hence highly vulnerable to the economic difficulties experienced in Britain, Europe and Japan. The group has been hard by the energy crisis, and the possibility of a recession could spell less-than-expected earnings growth in 1974.

In short, this year's glamors have gotten a bad name among fund managers and institutional traders, leading as a result to many sellers and very few buyers as the funds ready their porfolios for end-of-year reports to shareholders.

With many of the "favored fifty" stocks falling into disfavor after long years of steady advances, analyst Ralph Acampora of Harris, Upham said the so-called "two-tiered" market is collapsing.

As he put it, "The only 'tiers' left will be in the eyes of money managers left holding those glamors at year-end."

General Motors led the actives, off ¾ to 47 ½ on 1,039,400 shares. First National City was second, falling 3 ½ to 40 ⅞, on 623,000 shares, and American Telephone and Telegraph Co. followed, off ¼ to 48 on 581,000 shares.

IDEA GROWS AND GROWS

Dominic Barardi, 11, had a nifty idea to decorate his classroom at San Geronimo School with a colorful chain of paper strips stapled into links. Other students liked the idea, too, and by yesterday students from the entire school were working on the project. At last report, it was 173 meters long — just 30 feet short of the length of two football fields.

Only Six Candidates File So Far

Only six candidates have filed so far for 28 city council seats in a dozen Marin and Southern Sonoma cities with elections on March 5.

Filing, which opened Dec. 6, closes at noon on Dec. 27. Nonincumbents will not get three extra days to file, as reported earlier in the Independent-Journal. This new law will not be effective for this coming year's city elections.

As of yesterday, candidates had filed in Mill Valley, Tiburon, Ross and Rohnert Park.

City halls issue nomination papers. Only San Rafael and Petaluma, which are charter cities, will not have elections next year.

Here are the seats up for election, by city:

Belvedere — Two seats open, terms of Mayor Allan Steinau and councilman Willard G. Pittman expiring; no candidate has filed; no salary; city council has waived $25 filing fee.

Corte Madera — Three seats open, terms of three councilmen to be elected in a special election Tuesday expiring; no candidate has filed. Post pays $150 per month.

Cotati — Two seats open, terms of councilmen Harry E. Fassio and Laura Washburn expiring; no candidate has filed; no salary.

Fairfax — Three seats open, terms of councilmen Frank J. Egger, Lee Nelder and Robert R. Souza expiring. No candidate has filed. Post pays $150 per month.

Larkspur — Two seats open, terms of Mayor Alfred J. Malvino and Councilman Neil R. Brixon expiring; no candidate has filed. No salary, but voters will decide if councilmen should get $50 a meeting in March 5 election.

Mill Valley — Two seats open, terms of Mayor Jean S. Barnard and councilman Edward J. Boessenecker expiring; three candidates announced but not filed — incumbents Boessenecker and Barnard; Gregory C. Dyer, 26, attorney. Post pays $150 per month.

Novato — Two seats open, terms of George C. Quesada and F. Wayne Sartain expiring; no candidate has filed. Post pays $150 a month, to be increased to $200 a month after March 5 election.

Rohnert Park — Two seats open, terms of Mayor Armando F. Flores and councilman Arthur N. Roberts expiring; one candidate, Flores, has filed. Post pays $150 a month.

Ross — Two seats open, terms of Mayor Frederick S. Allen and Councilman Roy Farrington Jones expiring. Allen has filed for reelection. There is no salary.

San Anselmo — Three seats open, terms of Mayor Lewis W. (Skip) Stewart, and councilmen Warren R. Perry and Woodrow V. Capurro expiring. No candidate has filed. Post pays $25 a meeting to a maximum of $50 per month.

Sausalito — Two seats open, terms of Earl F. Dunphy and Stephen A. Fraser expiring. No candidates have filed. Post pays $150 a month.

Tiburon — Three seats open, terms of Mayor Branwell D. Fanning, councilmen Albert H. Sennett and M. Carlisle Becker expiring; one candidate, announced but not filed — E. Bruce Ross, 37, planning commissioner and architect. There is no salary.

SPEND CHRISTMAS WITH

The owners of this well-maintained family home in Mariner Highlands are being transferred East & reluctantly have had to put this on the market. They tell us they'll miss the life style it gives them: nestled into the hill, a block (by path) to Granada School, the tree-lined street with underground utilities, formal living room & paneled family living area (where the fireplace is), 3 bedrooms, 2 baths, built-ins in the kid's room - a relaxed easy sort of life. It's been good for them. If this style seems like it might fit you, be sure to see it. $48,950 (and worth it).

POOL
View of Mt. Tam.
71 Toussin Ave

It may be raining now but if Sunday is a bright and sunny day, you will be able to appreciate all of the above. You'll appreciate this house even if it's raining.

Transferred seller has priced this house to attract a buyer now rather than after Jan. 1 when the market can be expected to bring a substantially higher price. Buy now and save.

71 Toussin is an outstanding home well suited to its site. It can best be described as: Warm, Casual, and Elegant. It has a big comfortable living room (double size) with open beam ceiling, a handsome fireplace, built-in book shelves, cabinets, and bar. There are dark stained oak floors throughout. Each of the four bedrooms have an abundance of natural light and each open to a private garden area. One bedroom is nicely paneled and makes an ideal den.

The site is well landscaped and is planned for easy maintenance. Level lawn and patio provide a foreground for the view of Mt. Tam. The pool is particularly well situated for sun. $115,000.

One Of Skylab 3's Gyroscopes Falters Again; New Position

HOUSTON (UPI) — One of Skylab 3's two workable stabilizing gyroscopes faltered again today and flight controllers canceled a maneuver to point the big spaceship toward Comet Kohoutek.

Skylab 3 astronauts Gerald P. Carr, Edward G. Gibson and William R. Pogue have provided scientists with some of their best data on the comet but officials decided on caution.

The crew had been rolling the station regularly to get into position for Kohoutek pictures. The maneuver puts stress on the two remaining gyros and uses extra controlling fuel to keep the ship stable.

The gyro's little spinning wheels slowed slightly, somewhat like the gyro that failed two weeks ago. Because of the erratic behavior, flight controllers began to develop a substitute stabilization plan that could keep the crew in space up to 36 days from the time of a failure.

The controllers have said repeatedly that the misbehaving gyro is basically in good health, but the frequency of its erratic performance has increased the past week.

Flight Director Donald R. Puddy said the new scheme called for mainly using the stabilization control system on the crew's Apollo ferry ship. Puddy said, however, that the amount of scientific data collected using only ferry ship fuel would be limited because maneuvering the spacecraft into position would still be costly.

Original predictions about the mission in case of a second gyro failure guessed that 14 days would be as long as the crew could stay.

The chief Skylab comet scientists said that Kohoutek is spewing out a tail almost twice as long as expected and contains exotic molecules from far beyond the solar system as it continues its Christmastime journey toward the sun.

San Rafael, air quality yesterday:

Oxidants, clean air.

Nitrogen, clean air.

Carbon monoxide, light air pollution.

Smoke particles, light air pollution.

Other areas:

San Francisco, light air pollution.

San Jose, light air pollution.

Colorless oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come largely from industrial sources but the other three come primarily from motor vehicles.

Ex-Governor Back In Politics

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Former Pennsylvania Gov. George M. Leader has reentered the political arena, but not as a candidate. He will direct the statewide committee for the reelection of Gov. Milton J. Shapp and Lt. Gov. Ernest Kline.

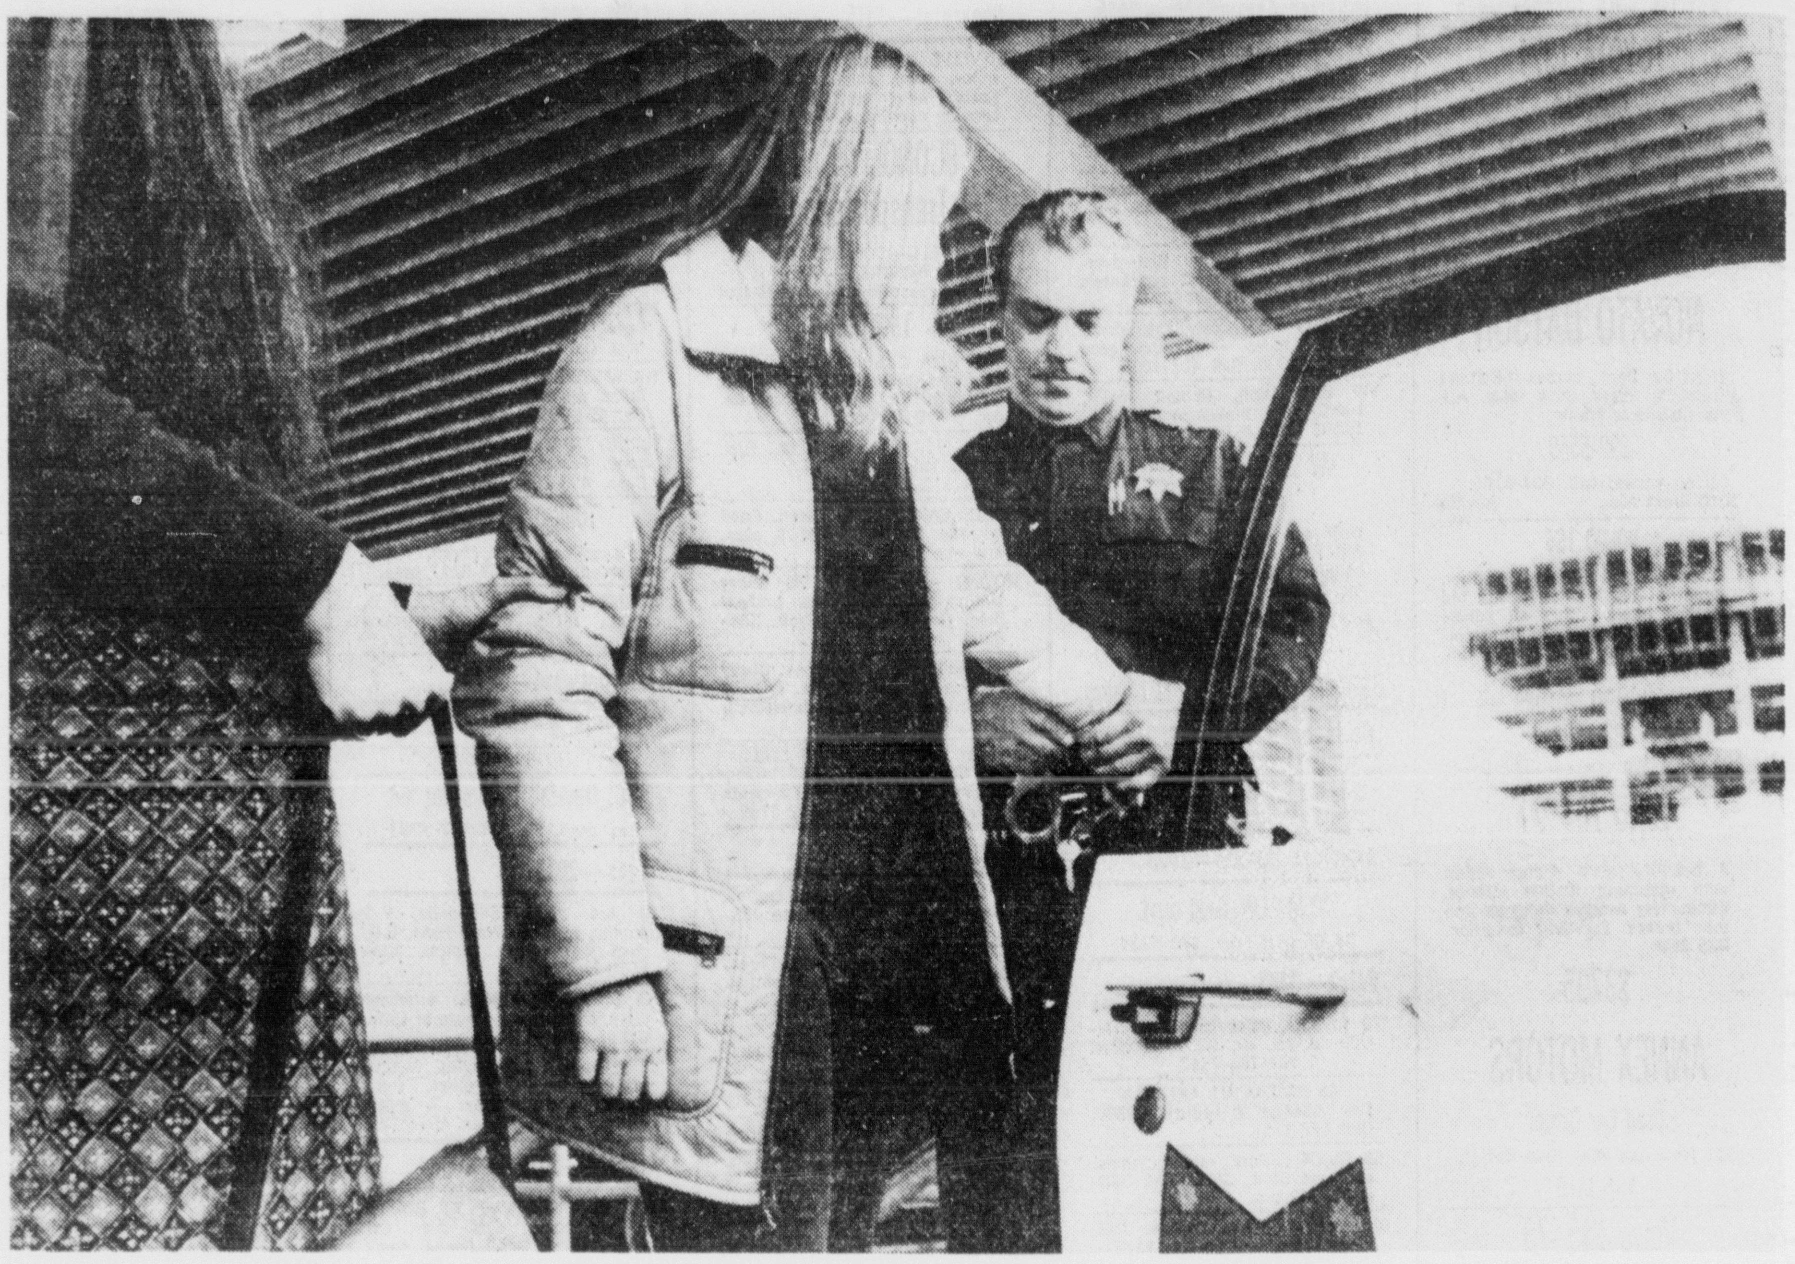
Shapp announced Thursday that Leader agreed to serve as chairman of the Pennsylvahians for Shapp-Kline.

Leader, a Democrat who served from 1955 to 1959, praised Shapp for the "beautiful team you put on the field in Harrisburg and the splendid job you've been doing."

Derby Is Off

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — The 1974 Powder Puff Derby has been called off at the request of the Federal Aviation Administration because of the fuel shortage, an official of the women's air race sayd yesterday.

It starts with the theft of perfume.



The shoplifter is handcuffed by San Rafael Patrolman Fred Castillo.

Shoplifting Is Not A Lark

Some young people are headed for a tragically unhappy Christmas because they think shoplifitng is only a lark.

It is not. It is a crime, complete with arrest, jailing, shame, embarrassment to the person's family and tough penalties. It may result in a criminal record that can cloud an otherwise bright future.

While shoplifitng is not limited to young people, they are blamed for a large proportion of the shoplifting in our community. Local merchants, bracing for the annual Christmas spree of thievery, hope to convince the young that shoplifitng usually is the beginning of much bigger trouble.

This seemingly innocuous crime has been termed by the Federal Bureau of Investigation as the fastest growing larceny in the nation, with more than $3.5 million ripped off annually from merchants across the country. And it is skyrocketing at an alarming 20 per cent a year.

Merchant associations figure one out of every 10 shoppers is a shoplifter. Of these, 95 per cent are amateurs. Merchants also point out the costs of shoplifting are passed along to the honest consumer.

Volunteer model Cathy Collingwood posed for this series of pictures to show the unhappy trip that young shoplifters take after they make their foolish mistake. Left to the imagination are the consequences which come after the shoplifter has landed in jail and gone to court.

Juvenile Officer Donald Rose fingerprints and photographs suspect.

Abby Rates High As A Theologian

By LOUIS CASSELS
By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

At the risk of offending some renowned scholars with many academic degrees, I nominate Abigail Vanburen as the best moral theologian in America today.

"Dear Abby" would be the first to admit, I am sure, that she is not as learned as professional theologians who teach at universities and seminaries. She has written no weighty books, and has advanced no distinctive new system of ethics.

What she does write, five days a week, is a syndicated column that may well be the most widely read feature in U.S. newspapers.

There's nothing original about its format. It consists of letters from people who are troubled, perplexed, irate, pleased or depressed about real-life, human problems.

Dorothy Dix pioneered the format ages ago, and hundreds of subsequent advice-to-the-love lorn columnists have imitated it.

What makes the Dear Abby column distinctive are her replies to the letters. They are nearly always wise as well as witty —and they are morally edifying.

From some things she has said, I have the impression that Mrs. Vanburen in private life is an adherent of Judaism. But I'm sure she will not take it amiss if I say there is a striking similarity between the moral positions she takes and those taken by Jesus.

For example: Abby, like Jesus, is invariably compassionate toward people who have landed in trouble because they succumbed to what the Puritans called the sins of the flesh. Although neither Jesus nor Abby condones licentiousness, they do not regard sexual misconduct as the epitome of evil.

What really tees off Abby (and here her resemblance to Jesus is most striking) is hypocrisy. She cannot abide the smug complacency of selfrighteous people, and the way she eviscerates them in print is remarkably similar, in tone and content, to some of the cutting remarks Jesus used to make to the Pharisees of his day.

Other similarities could be cited.

Both Jesus and Abby attach great importance to simple acts of human kindness. Both display deep concern for the plight of the poor, the sick, the aged, the lonely and the unloved.

Both regard it as a primary moral obligation of every human being to do all he can to help such wounded ones.

Both are sensitive to the large hurts people can inflict on each other through seemingly small incidents.

Both rank pride and selfishness just behind hypocrisy in the catalog of soul-crippling sins.

Perhaps the most basic similarity between Dear Abby and the founder of Christianity is a strong determination to communicate with people in language they can understand.

Jesus achieved this by telling lively little anecdotes (which now are piously called "parables"), and by using some of the most vivid and flashing metaphors in the history of speech. The measure of his skill as a communicator is the fact that what he taught still makes sense, 2,000 years later, to people of all nationalities, languages and cultures.

I'm not sure whether Abby's pithy replies and retorts will still be read and quoted 2,000 years hence. As a fellow newspaper writer, I am keenly mindful, as I'm sure she is, of the extreme perishability of prose published in journals that are read today and used tomorrow to wrap garbage.

But Abby's incisive comments and penetrating moral insights will live for quite a while anyway, in the hearts and minds of readers for whom they have provided precious moments of illumination.

Singers Will Appear At Assembly Of God Church

Two women who sing with the San Francisco Civic Chorale and the Lamplighters will present special music tomorrow at 11 a.m. at the Southern Marin Assembly of God, East Blithedale and Sycamore Avenues, Mill Valley.

They are Carole Jeanne Browne and Jean Rayner.

Carol Jean grew up in Washington, is a graduate of Wilamette University, has taught German and English in school, and presently is working with Pan American Airlines. She has traveled to Australia, Europe, parts of Asia and around the United States.

Jean grew up in Vacaville and graduated from Napa Junior College after which she joined Heald College in San Francisco. She has won an award for oboe solo.

Film About Bible Prophecy Slated

"A Thief in the Night," a film about Bible prophecy, will be shown at 6 p.m. tomorrow at the North Marin Assembly of God, 1370 South Novato Boulevard.

The story which "shows what can happen when Jesus Christ returns," centers around Peggy, an average girl caught up in living for the present, with little concern about the future.

Dialogue Opens By Fellowships

EISENACH, Germany (LC) — A dialogue problem exists between the global Lutheran fellowship and the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, according to Dr. Andre Appel, general secretary of the Lutheran World Federation.

The dominant conservative forces of the Missouri Synod chose to "respectfully decline" applying for membership to the World Federation at a New Orleans convention, he said, but full membership "is not necessary in order to establish a real dialogue."

PRISON PALS — Members of the Bennett Peterson family discuss their favorite Bible story with their adopted inmate, Don Harris (right background) during family home evening program at the Utah State Prison at Point Of The Mountain. Church Project Helps Prisoners

POINT OF THE MOUNTAIN, Utah (UPI) — Once a month, 37 Mormon couples pack their hymn books, church literature and kids into their cars and head for Utah State Prison.

After the half-hour drive, family members file one-by-one into a long, narrow room with pale white walls where 37 convicts await them.

Each prisoner gets together with his "adopted family" and tells them about the past month's events, his personal problems and reflections, and his hopes for a successful future outside the gray, confining walls.

All conversations must wait, however, until after an opening humn is sung and prayer offered. Then the silence turns into comfortable laughter, words of encouragement, and warm but sound advice.

The prisoners play with the children during the visits one Monday a month and keep in touch with their "family" through phone calls and letters.

The family home evening program at the state prison, sponsored by the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints, has proven uniquely successful as a rehabilitation program during six years of operation.

"I didn't want to get involved at first," said Don Harris, 28, who is serving five years to life for armed robbery. "I thought it was kids' stuff. Then one man said, 'Come on and give it a try.' So I finally did, and I wound up having the district attorney being the head of my family. But I'm sure glad I joined.

"I don't know what I would do without them," Harris added. "They've helped me see where I've gone wrong. They've also helped me to get trust back into people.

"And when I get out, I'll have someone who cares, and I think I'll make it."

Harris was adopted by the Bennett Peterson family of Bountiful, Utah. Peterson is Davis County Attorney.

"The first time we were going to the prison, I was rather apprehensive, especially about bringing my children," Mrs. Peterson said. "But as soon as we met Don we fell in love with him and wanted to help him. Now, he's one of us. When my 4-year-old couldn't come out to prison one night, she cried."

Other prisoners and their "families" told similar stories. Where normally 55 to 60 per cent of Utah State Prison inmates later return to jail, only 14 — or 14.8 per cent — of 94 inmates who participated in the Mormon Church program and were relased from prison have since returned to their cells.

"There is no doubt in my mind the program has helped some men," Warden Samuel Smith said. "I know of one man who was back in prison for the third time when he got on the program. My prognosis for him was that he wouldn't last six months the next time he got out, but he's lasted three years."

The program's success has attracted the interest of 18 other prisons in 11 states, which have started or are planning to begin similar projects.

Jewish Groups Form Blanket Organization

Formation of a blanket organization of Jewish groups in Marin County was announced recently by Martin Austin, president pro tem, of San Anselmo, and first vice president of the Marin Jewish Community Center.

A series of organizational meetings this fall resulted in the establishment of a group with the working title of the Marin Council of Jewish Organizations.

There are 22 Jewish groups active in Marin including synagogues, community centers, youth groups, fraternal organizations and others, all of which were invited to participate.

Aims of this new group are threefold; 1) identification and study of common areas of interest; 2) coordination of independent activities of member groups to avoid date conflict and duplication; and 3) the planning and participation in joint educational, cultural and social activities.

Jewish organizations in Marin County may attend the monthly meetings at the Marin Jewish Community Center, 200 N. San Pedro Road, San Rafael, on the first Wednesday of the month.

Film To Highlight Children's Program

A children's Christmas program will be held at 7 p.m. tomorrow at the San Rafael Improvement Club, 5th and H streets, by the Marin Evangelical Free Church.

Part of the program will be the showing of "The Other Wise Man," the story of a fourth wise man who missed his appointment with the three others because he stopped to help a needy person, pursued Jesus all his life without meeting him and finally sees the Savior.

Christmas Cantata Slated Tomorrow

The choir of the San Rafael Christian Church, 50 Ranchitos Road, will present the Christmas cantata, "Carol of Christmas", by John W. Peterson, at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow.

The choir is directed by Mrs. Mary Jones and accompanied by Mrs. Katy Hatfield. Soloists are Lois Jones, Paul Berry, Dianne Dambley, Barry Hatfield, Bill Berry, Lee Oberkamper and Connie Berry.

Tennis Pro Ordained A Minister

Alice Trombley, Marin tennis personality, became an ordained minister Dec. 9 in a ceremony at the Church of Scientology in San Francisco.

Miss Trombley has been assistant tennis pro at the Belvedere Tennis Club and does private coaching in Marin. She has played in numerous national tournaments, on the European circuit, and in the Wimbledon qualifying matches.

Several years ago she decided the answer to improvement lay not just through more practice, but through handling the mental and spiritual blocks to success. In learning to handle them through Scientology, she has also learned the church's pastoral counseling procedures and now wants to help others.

Scientology is an applied religious philosophy with a technology which, when exactly applied, brings about a betterment of conditions. It has grown during the last quarter century into a world wide nondenominational religion.

Choir Will Sing At Yule Festival

The highlight of the Christmas season for the Marin Covenant Church will be its annual Christmas Festival, this year featuring the "Spirit Spreaders," a 60-voice high school choir from the San Mateo First Presbyterian Church. Their director is baritone soloist Lyle Richardson.

This event is public and will be held tomorrow in the auditorium of the Miller Creek School, 2255 Las Gallinas Avenue near Lucas Valley Road, from 7 to 9:30 p.m.

The evening will open with a 15-minute segment of Christmas music by Richardson. The "Spirit Spreaders" will follow with the Otis Skillings musical "A Celebration of Hope." Activities following will include Christmas desserts, carol singing around a Christmas tree, a children's activity, and a brief message on the meaning of Christmas by the pastor, Gary R. Copeland.

During the 9:30 a.m. morning worship service the Covenant Church choir will be singing "Jesus, Joy of Man's Desiring" with flute solo by Miss Jean Anderson. Pastor Copeland will be speaking on the theme: "It Does Matter How You Live." Classes for adults and children of all ages follow at 10:45 a.m.

First Baptist Church To Host Jewish Group

The Liberated Wailing Wall, a group of six Jews for Jesus, will give a presentation at the First Baptist Church of San Rafael tomorrow at 11 a.m. They will be sharing in song, testimony and dramatic presentation their attitudes and outlooks since accepting Jesus as their Messiah, according to Pastor Barrett M. Lampp.

Their program consists of unique which is contemporary Jewish ethnic in sound, though some of the melodies are ancient. Their lyrics are in both English and Hebrew, consisting of scriptural statements appropriate to the Jewish-Christian religious experience. Except for a couple of synagogue pieces, most of the music is original and written by members in the group, Pastor Lampp noted.

Steffi Geiser, who writes much of the Wall's material, and calls herself "a nice Jewish girl from the Bronx", says that "as a Jew, Jesus has made me more appreciative of who I am, and by sharing my identity and cultural and religious background with Gentile Christians, they will not only get a greater appreciation of my people, the Jews, but they will gain a deeper insight into their own heritage as Christians."

Special Events For Christmas At Aldersgate

Aldersgate United Methodist Church at 220 Nova Albion Way will be celebrating the Christmas season this year with a number of events and activities.

Tomorrow at 7 p.m. there will be a special Christmas program by the children of the Church School, in which the various Church School classes will make a presentation of "The Star of Bethlehem."

The film "The Littlest Angel" will be shown and there will be a Birthday party for Jesus.

On Thursday, the United Methodist Women from Aldersgate will host a party and go carolling at the Northgate Convalescent Hospital and at 6 p.m. that evening the church youth groups and minister will hold a Christmas Service at Parkway Convalescent Hospital.

Annual Concert Scheduled At Redwoods Church

The annual Christmas concert tomorrow at Redwoods Presbyterian Church, Larkspur, will feature the Chancel Choir in the Buxtehude cantata "The Little Newborn Jesus Child" with harpsichord and strings accompaniment.

Ellen Kerrigan, soprano, will sing four old Flemish carols and guest basso will sing and play on the bass lute a group of German folk Christmas carols.

The 4 p.m. program will conclude with a short cantata, "The Christmas Story."

Combined Choirs To Give Program

The combined choirs of Valley Baptist Church, 3 North San Pedro Road, San Rafael, will present a Christmas program at 6 p.m. tomorrow.

The blending of voice, instruments and narration will highlight the candlelight service.

David Laube, arranger of the program, will direct the 50-voice choir.

"Give us this day our daily bread."
Matthew 6:11
Prayer to God brings you daily supply – and far more.
A regenerated nature, a heart full of love, the ability to bless others – these are God's gifts, too.
At our testimony meeting this Wednesday, hear others tell how they've experienced God's love, and seen His practical answer to every kind of need.
It's a one-hour meeting, including hymns and readings from the Bible and from Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy. It could be your bread for today.
We hope you'll come soon.

Group Seeks Action To Make Pet Owners More Responsible

By DANA ADAMS SCHMIDT
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

WASHINGTON — Nearly 40 per cent of all dogs and cats in the United States either roam free, unowned or are committed to shelter where many are killed, according to the Humane Society of the U.S.

Society spokesmen call for urgent action to try to make pet owners more responsible — and to ensure that dogs and cats committed to shelters have a greater chance of survival.

The greatest single need, they say, is to reduce the spiraling birth rate among dogs and cats.

A new survey by the society shows that there are 100 million dogs and cats in the nation including 35 million pet dogs and 27 million pet cats; 21 million more are unowned, and another 17 million are turned in each year to animal shelters. Of those turned in, 80 percent are "euthanized" (killed) usually by being given an injection or by being placed in a "high altitude" chamber whose air is pumped out.

Karl Nordling, the society's director of communications, would:

Encourage attitudes of responsibility by requiring people to buy municipal licenses for cats as well as dogs.

Generalize the practice of some animal shelters that requires applicants to wait 24 hours before they are allowed actually to adopt an animal.

A few shelters expand this precaution by requiring prospective pet owners to show that they have a yard where the animal can exercise and that there will be someone home during the day to look after it.

On the side of birth control, there are 300 spay clinics, most established in the past three years. Veterinarians will spay a female or neuter a male animal for fees that vary from $7 to $150. But $30 for spaying and $15 for neutering a dog or cat is an average figure; the shelters will do it for half that amount or for nothing if necessary.

Meanwhile, eight drug companies and five universities are working to develop a birth-control pill for dogs and cats. One company is believed to be about a year and a half from developing something equivalent to "the pill" to be included in pet foods or separately administered.

Of about 900 animal welfare societies identified by the society in the United States, including 450 shelter societies, fully half of the welfare societies and 350 of the shelter societies answered a Humane Society questionnaire.

Their replies were combined with information from 1,200 municipal animal-control programs of many kinds to reach the Society's estimate of the number of dogs and cats and the proportion destroyed annually.

"Fifty-seven per cent of American households now have a dog or a cat, and some have two," said Guy R. Hodge, legislative director of the Society.

"But the shocking thing when you go to the shelters," said Hodge, "is the number of beautiful, pure-bred dogs doomed there to be destroyed because there are just not enough possible homes for them."

The blame, as Nordling sees it, lies fundamentally with the American life-style: "We have too much the habit of buying freely and throwing away. Anyone can walk into a pet shop and buy a dog or cat; no one asks whether he is a fit keeper of animals.

Housing Group Approves Loan For An Archeological Dig

The Ecumenical Housing Association has agreed to lend $1,000 to another local housing group to help finance an archeological dig on the site of an apartment project for low and moderate income families.

Martin Mackey, association executive director, said the money will go to the Interfaith Housing Foundation for the site on its 70-unit Shelter Hills development near Mill Valley.

The project is being held up, he said, because it is located on a major archeological area containing Indian artifacts. Excavation would cost $15,000.

Mackey said the Miwok Archeological Preserve of Marin has offered to find volunteer diggers and finance two-thirds of the cost. The housing foundation now needs another $4,000 for its share of the project, he said.

The association board approved the loan at its Wednesday meeting and said it may possibly endorse a larger loan at some future time.

The board also learned that renovations of the Priory, a housing project for the elderly in Kentfield, have been completed and that 15 persons will be moving in next week.

The housing association group next meets Jan. 23.

B52 Bombers Could Be Endangering Big Cranes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The world's last flock of whooping cranes may be endangered by the Defense Department's B52 and combat helicopter sorties near their wildlife refuge in Texas, the Interior Department says.

Interior Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton has written Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger to consider giving up the target ranges — and the reportedly plush hunting and fishing club for generals and other officers — in the interest of the whoopers.

Schlesinger, who is an ardent bird-watcher in his spare time, hasn't replied yet.

But lower echelon officials insist the military needs the island and deny that it is "first and foremost an officer's country club," as an interior report recently concluded.

The 5-foot-tall, crimson-winged whooping cranes have flown 2,600 miles each fall since 1937 from their Canadian breeding grounds to the Arkansas National Wildlife Refuge on the Texas Gulf coast.

Several miles away across the marsh is Matagorda Island, a 50,000-acre, five-miles long sliver of island totally used by the military.

When the Huey Cobra helicopters and the B52s had better places to practice during the last decade, during the height of the Vietnam war, the sorties over Matagorda Island decreased markedly.

The whoopers began migrating across to Matagorda from the Arkansas wildlife refuse.

The Corpus Christi Caller first spotlighted the consequences last week of the head-on crash between the whoopers, who are increasingly inclined to meander around Matagorda Island, and the post-war buildup of B52 and helicopter sorites again on the bombing strips.

The newspaper quoted Aransas Refuge Manager E. F. Johnson as saying that only 43 of the estimated 51 whoopers showed up in Texas this fall.

He's not ruling out the possibility they are scared away by the B52s or the 450 monthly sorties by the ammunition-firing gunboat helicopters. The B52s release bombs which do not explode.

If East takes the ace of spades and next leads the queen of spades, South refuses the trick. South wins the third spade and goes after the diamonds, losing a finesses to East. East is out of spades, and South will thus win 10 tricks: one spade, one heart, four diamonds and four clubs.

MUST TAKE A KING

When East plays the queen of spades at the first trick, South must take the king of spades and try to make nine tricks on the run. After all, South cannot tell which opponent has the ace of spades.

If South tries a diamond finesse, he will lose to East's queen. East will then take the ace of spades and lead another spade, defeating the contract.

HEART FINESSE

If South tries the heart finesses, all will be well. How does he know which finesse to try?

Since South doesn't know, his best chance is to combine some sort of play for both red suits instead of depending on only one.

RUNS CLUBS

After winning the first spade trick, South runs all four clubs in the hope of creating a discarding problem for the opponents. Declarer next cashes the ace and king of diamonds in the hope of dropping the queen. When nothing marvelous happens, South finally falls back on the heart finesse. This works, and South makes his contract.

Today is Saturday, Dec. 15, the 349th day of 1973 with 16 to follow.

The moon is approaching its last quarter. The morning stars are Mercury and Saturn. The evening stars are Venus, Mars and Jupiter.

Alexandro Eiffel, French engineer who built the Paris tower which bears his name, was born Dec. 15, 1832.

On this day in history:

In 1791, the U.S. Bill of Rights, comprised of the first 10 amendments to the Constitution, went into effect following ratification by the state of Virginia.

In 1944, U.S. forced led by Gen. Douglas MacArthur landed at Mindoro in the Philippine Islands.

In 1948, a federal grand jury in New York indicted former State Department official Alger Hiss with perjury in connection with his denial that he gave secret government documents to Whittaker Chambers allegedly for delivery to a foreign power.

In 1961, a special Jewish tribunal sentenced Adolf Eichmann to death for his role in causing the deaths of millions of Jews during World War II.

A thought for the day: American poet John Greenleaf Whittier said, "For all sad words of tongue or pen, the saddest are these: 'It might have been!'"

BACKSTAGE AT THE BALLET

Members of the cast of the Marin Civic Ballet's "Nutcracker" dress, read comic books and tell stories as they prepare for last night's performance. The holiday production will be presented again tomorrow at 2 and 7:30 p.m., in the Marin Veterans Memorial Building in San Rafael. The "Nutcracker" tells of Clara and the magical nutcracker and their adventures in the lands of the Snow Queen and the Sugar Plum Fairy.

House Gives President Emergency Energy Powers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House, keeping its lights on well past midnight, passed a bill early today giving President Nixon emergency powers to deal with the energy crisis.

But the heavily-amended measure, which includes congressional veto power over gasoline rationing, differs so widely from the Senate version passed Nov. 20 that long conference committee work will be needed before final enactment.

Described by House Democratic leader Rep. Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. as a "must" bill, the legislation passed 265-112 after a 15-hour session.

While the House debated yesterday, truck drivers on strike in protest of speed and fuel limits met with federal officials.

Truck drivers' spokesman J.W. "River Rat" Edwards scheduled a news conference today to dispute Transportation Secretary Claude S. Brinegar's statement that he expected the strike to end this weekend.

"Secretary Brinegar does not speak for the truckers. At this time there has been nothing settled," said Edwards.

The House bill would force Nixon to seek prior approval from Congress before imposing any conservation or allocation measures and would give either house veto power over gasoline or home heating oil rationing.

It also banned gasoline for school buses used to transport pupils past their local schools for desegregation purposes and oil shipments to Southeast Asia for military purposes. But an amendment barring oil shipments to Israel for miltary use was soundly defeated.i

The House narrowly defeated an amendment that would have delayed auto exhaust control measures until the energy shortage eased.

Both Houses Friday approved a bill imposing daylight saving time through October, 1975. If President Nixon signs it by Sunday, clocks would be set one hour ahead Jan. 6. If he delays, the time change would take effect Jan. 13.

The Senate Friday passed a bill forcing states either to set their speed limits at a maximum of 55 miles per hour or face loss of federal highway funds.

Nixon today postponed his annual physical checkup for still more meetings with energy administrator William E. Simon and his deputy, John Sawhill.

In a speech Friday, as he lit the star atop a dim national Christmas tree, Nixon said this will not be a "dreary" holiday season "because the spirit of Christmas is not measured by the number of lights on a tree. The spirit of Christmas is measured by the love each of us has in the heart. . ."

In other developments:

Herbert Stein, head of the Council of Economic Advisers, said Friday that the energy and labor problems forcing Great Britain to go to a three-day work week "can't happen here."

The American Automobile Association said a survey it took shows that most of the nation's gasoline stations will not take long Christmas-New Year holiday weekends.

The Cost of Living Council issued guidelines Friday for pricing of petroleum products at the refinery level, designed to encourage production of more home heating oil and less gasoline.

Plane service in Venezuela is maintained through 63 airports, including four international airports.

Concert By Bands Set Wednesday

The San Rafael High School concert and symphonic bands will present a concert at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in the school auditorium. Proceeds will go toward the music department's trip to Expo '74 in Spokane, Wash.

The concert band will play a variety of music ranging from Mozart's "Allegro and Dance," to Holcombs' "Overture for Today." Student conductor Linda Merkle will direct the band in one selection.

The symphonic band will play Jenkins' "American Overture" and Wagner's "Elsa's Procession to the Cathedral."

This is the first concert under the direction of Charlene Wilkerson.

Arabs Get Answer On Cooperation

COPENHAGEN (UPI) — The nine-nation European summit conference told the Arabs today Europe is willing to cooperate economically, but warned them against wielding their oil weapon too hard.

The formal reply to Arab demands for more European cooperation and greater pressure for Israel's withdrawal from occupied lands was delivered to four Arab envoys today.

Danish Foreign Minister K.B. Andersen, speaking for the summit, said Europe wanted "close cooperation" with the Arabs, "but this cannot be carried out if our attention is constantly disturbed by measures directed against others"— a reference to Europe's suffering because of Arab oil cutbacks.

Presidents, premiers and foreign ministers of the nine-nation European Common Market, meanwhile, raced to finish their talks on greater unity.

The summit meeting, sidetracked by the gate-crashing Arabs, wanted to set up machinery for crisis management to give Europe a firmer voice in future international emergencies. It also groped for a joint policy on the emergency crisis but found itself divided on immediate concrete commitments, including the recent proposal from U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger for an American - European-Japanese energy crash program.

Some of the Europeans suspected France and Britain of seeking secret deals with the Arabs to secure their oil supplies.

The positive summit reply to the Arabs temporarily ended the drama caused by the surprise intervention of the four Arab ministers from Tunisia, Algeria, Sudan and the United Arab Emirates with demands from oil-thirsty Europe for wide-ranging economic and technological cooperation and more action against Israel.

The Arabs made these demands at a dawn meeting with the foreign ministers of the Common Market nations and asked for a quick response.

The summit conference instructed Andersen as chairman of the meeting to hand the Arabs the reply offering Europe's readiness to cooperate and reaffirming its recent strong resolution of Nov. 6 which called for Israeli withdrawal from occupied Arab territory.

Rights Panel Won't Stand On Pot Plan

The Marin County Human Rights Commissioners have refused to take a stand on a proposed state ballot measure to decriminalize marijuana possession.

Members of the White Panthers asked the commission on Thursday to endorse the measure. They also asked that each commissioner donate $5 a month for the petition signature campaign, according to Douglas H. Bosco, human rights director.

A motion to endorse the petition died for lack of a second, Bosco said.

The commissioners instructed Bosco to arrange a meeting with members of the county personnel commission to discuss the county's progress in its program for equal opportunity hiring.

The commission also voted to ask the county's superior court judges to see that minority groups are represented adequately on future grand juries, citing the lengthy court hearings on the San Quentin Six challenge against past grand jury makeup.

The commission's next meeting is Jan. 10.

Energy Czar Called A Holiday 'Grinch'

CHICAGO (UPI) — Former Democratic Congressman Roman Pucinski, now a Chicago alderman, called President Nixon's energy czar William Simon a "grinch" Thursday and urged all residents of Chicago to follow his lead in stringing their outside Christmas lighting.

"I'm spending this weekend stringing lights all around the front of my house. Then I'll turn them on and dare the government to arrest me," Pucinski said. "I say, bah humbug to Washington."

Nuclear Power Need Becomes Pressing

THAT OUR society and our standard of living depend on abundant energy is being realized now as never before.

What's involved has been described dramatically by a onetime Marin resident, Robert R. Gros, PG & E vice president.

To fuel a 1,000 megawatt electric generating plant for a year requires 60 billion cubic feet of gas.

That is the way PG & E has fueled its steam-electric generating plants 90 to 95 per cent of the time heretofore.

Now gas is in short supply. The Canadian government has denied all pending export permits, including PG & E's which seemingly was in the bag for 200 million cubic feet per day — 73 billion cubic feet per year.

Next, the Federal Power Commission ordered reductions in deliveries of gas from Texas to PG & E. The ordered cut will amount to 122½ billion cubic feet in 1974 and 70 billion cubic feet in 1975.

Further, the Federal Power Commission has placed steam-generating plants in the lowest priority for natural gas in time of shortage.

IF YOU cannot use gas, you can use oil — 10 million gallons of it to fuel the 1,000-megawatt plant for a year. (If you can get the oil.)

In 1970, PG & E spent less than $1 million for all the fuel oil it needed that year. If it could buy all the fuel oil it will need in 1974 at 1973 prices, the bill would be $318 million, plus another $100 million for storage and plant conversion.

Coal isn't available to PG & E. If it were, 3½ million tons would be needed.

Or, if technology permitted, seven million tons of garbage would provide the necessary energy for a 1,000-megawatt plant for a year.

If one preferred to go back to wood burning, 50,000 acres of redwood trees would do the job.

The sun has been suggested a source of energy. With present technology, 25,000 acres of solar cells would be needed for the same plant.

Only 30 tons of uranium will fuel a comparable nuclear plant for a year.

ENVIRONMENTALISTS should awaken to the facts of life. Opposition to the swift development of nuclear-fueled electric generating plants is causing the consumption of natural resources — especially natural gas and oil — at alarming (and unnecessary) rates. Not to mention shortages.

Some far-out environmentalists may prefer to shiver in inadequately heated homes and offices in winter. They may prefer to swelter in inadequately cooled homes and offices in summer.

But they should not inflict their Spartan preferences on the rest of us who equate quality of life with at least a measure of personal comfort and convenience.

We may save mountains and forests for human enjoyment, but we need fuel to travel there if we are to experience the enjoyment.

PG & E WILL burn nearly 30 million gallons of fuel oil in 1974 because of delays in bringing nuclear plants into operation — delays due in large measure to the efforts of environmentalists.

PG & E already is spending about $100 million per year to meet current costs of "environmentalism."

Most of us do not begrudge the higher rates which we must pay for gas and electricity to protect our environment. But we don't want to pay ever higher rates for inadequate supplies of gas and electricity.

Let us get on with the completion of nuclear plants. Let our state and federal regulatory agencies expedite rather than obstruct their early completion.

—Jack Craemer

We Even Eat Energy

Probably most Marinites never gave much thought to how much we all depend upon energy in our everyday lives. As much as anything, our use of energy is responsible for our relative affluence as a nation. While poorer lands use muscles and sweat and animals, we take for granted the gasoline engine and electrical appliances. In simpler societies, man can grow food using soil, seed, sun, water and their own labor, as many Marin gardeners do. But most of our food represents much energy in the form of tractor and truck fuel, refrigeration and lighting, baking, canning, and a variety of other energy-consuming processes.

Someone figured it out: To put a glass of milk on the table takes the energy equivalent of half a glass of diesel oil. A loaf of bread requires the equivalent of two pounds of coal, a pound of hamburger takes three.

Crises — Overdone

It used to be Americans had problems. Now we have crises. A crisis is more frightening than a problem. Problems demand solving. Crises hint at helplessness and panic. We think the word "crisis" is greatly overused.

Let us go back to having problems. Then put our energies to solving them. Too many crises become a bore.

Bouquets Only This Time

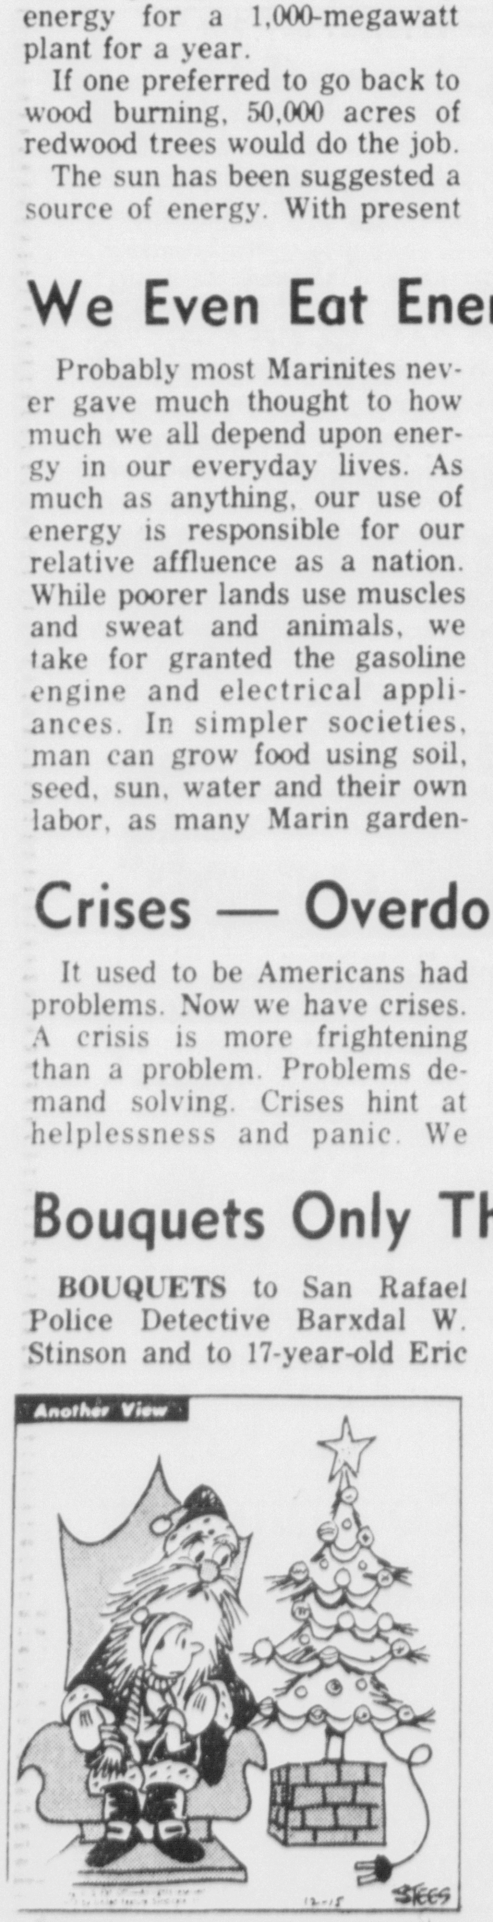
BOUQUETS to San Rafael Police Detective Barxdal W. Stinson and to 17-year-old Eric Newlin of Larkspur for their well-merited selection as "Peace Officer of the Year" and "Citizen of the Year" by the Marin County Peace Officers Association.

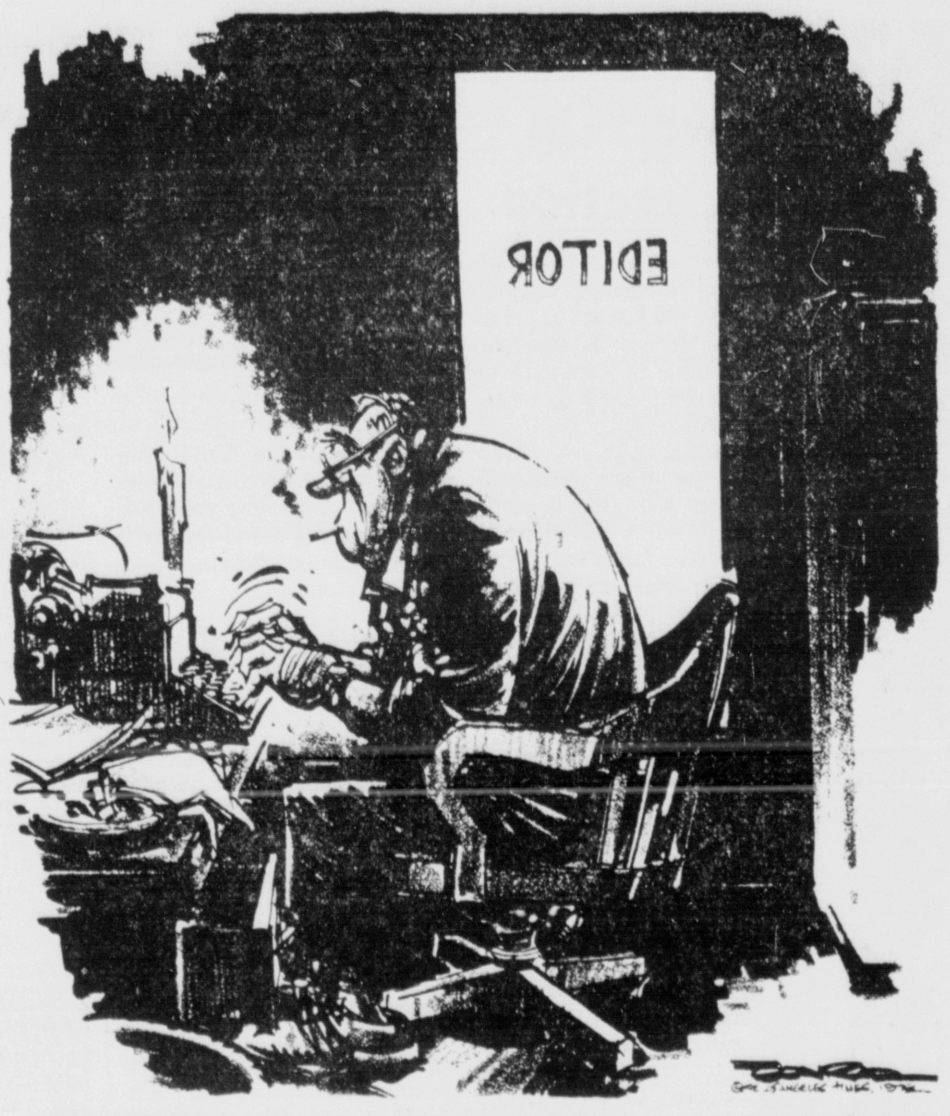
BOUQUETS to Marinites who put the United Crusade $47,000 over its goal here while it fell below the amounts sought in other Bay Area counties.

BOUQUET to the Coast Guard for its rescue of a barge home about to sink in Richardson Bay on Monday.

The Christmas spirit has stolen upon us, so we refrain from handing out any BRICKBATS today.

Another View





"Yes, Virginia, there is an energy crisis. Just as sure as there is off-shore drilling, the Alaska pipeline, oil shale in Colorado, and unlimited profits for oil companies. Yes . . ."

'A Rick Of Wood'? Arkansas Has Them

Mr. Kenneth Brown, director of weights and measures, states "a rick has no meaning in the sale of wood." Apparently, this depends upon which part of the country one was reared. As a former Arkansan, wood was always purchased or sold as a rick. Sorry, I can't give the exact measurements. It's been awhile.

Doyle Drive Barrier Variation Proposed

All of the articles discussing changing the Golden Gate Bridge approach in San Francisco (Doyle Drive) to eight lanes with a median permanent barrier to prevent accidents have centered on widening the existing structure at a tremendous expense. And naturally enough San Francisco has resisted the idea quite vigorously, seeing in it the beginning of a program by the Department of Highways to continue this widening concept on north through Marin with its attendent influx of cars into the city, which already is glutted by them.

Here is presented a possible solution that would not necessitate widening the approach, thereby making it palatable to the supervisors of San Francisco as well as reducing the construction costs by many millions:

Why not construct permanent barriers between each existing two lanes, similar to those recently installed from Doyle Drive through the Presidio tunnel to Funston Avenue? Then at each end movable stakes could be used to divert traffic into four lanes southbound in the morning and four lanes northbound in the evenings. During off-peak hours the center lanes would not be used as at present.

During weekends and holidays they could be utilized as required to handle heavy traffic in either direction. For many years the movable stakes have worked fine to divert traffic without incident. The barriers could be constructed in much less time than widening would take . . .

I think the San Francisco supervisors will welcome any solution to the Doyle Drive accident problem that would assure them their city will not be flooded with more traffic by any widening of 101. And if the Department of Highways is really interested in traffic safety instead of providing a boon to the highway builders, how about kicking this idea around the table?

Is There Double Standard For 'Responsiveness'?

A letter to the editor yesterday (Dec. 11) was noted with some amusement.

The Gordons' hysteria regarding certain candidates' stand on the Hahn shopping center issue brings to mind the verbiage from the recall committee regarding councilmen not being responsive to wishes of the citizens of Corte Madera. A survey conducted by the Town Meeting Association (of which the recall committee was an offshoot) revealed that, of citizens voicing an opinion, the majority were in favor of the Hahn shopping center.

It would now seem that Messrs. Kostelik and Harvey, who favor the shopping center, are placed in a position of being responsive to the wishes of the citizens. Or is there a double standard, which can be glibly explained?

Generous Move By Mr. Nixon: Giving White House To People

WASHINGTON — President Richard Nixon is preparing to disclose that he and his wife will leave their home at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue in Washington, D.C., to the American people.

The house, known as "the White House," is one of the largest in Washington and is considered one of the choice properties in the city.

A spokesman for the First Family said, "Although the president and Mrs. Nixon have not lived in it much, the White House has great sentimental value for them. By leaving it to the American people, the president hopes to take care of all the criticism leveled at him for the taxpayers' money he spent on his homes in Key Biscayne and San Clemente.

"The president's lawyers are now drawing up the papers which will provide that the Nixons can live there for three more years before turning it over to the government. There is some question in Congress as to whether this is legally possible."

THE PRESIDENT made his decision to donate the White House to the American people long before the energy crisis, according to the spokesman, and he rejected media reports that the reason the Nixons are giving the White House to the nation is that it is too hard to heat.

The spokesman said also that President Nixon intends to include in the donation his entire tape collection, which is considered one of the best in the entire land. These tapes, made over a five-year period, have been the envy of collectors everywhere and, while everyone from Archibald Cox to Judge Sirica has tried to acquire them, the Nixons feel they should stay in the White House where they belong.

The spokesman said that by donating their home at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue the Nixons were putting to rest unfounded rumors that Bebe Rebozo and Howard Hughes planned to develop the property for a 40-story hotel and a possible gambling casino.

"It's true," he said, "that plans were drawn up for such a project but the president rejected them when Mr. Hughes insisted that the capitol be included in the deal."

ORIGINALLY, the Nixons had planned to leave the White House to the Spiro Agnews but something happened, no one knows exactly what, and the Agnews were cut out of the will.

It was rumored that the Gerry Fords might sublease the White House in 1974, but the spokesman denied this.

"The president has no plans to rent the house to anyone. For one thing, he has been informed by his lawyers that, should he move out, he would have to pay state income taxes in California.

"Several people have offered to buy the White House, including Nelson Rockefeller, Ronald Reagan, John Connally and Teddy Kennedy, but the Nixons have turned down their offers. The price they offered was not even in the ballpark considering all the improvements that have been made."

After the announcement was made, reporters checked with the Department of Interior to ask them what they intended to do with the property. An official said: "We're not certain. For the last five years it's been run like Disneyland, and we'd like to keep the same flavor if we can. The White House should be a fun place for the American people where they can amuse themselves and forget about the cares of the world."

More Shoals Ahead For Nixon; Big Business Ready For Ford?

WASHINGTON — A beleaguered administration has reached a plateau of sorts with a new vice president and the painful exercise of putting the president's personal finances out on the table. It is a pause that coincides with the coming Christmas holiday, and Mr. Nixon and the little circle of loyalists around him can breathe more easily.

But ahead are more peaks, sno-capped and formidable, which must be overcome in toughing it out through 1974 and beyond. Moreover, a new element has been added in the climate of adversity. Rumbles of discontent have come from the big-business community which contributed so generously to the president's re-election.

The love of this community for the Republican party, so often demonstrated in the past, has not dimmed. The concern today is over the long-term damage that Nixon can do to the Grand Old Party with the hurdles of 1974 and '76. They are also watching that nervous barometer, the stock market. As the head of one investment house put it:

"Sure, the market might waver a bit if Nixon resigned. But with Ford in the office it would go up a hundred points within a short time."

WHAT THE MORE ASTUTE business leaders see is an unending rerun of the Watergate follies. This will not come through Senate investigation but by way of the courts. At least 12 to 14 indictments of Watergate principals — and that is a conservative estimate — are still to come. Shortly after the first of the year they will begin to be returned, each one with a prominent name.

The trials could begin as early as the spring, although that is unlikely since the defense can employ a series of delaying tactics. They will go over to early fall just as the congressional campaign is starting. That is a grisly prospect not only for Republican candidates but for the party itself. Unending headlines dealing with the alleged crimes of Watergate participants will make an unhappy backdrop.

The prospect is also very real that disclosures during the trials will further implicate the president. His two former cabinet officers, Commerce Sec. Maurice H. Stans and Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, indicted several months ago, succeeded in delaying their trial until Jan. 7. The case against Stans and Mitchell had been considered weak, since defense attorneys could plead that relevant evidence on White House tapes was not available. Now, however, the White House has agreed to supply a critical tape.

INDICTED WITH MITCHELL and Stans last May was Robert L. Vesco, charged with making a secret contribution of $200,000 in cash, allegedly to block a Securities and Exchange Commission investigation of Vesco's tangled finances. Vesco has just won a verdict in a Bahamian court denying his extradition to the United States.

He has also established a base in Argentina where he can operate with the huge sums he is charged with extracting from International Controls Corp. Vesco had the help of the president's two brothers, Donald and Edward, who will be subpoenaed during the trial.

At one point it was feared that the absence of Vesco as a key witness would be a serious handicap. But, with the tape from the White House believed to be relevant, this is now discounted. There is also a possibility that both Stans and Mitchell may be indicted in Washington on other charges.

IMPORTANT ELEMENTS in the business community look at this with dismay. They see Gerald Ford not so much as another Harry Truman but as a Calvin Coolidge. After all, Truman had his Fair Deal and various pesky reforms that business didn't like. They remember Coolidge's immortal words: "The business of government is business."

Coolidge was elected in 1924. Becoming president with the death of Warren G. Harding the previous year, he had moved quickly to clean up the mess of Teapot Dome. He had stood clear of that sordid scandal and, fortunately for Coolidge and his party, the Democrats were in a shambles of dissension.

Nor has business forgotten that with Coolidge that great bull market boom began. It roared on through 1928 when Silent Cal was no longer in the White House. As 1929 proved, that boom was slightly excessive. Nevertheless, the financial community can dream of something a bit more moderate with the mess in Washington tidied up by President Ford.

History Shows Party In Power Can Survive Major Scandals

There has been so much talk lately about what Watergate might or might not do to the elections of 1974 and 1976 that we pulled out a few books on American political history to see what effect previous American political scandals had on the elections which followed.

The first truly scandalous administration was that of President Grant. He was first elected in 1868. The scandals began to emerge during the 1872 election but didn't at that time get close enough to the White House to have any serious impact.

GRANT WAS RE-ELECTED by a comfortable majority. The serious question was whether the scandals would hurt the Republicans the next time around. It did hurt them, in the 1874 midterm re-elections. The Democrats took the House of Representatives and improved their position in the Senate.

The second half of Grant's second term was enlivened by the steady exposure of more graft and corruption, reaching even into the White House where the president's personal secretary, Orville Babcock, was found to be associated with the St. Louis "Whiskey Ring."

But the same two years also saw a major economic depression which began in 1873 and continued to grip the country through the presidential election of 1876.

Because scandal and economic depression came together it is impossible to know what scandal alone might have done to the 1876 voting pattern.

The combination of the two did upset the normal Republican majority of the time. The Democratic candidate, Samuel J. Tilden, won the popular majority with a margin of over a quarter of a million votes. The electoral vote was disputed and the contest went into a special commission which decided in favor of the Republican, Rutherford B. Hayes. Fraud was charged, and probably was involved, although not proved.

THE SCANDALS of the Harding administration involved every form of corruption imaginable by politicians of that era. Three members of the cabinet were involved. One went to jail.

But no one can know what the effect would have been had Warren Harding lived out his first full term. His death, in the middle of his third year in office (Aug. 2, 1923), put the White House in the hands of Calvin Coolidge.

It was a new face, and a new broom which cleaned out of Washington all those tainted by the Harding scandals. Democrats did their best to use those scandals against Coolidge, but with no success.

Coolidge was re-elected in 1924 with 15,725,000 votes against 8,386,000 for the Democrat, John W. Davis.

THE REPUBLICANS were brought down eventually, but not by the Harding scandals. The Great Depression which began in 1929 opened Washington to Roosevelt and the New Deal. So there is no evidence that the Harding scandals affected subsequent voting patterns.

However, Harding was not in the White House after the scandals of his administration were exposed. His place had been taken by a successor of total probity.

One conclusion appears to be that a party which purges itself before election day and gets itself a new leadership and a new face can escape the consequences of the misfortunes of the departed leader.

This is now known on Capitol Hill as the "Coolidge syndrome" and is being much discussed among Republicans facing re-elections next year.

Another conclusion appears to be that economic trouble is a far more powerful political force than scandal.

There is little in the combined Grant and Harding stories to indicate that scandal alone has much influence. There is every evidence that economic trouble can be decisive.

Law Students Testing Skills In Court

By JEFF GREER

Twenty-two University of San Francisco Law School students are working full time in the Marin County Public Defender's office, "learning how to make a noise like a lawyer," as one Marin judge colorfully put it.

"And how not to make a noise, sometimes," replied student Joanne Parrilli.

The law students perform just as if they'd already passed the bar examinations. They appear in court on behalf of the public defender's clients, argue motions and sometimes even handle the entire defense in misdemeanor trials.

Everything the interning students do is double-checked and watched over by a full-fledged attorney, either one of the law school faculty or a deputy in Public Defender Harold J. Truett's office.

Before a student is assigned to any public defender's client, the client is given a full explanation of the intern program. Ron Mikon, one of two law faculty members supervising the intern program, said that only two persons have refused to have a student handle their cases. The program has been operating for a year-and-one-half.

"In fact, many of the clients hear about the program from friends who have been in the courts; they ask for us," reported Miss Parrilli. She's working in the program for a second semester, as a teaching assistant.

When the interns work in trials, the judges are careful not to let jurors know they are watching a student in action — until after jurors reach their verdicts.

Mikon recalled sitting through a three-day jury trial in Municipal Judge Robert A. Smallman's court, supervising one of the students handling a defense.

"I didn't have to do a thing in that case," Mikon said. "The jurors were surprised to hear the defense counsel was a student. One juror came over to me and said, 'I've been watching you sit in court and I decided you must be the law student'," the professor said.

Mikon and fellow faculty member Myrna Raeder and two teaching assistants meet weekly with all the students for a three-hour seminar. The students devote the rest of their time to actual casework, except for one class a week back on campus.

The course in criminal law practice is financed partly by the school, and partly by the Council for Legal Education for Professional Responsibility, a nationwide private foundation. Students taking the course, plus the one class on campus, get credits for the full semester's work toward their law degree. They all have completed at least three years of law study before interning in criminal practice.

No quizzes or final exams are given on the semester's work — their term papers are all the public defender's files as court case histories, explained student Donald Brody.

Each student's case-load is carefully limited to insure that clients get full protection, Mikon said. The average intern handles about 15 cases during a semester. The student spends the first few weeks in intensive training sessions, before taking an actual cases.

Since about 95 per cent of criminal cases never go to trial, few trials themselves are handled by the interns. Mikon recalled six jury trials in 18 months — all misdemeanor cases in municipal court. One trial led to outright acquittal, two were dismissed, two led to guilty verdicts and one resulted in a hung jury.

"THERE'S A DEFENSE POINT" — Harold J. Truett (center) Marin County public defender, checks with law school students Joanne Parrili (left) and Dean Sprinfellow, on how the interns are preparing to defend cases in Marin courts. The students are among 22 spending a semester working fulltime in the defender's office, as part of their training at the University of San Francisco Law School.

Municipal Court Judge David R. Baty has the most contact with the future lawyers. He presides daily over the criminal calendar, through which pass all persons charged with either misdemeanor or felony crimes.

In most cases when a defendant can't afford a private attorney, a public defender's intern is appointed.

Baty reported that each student zealously protects his or her client, doing extensive research into both the facts of the case and the law, and making in-depth arguments for motions.

Some of the students seem shy of self-confidence in their first cases, but soon learn "to make a noise like a lawyer," Judge Baty said.

He praised the intern program highly.

"When I graduated from law school, they didn't even tell me the address of the courthouse," he said, chuckling. "Some new lawyers may go three years before they get into a court after they graduate and pass the bar."

Dist. Atty Bruce B. Bales found himself on the firing line recently, handling the prosecution of a full calendar while all his own deputies were attending a seminar.

Bales was wrestling with a thick stack of case files with which he was unfamiliar, while seemingly dozens of well-prepared students stood up with their clients.

"They move anything that moves," in the way of legal defense, Bales noted.

Truett and the judges said, however, that the students' cases often go more smoothly than those of a regular attorney. Many of the public defender deputies carry a staggering load of 200 cases during the semester the students are handling 15 or so cases apiece. Students thus can and do spend many hours grounding themselves in each case and discussing it with their supervisors.

Their semester's experience in actual court work often makes the students decide to specialize in criminal law, the interns reported. "But it's good experience even for someone who plans to handle only civil cases," said student William Coleman of Oakland.

Most of the students interviewed harped on a common theme — the intern program "teaches us that justice involves human beings, not just cases on law books or textbooks."

"I was scared to death the first time I had to interview a client in the jail," Miss Parrilli recalled. "Not so much because of the surroundings, but because I was worried about doing all the paperwork right."

Other students reported that defendants' families sometimes seek to become too actively involved in a case, "and we have to tell them what we talk about with the clients is confidential and privileged," Coleman added.

Miss Parrilli said she intends to practice criminal law, but hasn't decided on whether on the side of the defense or prosecution.

Teacher Denies Two Key Counts

Teacher Kenneth A. Anderson yesterday said that he never encouraged a student of his to bomb bank buildings or engaged in improper conduct with a 15-year-old girl.

Anderson is the target of a suit brought by the Tamalpais High School District which is seeking to fire the 33-year-old former English teacher.

In the fifth day of the civil case before Marin Superior Court Judge E. Warren McGuire, Anderson, under questioning by his attorney, Carl B. Shapiro, said he:

1. Didn't know Bruce Paul Lohmann was responsible for three bombings and two fires in Southern Marin in the spring of 1971.

2. Was unaware that Lohmann kept bomb materials in a locked cabinet in Anderson's classroom at Tamalpais High School in Mill Valley.

3. Did not lend Lohmann a pass key which the youth used to enter locked schoolrooms.

4. Did not engage in sexual relations with a girl student prior to or during a trip to Yosemite in November 1971.

Anderson said his family was friendly with the family of the girl, Beth Okamura, and he did not begin to view her romantically until early 1972, when he took a room in her parents' house in Bolinas. They were married in June of that year, he said.

Countering another district charge that he failed to properly control his students, Anderson said they had the administration's permission to study independently in various parts of the Tamalpais High School campus.

(Earlier testimony presented by William O. Weissich, attorney for the high school district, contended Anderson often allowed his students to roam about campus.)

The court hearing will resume Wednesday.

County Club Group Begins Annex Protest

Residents of the Country Club area near San Rafael who oppose a plan to annex that area to the city, yesterday filed signed letters of protest with the city.

Joseph Kohlenstein of 280 Summit Avenue, said about 275 property owners — representing about 60 per cent of the area is assessed valuation — have signed the letters.

Residents oppose the annexation for many reasons. Some don't want to be ruled by San Rafael, while others fear their taxes will be raised if they enter the city. Still others object to another layer of government being added to existing ones.

Raymond Meador, assistant to the city manager, said officials are still trying to determine how much land the protesting citizens own.

"It may be Monday before we know," he said. "We'll probably have to get a reading from the county to see what the total assessed valuation is."

If the protesters represent at least 50 per cent of the assessed valuation, the annexation attempt will be killed.

The Marin County Local Agency Formation Commission which endorsed annexation in August.

Kohlenstein said the letters delivered yesterday to city hall were submitted by individual property owners. "There are still more coming," he said.

The Country Club area is named for a golf club which once occupied it. An estimated 800 residents live in 260 residential units there.

The Call for Annexation began in July when a number of homeowners sought the agency formation commission's approval. Homeowner Jane Levinsohn of 21 Lunada Court told the commission the area needed city services, especially fire protection.

Amendment On Agency Plan Urged

OAKLAND (AP) — Proponents of direct public elections for members of a proposed regional planning agency for the San Francisco Bay Area launched a new offensive yesterday.

Officials of the Regional Agency Action Task Force and the Sierra Club told members of an assembly subcommittee that a bill pending in the Legislature, creating the powerful agency should be amended to provide election of members on a nine-county regional basis.

"We feel the board should be directly elected, accountable to a regional constituency on regional problems," said George Burgess, chairman of the task force's Bay Area Council.

The bill's present form would create a 36-member board composed of city councilmen and supervisors. Burgess aid his organization would support that provision if there were a guarantee of direct elections within two or three years.

Yesterday's views were aired before civic, business and government leaders at a hearing proposed by Assemblyman John T. Knox, D-Richmond.

Students Elect Another Nixon

FRESNO (AP) — Another Nixon has been elected president.

This one is Tyrone Nixon, 12, who ran on a platform that he was "fit for the job" in convincing fellow students to elect him to head the student body at Lincoln Elementary School here.

Tyrone doesn't think name recognition with the other Nixon made the difference. He credits football where he gained some fame by scoring 14 touchdowns for his team this fall.

Funds For Computer Center Hit

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Legislature is being urged to consider cutting off funds for a multimillion dollar computer center until the Reagan administration conducts "valid" negotiations with all computer companies.

Legislative Auditor General Harvey Rose said the administration failed to conduct "valid negotiations" with all vendors interest in equipping the new center.

This has resulted in a "potential loss of cost savings of at least $15 million," he said.

Rose made the charge in a report prepared for the Assembly Ways and Means Committee. It will conduct a hearing Monday into the Reagan administration's award of a $38 million contract to IBM.

The contract was awarded without competitive bidding under legislation enacted on an urgency basis after bidding through normal channels failed twice. IBM was the only bidder both times.

Univac Corp., whose equipment will be replaced by the new center, complained the administration weighted the contract heavily in IBM's favor.

Univac had offered $22.6 million to equip the center but flunked the state "benchmark" test of its equipment and was not considered during the negotiated bidding process.

Rose's report said the "legislature should consider a refusal to appropriate further funding for the electronic data processing procurement until" valid negotiations occur.

Poor Spelling Is An Eye Catcher

STANTON, Mo. (AP) — Throughout the country there are billboards for Meramec Caverns on U.S. 66 here.

"What catches the eye of the motorists most is that there are misspelled words on each of the billboards," points out Lester B. Dill, cave owner.

SAN RAFAEL, CALIFORNIA, SATURDAY, DECEMBER 15, 1973

Safety Has Long Been The Theme At Bullard

During the last half of the 1800s, thousands of Easterners were drawn to California by the glitter of gold and the promise of land.

As the story goes, they came to find a better life than the East had given them, and those who struck it rich were quick and insistent in their demands for luxuries that they assumed their new wealth entitled them to.

But California was a wild country and luxury often had to take second place to mere survival.

In 1898, however, Edward Dickinson Bullard brought light to the hills of San Francisco. Acetylene light, that is. It was he who built the first acetylene generator on the West Coast, and with it eliminated the smell of coal oil in the city's more fashionable residences.

THAT WAS 75 years ago, and today the E. D. Bullard Co., now located in Sausalito, is one of the largest manufacturers and distributors of safety equipment in the world. It presently employs approximately 170 Marinites in its local facilities.

But the Bullard Company is of interest to Marinites not only as a successful Marin business, but for the very active part it has played in regional history for the past 75 years.

From his first office at 268 Market Street in San Francisco, E. D. Bullard began to market carbide lamps, the first such lamps used by Western miners. The miners, who until then were forced to work by candlelight, welcomed the introduction of Bullard's lamps in 1908, and predictably his business soared.

SOON AFTER, Bullard began developing an international market, selling carbide lamps to firms in the Orient. Today, the Bullard Company's international operations include Bullard Mexicana, S.A., serving Latin American markets, plus extensive marketing in Europe.

During the pre-war years, the company continued to grow, branching further into the safety equipment business. In 1915, founder Bullard's son, E. W. Bullard Sr., entered the business, and was soon to play a major role in the development of safety equipment technology.

Today, when concern with safety is so much a part of the news and our daily lives, it is hard to imagine the lack of awareness of occupational safety which existed until relatively recently. Old-timers say that the only safety code in the mines was "duck or die." The aim of the Bullard company has been to combat that attitude, and it has contributed significantly.

WHEN E. W. BULLARD returned from World War I, he came back with the beginning of an idea which was ultimately to change the appearance of nearly every workman in the World.

The government had asked the Bullard Company to help solve the growing problem of head injuries in shipyards and factories. In 1919, using the Doughboy helmet for his basic design, E. W. Bullard constructed the first 'hard-boiled hat." The original hat was made from cloth impregnated with glue and resin; yet crude as it was, large orders soon came in from many enthusiastic buyers. Anaconda Copper and Phelps Dodge Co. were among the first.

The advent of the "hard-boiled hat" was naturally of interest to Western mining companies whose operations were constantly impaired by inuries to their workers. The companies had confidence in E. D. Bullard's products as a result of his introuction of carbide lighting to the mines a few years earlier.

"HARD BOILED HATS" were eagerly adopted by miners who previously were

A PEGBOARD DISPLAY RACK at the E. D. Bullard Co. in Sausalito holds just some of the hard hats manufactured and marketed by the firm in the colors and insignias of their customer companies. The Bullard Company was the developer of the hard hat. And the hard hat is just one of a number of industrial safety devices in which the company specializes. Edward Dickenson Bullard founded the company in San Francisco 75 years ago. It moved to Marin County in 1956. Along with its Marin operations employing 170 Marinites, Bullard now has a plant in Covington, Ky., and also does some limited manufacturing in Mexico City. The company history has been tied closely to the history and growth of the Bay Area.

For Nearly A Century Booze Was A Part Of Sausalito Industry

By GLENN H. CAVALLI

Immigrant John Mason from Ireland settled in Sausalito in 1850 about three miles north of what is now the downtown area for what was to him a good reason — the weather was lousy.

From off the Pacific Ocean, the wind howled and the fog swirled down the canyons, making it a veritable Hurricane Gulch.

Less than an ideal place to live, it seemed.

But Mason had an idea. Why not put his considerable knowledge of whiskey-making to work, distilling his own Irish whiskey in his adopted land? Maybe he might even go into business and sell some of the fruit of his labors.

AFTER ALL, THE winds of Sausalito, then Saucelito, would not hinder, but aid him greatly in the cooling process essential to the refining of alcohol.

And when he found a fresh water spring among the willow trees on his property, his enthusiasm knew no bounds. Conditions were perfect.

The John Mason Irish Malt Whiskey Distilling Co. did not begin commercial operation, however, until 1870, from in back of Mason's house on its two-acre site. Initially, production was just over a barrel a month. And that first whiskey had to wait through an eight-year aging period before it was ready for consumption.

But the made-in-Sausalito booze was a success, and production increased over the years.

JOHN MASON DIED in 1906, with the knowledge that he had operated the first commercial distillery west of the Mississippi, making grain spirits to lighten the trials and tribulations of the early westerners.

Mason also produced two sons, Clinton and John, who continued to distill Irish malt whiskey in Sausalito.

The Volstead Act of 1919 (Prohibition) halted American whiskey making. In Sausalito, the two sons continued to distill alcohol, but for "medical purposes" only.

In 1933, Prohibition ended and so did the John Mason Irish Malt Whiskey Distilling Co., for it was purchased by the American Distilling Co. of Pekin, Ill.

THE COMPANY expanded its operation and enlarged the distillery to 14 acres, producing an assortment of liquors. During the 1930s and 1940s they made three straight bourbons; Old Amer-

FOR THE CHILD

The Toys You Ride Are High On Lists

Nothing delights more at Christmas than a toy a child can ride — bike, wagon, sled, hobby horse and such fun things.

Among new riding toys is the Mr. Potato Head. Fashioned after the popular Mr. Potato Head, the four-wheel toy has a removable saddle with storage space for removable facial features. Mr. Potato Head will carry 65 pounds.

The newest in spring-powered rocking horses has the authentic look of a corral. The horses are attached to simulated wood corral posts and beams molded of unbreakable polyethylene plastic.

FOR THE SMALLEST tot there is a spring mounted colt that functions as a tot walker and later as a spring horse.

Also for riding and from Hi-Ho Products of Sharpsburg, Pa., are tiny tug, circus wagon, tot train, and the li'l fire truck. For toddlers, these move from here to there on casters.

All sorts of wooden riding horses are available from Toby Toys of America, Sacramento, Calif. The number one favorite is the wood rocking horse with adorable, hand-painted features that give Toby Toys happy faces. Parents love the horses almost as much as the kids do.

TOBY COOK, founder of the firm, made his first hobby horse over 20 years ago, for his own little boy. Other children saw it, wanted one and well, that's how Toby Toys got started. There also is a giraffe in the line. His name is Jasper.

If trips to the snow are expected, the Santa presents include snow scoots. These are oval shaped and have rudders to enable the rider to steer to left or right by pull of a rope. The scoot is made of plastic and manufactured by Funopoly of Jackson Heights, N.Y.

For the family, toboggans are worth considering. If Santa drops one off, make sure he includes a toboggan pad.

ALSO INTERESTING for snow trips are coasting sheets. These are 18-inch-by-42-inch sheets or durable polyethylene with hand holes. You sit on one, hold the front part up like a toboggan and whiz down the slope.

The AMF Wheel Goods unit at Olney, Ill., is in with a "wee hot seat." This is a junior version of the 1972 classic, especially engineered for toddlers and tots from two to four years of age. The wee hot seat features a high-impact molded plastic bucket seat and twin strut chopper handlebars.

The newest thing on wheels for smallsters is an all-terrain truck. From Garton Toy Co. in Sheboygan, Wis., the truck looks like a tricycle in front. In the back is a cargo-carrying wagon, complete with four huge wheels.

IN THE SIDEWALK bike class are such things as sonda scramblers and lady sondas. These are play versions of Honda bikes. Actually they are scooters with seats. Training wheels aft keep rider from tipping.

For the do-it-yourselfers there is a you-ride-it racer kit — wire spoke wheels and all the other parts.

Pedal cars are good for the pre-school set and include all the favorites — racers, fire trucks.

The newest thing in bikes is one with six-way adjustable handlebars. The kids can have a different bike every day.

FOR THE NOT so steady among adults wanting pedal power there is the adult tricycle complete with carrying basket at the rear. For young moms and dads, senior citizens, lazy riders and folks who just never learned to ride a two wheeler.

Santa also may want to consider a wind cruiser. This is from X-potential Enterprises, Fountain Valley, Calif.

The Wind Cruiser, is a ship on wheels, a wheeled child's riding vehicle powered by the wind. It has a tall mast sporting a giant colorful sail.

The manufacturer says the wind cruiser has been designed with the consultation of expert sail makers and is scaled and proportioned to permit sailability on land. It is packaged as a build and ride creative play toy.

WITH THIS A child can learn the science and art of sailing in the safe environment of the sidewalk or playgrounds while his fancy takes him on imagined pirate coves.

A child can be a captain brave or a pirate bold without leaving home.

Leather Goods Are Certain To Please Male On The List

For the hard-to-please men in your life, why not choose leather goods this Christmas?

A good-looking leather gift is always appreciated, whether it's for the man who has everything or the man who hates almost everything. There isn't a male on your list who doesn't love the look, feel and smell of leather.

There is a rich assortment of leather pocket items, belts, home furnishings, travel gear, luggage and other personal leather goods from which to select just the right gift for him. Covering a wide range of articles, the American leathers from which they're crafted are similarly broad in character; they're dyed in many colors and finished in a variety of surface treatments.

IN POCKET ITEMS, you can go as plain or fancy as you, or he, pleases, notes Leather Industries of America. You'll find leather wallets and billfolds, card cases, pocket secretaries, plus matching eyeglass case, keycase, cigarette-pack holder, lighter. Leathers include calf, morocco, cowhide, embossed leathers and others.

It's a rare male who can't use smoking or bar gear. In leather, they're at their finest and often come antiqued, tooled or embossed. Among gifts to consider are leather cigarette boxes, humidors, table lighters, leather-mounted ashtrays and pipe racks, coasters, leather-encased ice buckets, glasses, pitchers, tankards and decanters.

Home furnishings and good grooming aids make smart and serviceable presents in leather. Leather grooming equipment encompasses such articles as leather manicure sets, stud boxes, bureau organizers, or leather-backed hair and clothes brushes.

His home will seem more lively and more leathery with one or more of these in leather: book-ends, picture frame, lamp, or matching leather desk accessories such as pen stand, pencil bucket, desk pad, calendar, library set, waste basket, etc.

A TASTEFUL waist-ful in masculine gifts is the little package holding a new leather belt.

Stores are showing many handsome belt looks and leathers, with leading finishes in grained, sueded, smooth, harness, embossed, latigo and real patent leather.

For business and dress, belts may show off inch and a half to inch and three quarter widths, but one inch and one and a quarter-inch widths are also available. These smooth, suede, light-grained and embossed leather belts use fine contrast stitching, overlays, and two tones or textures as trim. Buckles are in jewelry-finished hardware, self-leather, or metal with leather inlay.

Casual and dress-casual belts appear both wide and slim with styling such as overlays, cutouts, braiding, stitching and color combinations. Leathers include smooth, suede, harness, brushed, and embossed among others.

Wider sport belts in sinewy leather most often display large brass or silver buckles which add to their ruggedness. Other design themes stress quilting, the "latigo" look, lacing and metal studs. Narrower widths may also be found in these brawny-leathered belts.

GIVE A travelin' man a Christmas present that is packed with prestige — handsome leather luggage, suggests Leather Industries of America. It's the gift that will please with its appearance, its endurance, and its aura of status.

The shapes, colors and leather finishes of new leather luggage are so complete that suiting his taste will be no problem. New American luggage leathers are tanned to a toughness which allows travel under the worst conditions without showing deterioration. In construction, you'll see both soft-sided and rigid types.

There are many other leather travel-time articles in the personal leather goods area. A good choice is a travel alarm clock in a leather case. Foldable leather slippers are easy-to-pack travelers. Other gift ideas include soft leather toilet kits, jewel rolls, and even leather-boxed playing cards.

For that daily trip to office or school, a new leather attache or briefcase could be just the ticket —or gift tag. These smart-looking brass-trimmed leather cases are available with one or more compartments, special file sections, inside or buckled outside pockets, and in attaches, even removable writing counters or clothes section.

Jewelry Gift Popular With Young

Christmas is the time to give lasting gifts to your jeans-clad young. The kind of stocking treasure they will really treasure because it's genuine and lasting, definitely not throw-away.

Gifts that come from the jewelry store or jewelry sections of department and gift stores, prestige-packed and loaded with young charm, have all the excitement and flavor of that waiting-for-Santa time of not so long ago.

Neat notes are beginning to sound in youthful wardrobes and wonder of wonders, dressing up in a dress is the latest female discovery! Aiding and abetting this headlining change is gold-filled jewelry, observes the Jewelry Industry Council with approval.

GREAT FOR greeting a happy young face on Christmas morn is anything in a Victorian mood, smoky topaz, jade, amethyst, scarabs in traditional Old World or modern New World settings. The rigid neckwire that's V'd to keep suspendables centered and neat, and the suspendables themselves — modern sculptured neckdrops, pins — are more ideas.

Earrings gift in the latest button styles.

Bangles should be bountiful to row up the arm in different gold filled textures and widths, in clear and colored plastic.

Pins pin on cute messages.

Watches in blown up bubble shapes, clear or exotically colored Lucite, with link bracelets, cartoon character faces, pendant timers belong to the important gift category.

SO DOES sterling silver jewelry, the precious discovery of the young. There are pendants with a Christmas theme, earrings, rings of thin silver wire that can be changed in shape every time she wears them, delicate flower rings, simple bands with lots of open-work or stone-set with turquoise, amethyst.

Cultured pearl jewelry, heart shaped Linde stars, Zodiac pendants of sterling silver, a travel alarm or pedestal shaped bedroom clock gift the young girl now as well as the young woman of the future.

Especially for her future is sterling silver flatware and even holloware. Initially, her first silver place setting is a gift from her parents who welcome the advice and help of the jeweler when their "little girl" is ready to choose the silver pattern that will reign in her future home.

To put more of a happy shine on her holiday, and her future, generous gifters might consider silver as salt and pepper shakers, a basket for candy, an Early American candle snuffer, measuring spoons, a photo ornament that can hold four photos of her favorite people and hang from a stand after the tree comes down. And on this Christmas so near the Bicentennial, begin a spoon collection for her that's redolent with Early American history.

FOR THAT teen man in your life, try the personality gifting approach with jewelry. Cuff links, belt buckle, key ring, all with his initials, will make him feel very VIP. An ident bracelet with bold link band, a ring with his initials and a Linde star accent follow the same gift route.

A watch for him should be sporty and well on view, even with a sports symbol on its face. He likes the colored Lucite cases and their unusual shapes, too. For dress up —and he's doing it, too —a thin case and leather strap are called for the giftwrapping.

Bracelets for him are a must. Terrific styles come in silver, copper, even brass. He and that special girl might even exchange matching bracelets.

A digital clock-radio, a tankard or mug of pewter, a Bicentennial inspired Liberty Bell bank in silver will add a special jewelry something to his favorite nook.

You'll definitely find that young beat so necessary for gifting your young at the jewelry store or department.

Don't Forget Pets During The Holidays

The California Veterinary Medical Association warns pet owners that the holiday season can be very frightening for animals, especially those puppies and kittens who are given as gifts.

While the excitement of Christmas is accepted by humans as a joyful time, pets are often swept up by rushing feet, late meals, blinking lights and shiny ornaments.

Christmas wrappings and ornaments make prime targets for curious kittens and puppies, with fallen trees often the result. Also, loose wires make enticing meals to chewing cats and dogs, and can cause fires, short circuits or electrocution.

In any emergency, from passed blood due to swallowed bulbs, to electric shocks, your local veterinarian should be notified for quick action.

Animals should be kept on their regular schedule of eating, and during very exciting times, be kept away from trampling feet and rushing children. Also, when left alone, care should be taken that pets cannot reach loose cords, dangling ornaments, or lightly wrapped packages.

Also, during especially cold or wet nights, indoor animals should not be allowed to roam all night. They suffer from chills and respiratory illnesses as do humans.

With thought and care, pets can fully enjoy the holiday season — and humans can enjoy a night at home instead of a visit to the emergency clinic.

TO KEEP YOUR YULE TREE FRESH

To keep self harvested Christmas trees frehest these suggestions should be followed:

Store outside until time to decorate;

Place tree upright in a pail of water after cutting the butt diagonally about one inch above the original cut;

Sprinkle water on branches and needles for extra freshness;

Once it's time to bring it indoors, saw the butt end again, perpendicular this time;

Place the tree in a container of water, which should be refilled daily;

Support the tree well, and place it away from fireplace, radiator, heater, television;

Never use open flames, such as candles, near the tree, and never leave home with the tree lights on.

Compact Appliances Make Hit

Stuck on gift ideas for the Holiday season? Tired of giving ties and handkerchiefs?

Then why not try something new for a change, suggests Hotpoint. Consider a family gift of a compact appliance — something that will not only make a big splash under the tree, but which will provide useful service for many years to come.

Compact major appliances are a recent innovation. Small in size, but with many of the features of their full-size counterparts, compacts make it possible for persons who don't have the space for facilities for conventional appliances to nevertheless enjoy the convenience of modern, labor-saving kitchen and laundry products.

NO MATTER where friends might live — apartment or mobile home, city or country — there is a compact appliance that probably fits their lifestyle as well as their available space.

For instance, a countertop microwave oven fills a lot of bills. It is perfect for harried housewives to cook delicious meals in less time or prepare snacks for unexpected guests. Teen-agers will also quickly discover it for after-school goodies or grabbing a warm bite before that sports event.

For your friends or relatives who live where trash disposal and collection can be a problem (and isn't that almost everywhere these days), a trash compactor makes an appropriate gift. It can be utilized as either a free-standing unit or a built-in, and is just 15 inches wide. It compacts a week's worth of trash for an average family of four into one neat, tidy lift-out bag.

IF YOU KNOW a young couple just starting out and currently living in cramped quarters, a compact laundry center capable of doing fullsized chores is certain to be appreciated. One manufacture offers an automatic washer and companion electric dryer which can be stacked vertically so they take up only four square feet of floor space. The dryer operates on standard 115-volt current and requires no external venting, while the washer rolls to the sink for hookup like a portable dishwasher.

Want to help someone fight inflation? How about a compact chest freezer for storage of in-season and supermarket specials. It's only countertop height, and makes sense even in a small apartment.

A dishwasher, of course, is always a sure-fire way to score points with the homemaker, and a new top-loading compact portable is bound to be a welcome addition to the kitchen of anyone who is presently doing the meal clean-up chores by hand.

A CLOCK GIFT is one that's welcomed down every chimney on Christmas Eve. Gift a wall with an antique pewter coffee pot, a country air complete with pine touches and a planter, a weather station, framed electronic digitals that's like a flashing photo. Gift the mantel with a quartz crystal wonder clock; the night stand with a digital clock-radio; the suitcase with a traveling clock-jewel box.

Sensibly priced to fit most budgets — most of these mini models have suggested retail prices of under $200 — compact appliances once again prove that the best presents come in small packages.

Gifts Good Enough To Eat

Want to give a holiday gift of food but don't have the time to brew, bake or concoct it in your kitchen? Let the grocer help.

Many food stores cater to holiday trade by packaging and shipping food gifts on order.

A fruit basket can cost less than you think and makes a magnificent gift. Many grocers will make up a fruit basket to the size and price you specify. During the holidays the baskets usually have grapefruits, navel oranges, tangerines, pears, yellow and red apples, grapes and bananas. Larger baskets also contain cheese, fancy cookies, candies, nuts, liver pate and crackers.

If you can afford a higher price tag, the basket might contain also canned hams, imported salamis, preserves, marmalades, fruit cakes. They make a nutritious and fine gift everyone in a family can enjoy.

CREATOR ROBIN BRADFORD of Sausalito and her able assistant, Alexandra Emery, display some of their gingerbread houses and other fragrant wares that are so popular with fun-seekers at the Great Dickens Christmas Fair and Pickwick Carnival, a recreation of 19th Century London holding forth Saturdays and Sundays through Dec. 30 in a spacious warehouse in San Francisco's produce district at Jerrold and Rankin streets.

Robin's Secret In Building Her Gingerbread Houses

How do you construct a gingerbread house?

Sausalito's Robin Bradford can answer as an expert.

For the past two years she has been creating fragrant gingerbread houses, as much a part of the Christmas holiday tradition as tinsel and holly, for the Great Dickens Christmas Fair and Pickwick Comic Annual.

Her tempting creations at the 1973 annual, holding forth Saturdays, 11 a.m. to 9 p.m., and Sundays, 11 a.m. to 7 p.m., through Dec. 30 at "Fezziwigg's Warehouse," Jerrold and Rankin streets, San Francisco, include not only gingerbread houses, but the church, store and the other structures necessary for a complete make-believe Victorian village.

"I USE THE standard gingerbread recipe," Robin explains, "and I would never compromise on the right ingredients — butter, whole wheat flour, ginger and spices, honey and-or sugar. Synthetic ingredients might make it easier to build a house, but the most important thing, I believe, is that they have that true gingerbread flavor."

Part of Robin's secret is her method of cooking.

She bakes the gingerbread in a sheet pan for only about 15 minutes (it is not yet completely cooked), then cuts it into building sections, using her own building pattern. The sections are then returned to the oven to finish baking.

Once the gingerbread is thoroughly cooked and cooled, it is put together with icing as "mortar" and candies and cookies create the roof, sidewalk, windows and other decorations which turn the gingerbread into the fairytale piture of a miniature edible house.

ROBIN'S HOUSES will remain edible for about a month. However, a glaze of sugar water will make them more durable.

If they are only to be decorative, they may be frozen and used yearly at the yuletide season.

Robin Bradford, an English major graduate of UCLA, combines a real love for 19th Century English literature with a flair for handcrafting unusual gifts.

Also a part of Robin's fragrant selection at the Dickens Christmas Fair, in addition to the houses, are tantalizing gingerbread squares topped with whipped cream and spicy pumpkin tarts to tempt the hungry fairgoer.

More than two dozen caterers are on hand for the colorful fair, each offering his own unique and exciting version of Victorian cooking, including plum pudding, pork and apple pie, roasted chestnuts and fish and chips.

OVER 100 CRAFTSMEN lend their talents to the Dickens Fair as well, with their shops and stalls built to emphasize the Victorian theme.

The theaters include the Penny Gaff Theater, Mad Sal's Ale House, the Pickwick Comic Lecture Hall and Ol' Fezziwigg's Dance Party Hall — all offering the songs, dances and merriment of a Dickens Christmas.

The fair is reached by car by taking the Bayshore Freeway to the Army Street Exit and following the signs to Jerrold and Rankin. Continuous shuttle bus service from Union Square, opposite the St. Francis Hotel in San Francisco, begins at 10:30 a.m., and Municipal Bus 15 goes to within a few blocks of the site.

CHRISTMAS DAY

With angel's hair
Clinging to pine-scented branches
As loved ones do
To one another
The mistletoe hanging,
A twinkling of lights
So bright and warm,
As the smiles of children
Illuminate the morn,
Crisp as new fallen snow;
The presents are opened
Twixt yawns and laughter
While turkey and yams
Await the evening feast.
Only too sad am I,
that this day of love,
Could only be but a day,
And not but a year.

FOR YEARS the American Distilling Co. distillery on Bridgeway was a familiar sight to motorists entering Sausalito from the north. And before it, its predecessor company, the John Mason Irish Malt Whiskey Distilling Co., had operated there for decades. Fire destroyed the plant in 1961.

ABOVE, ARTIST Glenn H. Cavalli has sketched the cooling tower and warehouses of the American Distilling Co. as they appeared at their heyday in Sausalito. At left, the continuous still erected by American after it took over in 1933. The John Mason Company had used a pot still to distill its Irish malt whiskey. Below, women in the plant filled fifths with bourbon.

THIS LAYOUT SKETCHED by Glenn H. Cavalli shows the facilities of the American Distilling Co. in Sausalito during the 1940s. During World War II, the distillery devoted its efforts to the production of alcohol propellant for torpedoes and to other war work. The sketch also shows how the distillery cooling towers took advantage of the winds sweeping down through Waldo Canyon. And the site of the original John Mason Irish whiskey distillery with which it all began.

ican, Bourbon Supreme and Stillbrook; two bonds — Cadillac Club and Good Old Gukenheimer; two gins — Burton's and Old Colony; Tvarski Vodka, and Piping Rock Cordials.

During the war years, 1942 to 1945, grain was impossible to get and other substitutes were tried. Potatoes produce an alcohol but not for booze. This alcohol was used in the United States war effort as a propellant for torpedoes. It was rumored that some foolhardy sailors drank this distilled alcohol, and thus the nickname "Torpedo Juice" was given to these strong spirits.

The American Distillery became a bonded warehouse for the storing and bottling of barreled booze. Any distilling went into the war effort.

AFTER THE WAR, the distilling of spirits continued until 1961, when the largest fire in the history of Sausalito burned two of the main buildings and did $500,000 in damages to the plant.

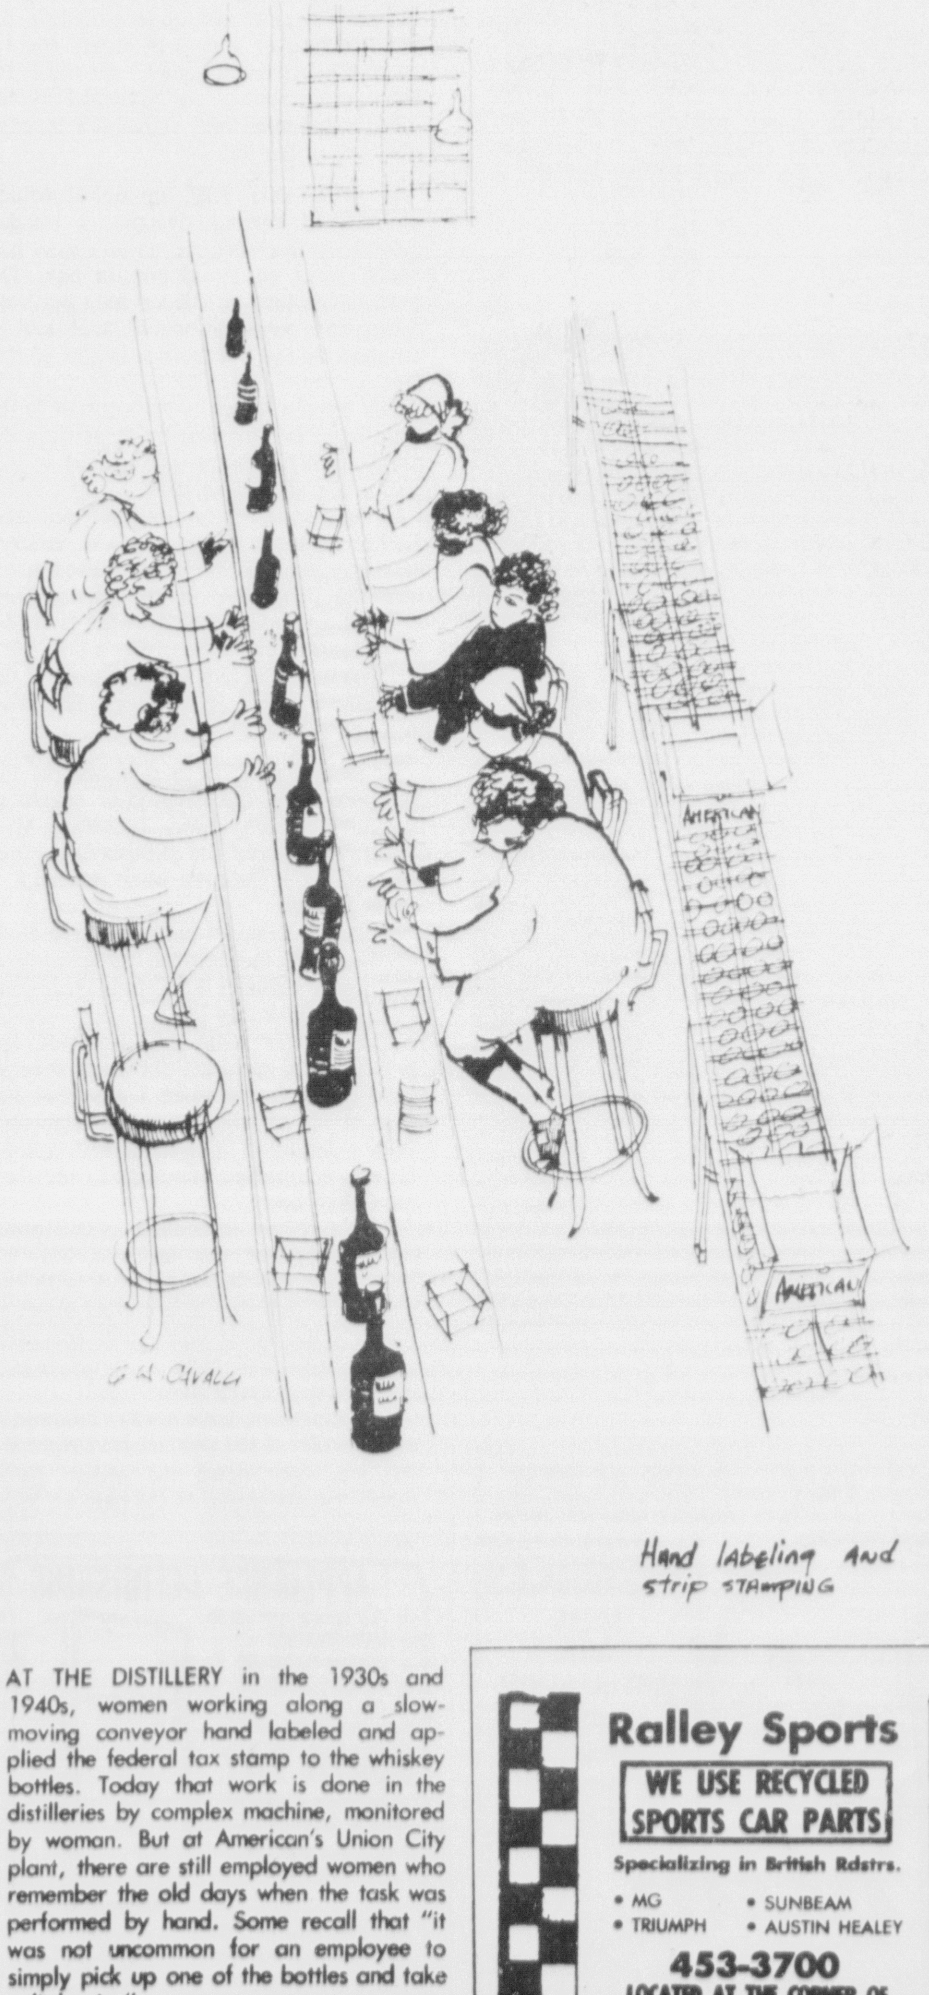
The fire put an end to the Sausalito distillery, and the American Distilling Company moved to a new facility in Union City, Calif., in 1966.

American is one of the six major distilleries in the United States today, and number one among the independents. It is a million dollar corporation with over 300 at work in New York, Pekin, Illinois and Union City.

The old distillery is just a flat 14-acre site now, the buildings torn down in 1970 for a commercial venture. Rumors have it, another apartment house development is planned.

SOMEHOW, THE landmarks disappear, but are never forgotten. The distillery had a fascination about it for those who worked there or lived in Marin County . . . the distinctive odor of fermenting grain, the marvelous maze of pipes, valves and tanks.

The drawings on these pages were done from sketches at the distillery before it was torn down, and from photos borrowed from former employees at the American Distilling Co.



G.H. CAVALLI
Hand labeling and strip stamping

AT THE DISTILLERY in the 1930s and 1940s, women working along a slow-moving conveyor hand labeled and applied the federal tax stamp to the whiskey bottles. Today that work is done in the distilleries by complex machine, monitored by woman. But at American's Union City plant, there are still employed women who remember the old days when the task was performed by hand. Some recall that "it was not uncommon for an employee to simply pick up one of the bottles and take a little nip."

AS PART OF A series of "torture tests" to which the hard hats manufactured by the E. D. Bullard Co. in Sausalito must submit, an eight-pound steel bar is dropped from a height of five feet onto one of the head covers to determine its protective strength. The size of the dent in the hard hat tells the story.

ANOTHER PRODUCT of the safety-minded E. D. Bullard Co. is an extensive line of first aid kits for industry, ranging in size from portable kits carried by individuals to large, wall-mounted units. On the assembly line at left is Willie Ashton. Closest to the camera is Madeline Lucia.

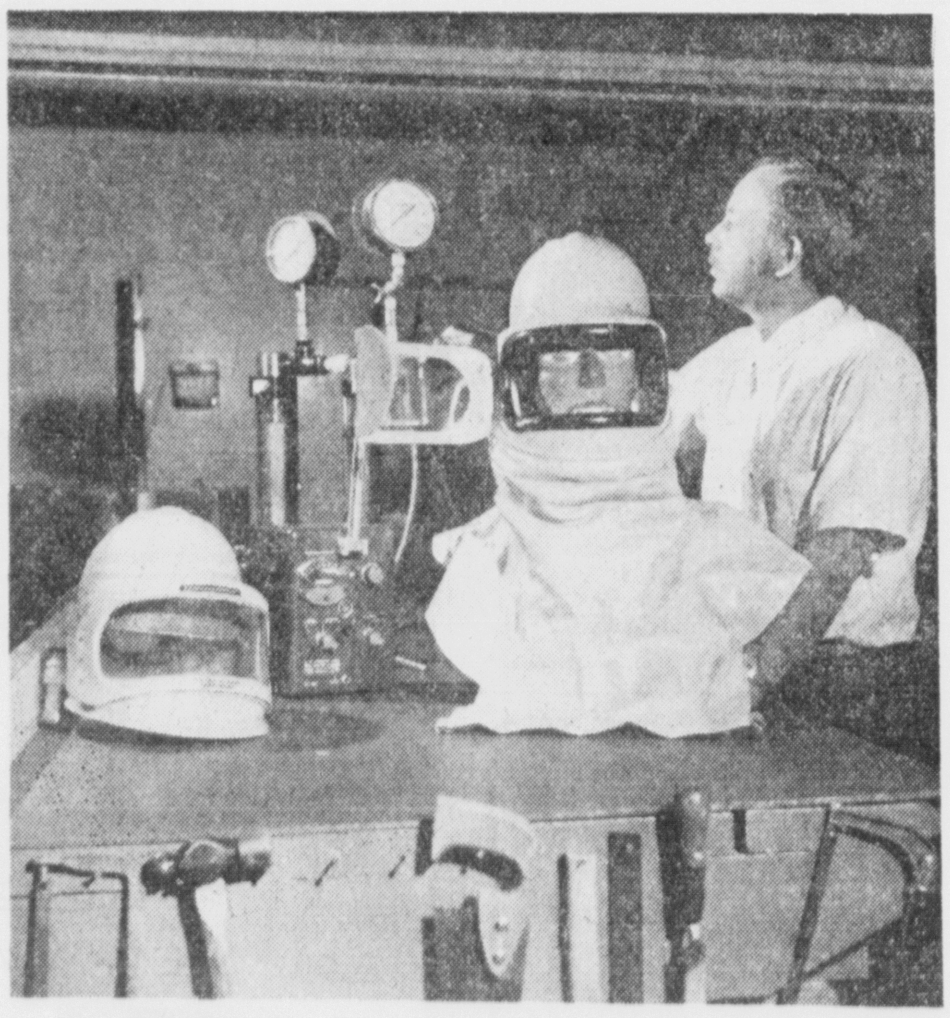
A HOT STAMPING machine on the E. D. Bullard Co. production line affixes the customer's own distinctive signature or design to that order of the famous hard hats. Here the machine is being operated by Irene Barone on an order that will go to Fluor. Nearly 300 company names and symbols are imprinted.

A LINE OF wheel-mounted mechanical alarms used for heavy construction equipment, over-the-road vehicles, etc., as warning signals when they are backing up is produced by the Bullard Company, as are electronic alarms. At work are Ed Booth, closest to camera, and Don Nehasil.



THE BULLARD COMPANY is often in the forefront in the development and marketing of new safety equipment. Here Tony Moretti observes closely a test of an air-fed hood designed for the protection of minors and other industrial workers.

forced to improvise a variety of makeshift headpieces in order to reduce their ever-present fear of head injury.

One account from the period tells of miners who had the habit of hardening cloth derby hats by dipping them in lacquer, hoping to achieve some measure of safety in the mines. The problem with these hats, as with the bronze and iron helmets of medieval times, was that any shock delivered to the hat would be almost entirely transmitted to the head of the wearer. Also, lacquered hats tended to become soft when wet, eliminating even the minimal protection which they had previously afforded.

Although Bullard's introduction of the hard-boiled hat marked the beginning of the modern era in head protection, ever since man recognized the importance of his head, he has tried to protect it. Although not conclusively established, it has been speculated that our distant ancestors may have used turtle shells to protect their crania from the clubs and stones of aggressive neighbors.

EVEN TODAY, there is a "Turtle Club" comprised of over 10,000 people who have escaped serious injury or death as the result of hard hat protection.

Until recent times, use of protective headgear was generally restricted to the military. The early Romans and their contemporaries wore distinctive styles of helmets. These were useful for separating enemies from comrades, but improved the wearer's chances of survival only slightly, as many barbarians could attest.

Hard hat recognition was for a time tried in a number of companies to designate the type of work being performed — red for one type of job, blue for another, yellow for another, and so on.

NEVERTHELESS, AS ineffective as early head protection devices were, they still offered some protection, and undoubtedly gave the warrior or worker a psychological lift.

The common defect of all early hard hat models was that they failed to dissipate the force of any impact they received.

Since introducing the original hard-boiled hat in 1919, the Bullard Company has conducted extensive research to overcome this fault.

The key to the effectiveness of the modern hard-hat is a combination of improved materials and structural design in the shell of the hat, and the use of impact-absorbing suspension webbing in the hat's interior. In modern models, the hat itself never comes in direct contact with the wearer's head, allowing the force of impact to be absorbed by the inner suspension and dissipated through the shell of the hat.

IN TESTING THE impact-absorbing abilities of various designs, a wooden head form is placed on top of a steel ball which rests on an aluminum bar. The hard hat is then positioned atop the head form, and an eight-pound steel ball is dropped on the hat from a height of five feet.

The impact which is transmitted to the head form is computed by measuring the diameter of the impression made by the ball in the aluminum bar.

In the company's family tradition, Mrs. Esther Bullard, widow of E. W. Bullard Sr., inventor of the "hard boiled hat," was the originator of the three-ribbed style of hat which has become a trademark feature of the company's line. Mrs. Bullard is still active as a member of the company's board of directors. She lives in Kentfield.

IN HER LETTER to members of the company staff, the distributor organization and to the safety industry, Mrs. Bullard expressed the philosophy of four generations of Bullards when she said:

Dear Friends:

Although I cannot personally recall all of its years, the Bullard Company and the safety industry have in a large part been central in my life.

For just a moment, I claim the privilege of speaking for four generations of Bullards when I say that the sum of our satisfaction is much greater than a listing of individual accomplishments, no matter how significant they may have been.

It is a source of genuine gratification that throughout our business life, we have been privileged to work with the leaders of industry in a mutual effort to improve the safety equipment and safety standards that have prevented injury and saved so many lives.

At Bullard, we have always followed a simple rule: if the product isn't right for the job, turn down the order. As a result, we are proud of the part we have played and the products we have contributed.

Let me assure you that all of us look forward to continued participation in the safety industry that has meant so much to each generation and each individual within the Bullard organization.

Sincerely,
Esther B. Bullard

AS REFINEMENTS in the original hat design were made, the popularity of hard hats in the construction industry grew. In the late 1930s, the Golden Gate Bridge construction project became the first all hard hat construction job in history. The laborers were protected by metal Bullard hats, descendents of the original hard-boiled version.

Metal hats soon gave way to shells made of fiberglass and various plastics. Another interesting historical note is that the first fiberglass hard hats were used on the Broadway Tunnel construction project in San Francisco in 1946.

Although the hard hat is its best known product, the Bullard Company manufacturers a complete line of safety equipment. The company's line of products is divided into five main areas: head protection, first aid, respiratory equipment reverse signal alarms and safety hooks.

Most of the products which the company markets are manufactured at its 100,000 square foot plant in Sausalito or at its 50,000 square foot facility in Cynthiana, Ky., which opened in 1972. In addition, the company also has a more limited manufacturing operation in Mexico City, producing head protection primarily.

IT IS INTERESTING to note that in 1956, when looking for a new site upon which to center its expanding operations, Edward W. Bullard said: "I've looked all over the East Bay and as far south as Sunnyvale, searching for a good location for our Company. Then I came to Marin and found the ideal situation within a few miles of San Francisco."

He then went on to berate Marinites for not selling vigorously their advantages to other prospective businesses.

In the area of first aid, Bullard assembles a comprehensive line of industrial first aid kits (a Bullard first).

Two types of oral vaccines that provide immunity to poison oak and poison ivy are also part of the first aid line and are available in local drug stores. These are especially important products since statistics show that poison oak and poison ivy are responsible for a high percentage of job absenteeism in California as well as the rest of the country.

THE FIRST AID line is rounded out by products for the treatment of various types of burns and external poisonings.

Bullard's respiratory line includes self-contained breathing and helmet systems used in sandblasting and air-purifying apparatus for many applications.

New federal and state regulations require the use of reverse signal alarms on all self-propelled vehicles used in certain construction and industrial areas. Figures show that many occupational injuries and fatalities occur as a result of vehicles moving backwards. A driver who is backing a piece of earth moving equipment, for instance, has considerably less visibility than when moving forward. Without proper warning to those behind, tragedy may result.

TO THE AVERAGE person, the sound of a downtown city bus making a turn is the sound of one of these safety warning devices.

Another major cause of worker injury gets attention from Bullard. Hooks that lift heavy and often swaying loads can be dangerous. To protect man and cargo, Bullard manufactures safety hooks with a special patented safety gate.

The E. D. Bullard Co. is presently headed by K. F. Keefe who has been directing the company since the death in 1971 of Edward W. Bullard Jr., who was the grandson of the founder and a prominent Marin civic and business leader.

Prior to joining the company, Keefe was general partner and manager of Clemco Clementina Ltd., San Francisco-based manufacturer of abrasive blasting equipment, and was also founding director of Clemco A. G., Rotterdam, Holland. He now resides in Belvedere.

THE BULLARD family tradition is being carried on by E. D. "Jed" Bullard who serves as administrative assistant to the president, and is currently studying at Harvard Graduate School of Business.

In this 75th anniversary year, the Bullard Company is helping to link two more Bay Area land masses by supplying a wide range of safety equipment to the BART construction project. What lies ahead? Perhaps legions of lunar laborers — all wearing made-by-Bullard-in-Marin hard hats.

"It is a source of genuine gratification that throughout our business life, we have been privileged to work with the leaders of industry in a mutual effort to improve the safety equipment and safety standards that have prevented injury and saved so many lives." Esther B. Bullard.

There are other strong contenders for the title of most photogenic animal, but our vote would have to go to the appealing sea otter.

The photographs in "The Story of Sea Otters" (Random House, $4.50) would then alone constitute sufficient reason for purchasing the book. But author William Weber Johnson, a member of the Friends of the Sea Otter, dedicated to the protection of this once endangered species, has also provided a text that tells well the story of this clever little clown of the sea — its habits, its history, its enemies (man, of course, is foremost) and its friends (here again another breed of man, the conservationist, is also in the lead).

"The Story of Sea Otters" is a good nature book that makes a strong case for the preservation of the sea otter, whether or not the charges of abalone-hogging sometimes made against him are true.

ONE OF THE sea otter's rivals as the darling of animal photographers is the giant panda. "A Book About Pandas" (Dial, $3.95) by Ruth Belov Gross is loaded with photos of these entertaining and charming creature's mugging, capering, dozing. The text is for a younger age group than the Johnson book, and much briefer, but provides some interesting information about the panda, both in the wild and in the zoo.

The Marin team of Edith Thacher Hurd and Clement Hurd is responsible for "The Mother Whale" (Little, Brown, $4.95), yet another excellent animal book. Mrs. Hurd tells simply and quite beautifully the story of the whale's life cycle, and Clement Hurd has contributed the block prints for which he is so famous, in a fetching mode of blues and greens. It is a sensitively done book that should touch small hearts and intrigue young minds.

"A B See" (McGraw-Hill, $3.95) by Lucille Ogle and Tina Thoburn, illustrations by Ralph Stobart, has its share of animals, too. But much, much else. Sized for small hands, it is an illustrated alphabet of 418 phonetically arranged sounds. It is a serious attempt — and a successful one — to introduce tykes to the fascinating world of sound and shape in letters, with bright, bright colors in the pictures to hold the children's interest. It is an original approach to the teaching of the alphabet and its use, and a promising one.

WHAT BIRD has the largest wingspread? How do gulls open clams? What bird's neck is longer than its body? These questions and 117 others are answered by Madeline Angell in "120 Questions and Answers About Birds," Bobbs-Merrill, $5.95, with glossary, bibliography and index. Grambs Miller's illustrations make this a handsome introduction to birds.

Christmas Is The Time For Carols And Great Choral Music By Masters

By WILBUR LANDREY

This is a time of carols and church choral music, and as usual this year there are some fine records looking to Christmas and the church year beyond.

George Frideric Handel's "Messiah" is traditional Christmas fare.

On the budget Seraphim label this year is a record of great choruses and arias from the late Sir Malcolm Sargent's previously available recording of the full work with the Hudchersfield Choral Society and the Royal Liverpool Philharmonic (S-60220). The solo roles are sung by soprano Elsie Morison, contralto Marjorie Thomas and tenor Richard Lewis.

A NEW AND more major project is a full recording, "Christmas Cratorio by Johann Sebastian Bach," that other great pole of Baroque music, directed by Eugen Jochum with the Bavarian Radio Symphony and chorus. Philips (6703 037 three records).

Soprano Elly Ameling, contralto Bridget Fassbaender, tenor Horst Laubenthal and bass Hermann Prey sing the solo parts. It is a fine performance.

Bach prepared the Oratorio for performance in the churches of St. Thomas and St. Nicholas of Leipzig between Christmas Day and Epiphany 1734-35.

The six cantatas which make it up were performed in varying sequence either in the morning or afternoon.

Though performed separately, they were interrelated. An oratorio was understood to represent a whole Biblical story, in this case, beginning with the birth of Christ from St Luke and ending with the adoration of the Kings from St. Matthew.

In fact, Bach recycled much of the music in his oratorio from other earlier compositions — a common practice. It hardly detracts from the magnificence of the whole.

ONE OF BACH'S greatest church compositions, perhaps his greatest choral composition, was his "Passion According to St. Matthew," written in 1729 and traditionally performed on Palm Sunday. Herbert von Karajan, directing the Winer Singverein, the Berlin Philharmonic and a magnificent cast, has recorded another version of the complete work in a sumptuous album issued by Deutsche Grammophon (DG 2711012) — four records.

A Passion, as its name implies, is the Passion of Christ set to music.

As one of the great church pieces in the repertory, there are already many recordings of the St. Matthew Passion in the current discography, but Von Karajan's is well worth the effort. The performance is flawless and the cast stellar.

Gundula Janowitz, Christa Ludwig, Dieter Fischer-Dieskau, Peter Schreier, Horst Laubenthal, Walter Berry, Anton Dakov are included.

The well-made box and richly colored textbook that comes with St. Matthew is a reminder of how much more expensively packaged than their American counterparts are the Deutsche Grammophon albums and some other European imports.

OTHERS THAT are appropriate to the season:

Benjamin Britten's Ceremony of Carols", H"Hymn of St. Cecelia" and "Missa Brevis" sung by the Kings College Choir under the direction of David Willcocks (Seraphim S-60217).

"Gregorian Chant" by the Schola Cantorum of Amsterdam Students under the direction of Wim van Gerven (Columbia M3X-3 329) — The Gregorian Chant has been the liturgical music of the Roman Catholic Church since Pope Gregory I in the Sixth Century. In the mid-1960s, the church services ceased to be conducted exclusively in Latin.

Ringo's Record— 'An Accident'

By BRUCE MEYER

Ringo Starr is in an enviable position.

As a Beatle, he can make a record any time he wants and be assured of at least moderate success. But since no one seriously expects too much from him musically, he is under far less pressure than the other three to produce every time he sets foot in a studio.

Ringo describes his latest, "Ringo" (Apple Swal 3413), as an 'accident album.' So give him a high mark for honesty, at least.

It all started last May, when Ringo was asked to appear with Harry Nilsson at the Grammy show in Nashville. He agreed, but decided that as long as he was coming to the U.S., he would "just do some tracks and see what we get."

Producer Richard Perry was contacted, and the accident album was on its way.

Most of the recording was done in Los Angeles, and before it was through, John, Paul and George, Nilsson, The Band, T. Rex, Marc Bolan, Nicky Hopkins and a variety of other musical notables took part.

"Ringo" is not, as a couple of over-enthusiastic reporters described last summer, a distinguished Beatles album. Though all four appear in the album, they are on different tracks, recorded at different times, in different places.

"Ringo" is diverse, to say the least. It is, in fact, so diverse that it teeters on the brink of falling completely apart. Ringo's presence is just about the only thread that provides any continuity; but it is, after all, his name that's on the cover.

Still, it's a likeable album, in a beer-and-pretzels sort of way.

Story Of A Flying Daredevil

INTO THE WIND: The Story of Max Conrad, by Sally Buegeleisen; Random House, 261 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by John D. Yates.

Max Conrad walked into a propeller while trying to save one of his flying students from doing the same thing. The propeller blade crushed part of his skull and sliced into his brain. Amazingly, he survived after all had given up hope for his survival and he had received the last sacrament. For a number of years thereafter he found great difficulty in writing, and if upset was quite incapable of speech, but the injury to his brain never for one moment affected his ability to fly.

This was by no means the only set back to his flying career — multiple crashes, the death of his brother and a number of students while flying a Conrad training plane, a disastrous fire that consumed all his planes and hangars; but all this only increased his involvement in his chosen career. This might sound like an inspirational tract — a study in commitment, or how to rise above crushing misfortune — but it is not meant to be. It just happens to be the life of Conrad as recorded by an admirer and fellow flyer, Sally Buegeleisen.

Max Conrad has undoubtedly logged more time in the air than any other pilot in the history of aviation — more than 50,000 hours — always in light planes and usually alone. In spite of a marriage and a large family his life has essentially been solitary. Devoted to his wife and children, he nonetheless put an ocean between them in his effort to support them in the only way he knew.

In 1954 he flew solo, non-stop, from New York to Paris, to deliver a small plane and to see his family. He was the first man to make that flight since Charles Lindbergh. Out of this he created a unique carrer.

He has ferried more than 150 light planes across the Atlantic and at least 30 over the Pacific. These deliveries in turn led him to extend his abilities to incredible limits in a bid for world records. He once flew alone in a single engine plane from Casablanca to Los Angeles, staying aloft for 58 hours and 38 minutes.

Conrad's life in flying has literally spanned the history of aviation. From the days of barnstorming with machines held together with bailing wire, when landing and taking-off were in themselves considerable accomplishments, and when each plane seemed to have a personality of its own, to the present very impersonal era.

BROWSING BOOKMAN

"The Trailblazers" is another entry in Time-Life's handsome The Old West series, distinguished by their handsome imitation leather covers, their profusion of well-reproduced illustrations and their tasteful design.

Some historians have quarreled with the texts, claiming the series has preferred the romantic over reality in recounting the events and personalities of the frontier. No doubt, freelance writer Bil Gilbert, responsible for this book, will face such challenges. John C. Fremont admirers, for instance, will claim "foul" for the manner in which Gilbert treats that colorful figure. Certainly, Fremont emerges as something less than heroic.

But Gilbert's portrayals of the likes of Joe Walker, Kit Carson, Jedediah Smith, Thomas Nuttall, John James Audubon, Lewis and Clark, Zenas Leonard, John Wesley Powell and George Montague Wheeler and their exploits are the generally accepted ones, and sprightly told. And half the fun of reading western history is in "arguing" with the historian.

At any rate, it's a handsome, entertaining gift book for the student of the time when America first probed, then ventured and finally pushed West. Price $9.95.

HERBERT WITT of Mill Valley, San Francisco regional audit director, U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, and University of California extension teacher, is the co-author with Profs. Victor Brink of Columbia University and James Cashin of Hofstra University, of "Modern Internal Auditing," published by Ronald Press. It explores the methods available to government and non-profit organizations for scorekeeping to determine the efficiency and economy of management, with emphasis upon the role of the internal auditor.

He Called 'Em As He Saw Them

WILL ROGERS, THE Man and His Times, by Richard M. Ketchum; American Heritage, 398 pages, $12.95. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

Unquestionably, Will Rogers was the best-loved American of this century; yet there has never been a good biography of him — until now. Richard M. Ketchum of the American Heritage staff has filled the void with "Will Rogers, the Man and His Times."

Ketchum starts the story with the Cherokee Indians in the Southeast, following them over the "Trail of Tears" when the government forced them out of their ancestral lands and resettled them in Indian Territory. Among those who moved west ahead of the forced migration were Robert Rogers and his wife, Sallie Vann, Will Rogers' grandparents — both of whom, like so many of the Cherokees, were of mixed white and Indian blood.

Will Rogers was born in Indian Territory, where his father, Clement Vann Rogers, was a big man in the Coowees-coowee country and served in the senate of the Cherokee Nation, which had its own self-government until 1898. The Claremore Progress called him 'Clem Rogers, the Oologah wheat king." In the period of transition from Indian self-rule to Okalhoma statehood, Will grew up on his father's vast lands —a boy who loved to rope and hated to go to school.

It seems an unlikely background for the most completely American humorist since Mark Twain. And a youth spent traveling with Wild West shows and appearing on Broadway with a trick roping act appears still more unlikely training to become the nation's most-quoted commentator on politics and current affairs, with his daily telegram appearing on front pages of hundreds of newspapers. But that was Will Rogers' youth.

No one who was around in the late '20s, and early '30s needs to be told what Will Rogers became. Those few who did not read his daily column in the newspapers saw some of the many movies in which he starred, or heard him on the radio. He died too soon for television; it would have been his perfect medium.

With erratic spelling, capitalization and punctuation (which editors usually had sense enough to leave unchanged), Will in his daily column spoofed the great and spoke for the common man. Though he gained fame initially as comedian and humorist, his pungent comments were recognized as containing more wisdom than the pompous pronouncements of politicians or the labored analyses of political "experts." Will called 'em as he saw 'em, almost invariably with good humor — and he saw 'em pretty clearly.

In chapter headings, marginal notes, special page groupings, and sprinkled throughout the text, Ketchum's book reprints dozens of Will's little gems. And though they were as current as the day's news — indeed, part of it — many of them strike home today as truly as when he wrote them:

"This Country right now is operating on a Dollar down and a Dollar a Week. It ain't Taxes that is hurting this Country; it's Interest."

"A holding company is a thing where you hand an accomplice the goods while the policeman searches you."

"The tariff is an instrument invented for the benefit of those who make to be used against those who buy. As there is more buys than there is makes, it is a document of the minority, but what a minority!"

"Politics ain't worrying this country one tenth as much as parking space."

"When you get into trouble five thousand miles from home you've got to have been looking for it."

"We will stop those Chinese from fighting among themselves if we have to kill them to do it."

"The Democrats are having a lot of fun exposing the Republican campaign contributions, but they would have a lot more fun if they knew where they could lay their hands on some of it themselves for next November."

And on stock market speculation: "We are continually buying something that we never get, from a man that never had it."

Will loved to fly, and constantly needled the government to build up Army and Navy air forces and do more to encourage civilian aviation. But it was on a flight that he met death, with famed around-the-world pilot Wiley Post, "on Point Barrow, Alaska — above the Aretic Circle — on Aug. 15, 1935.

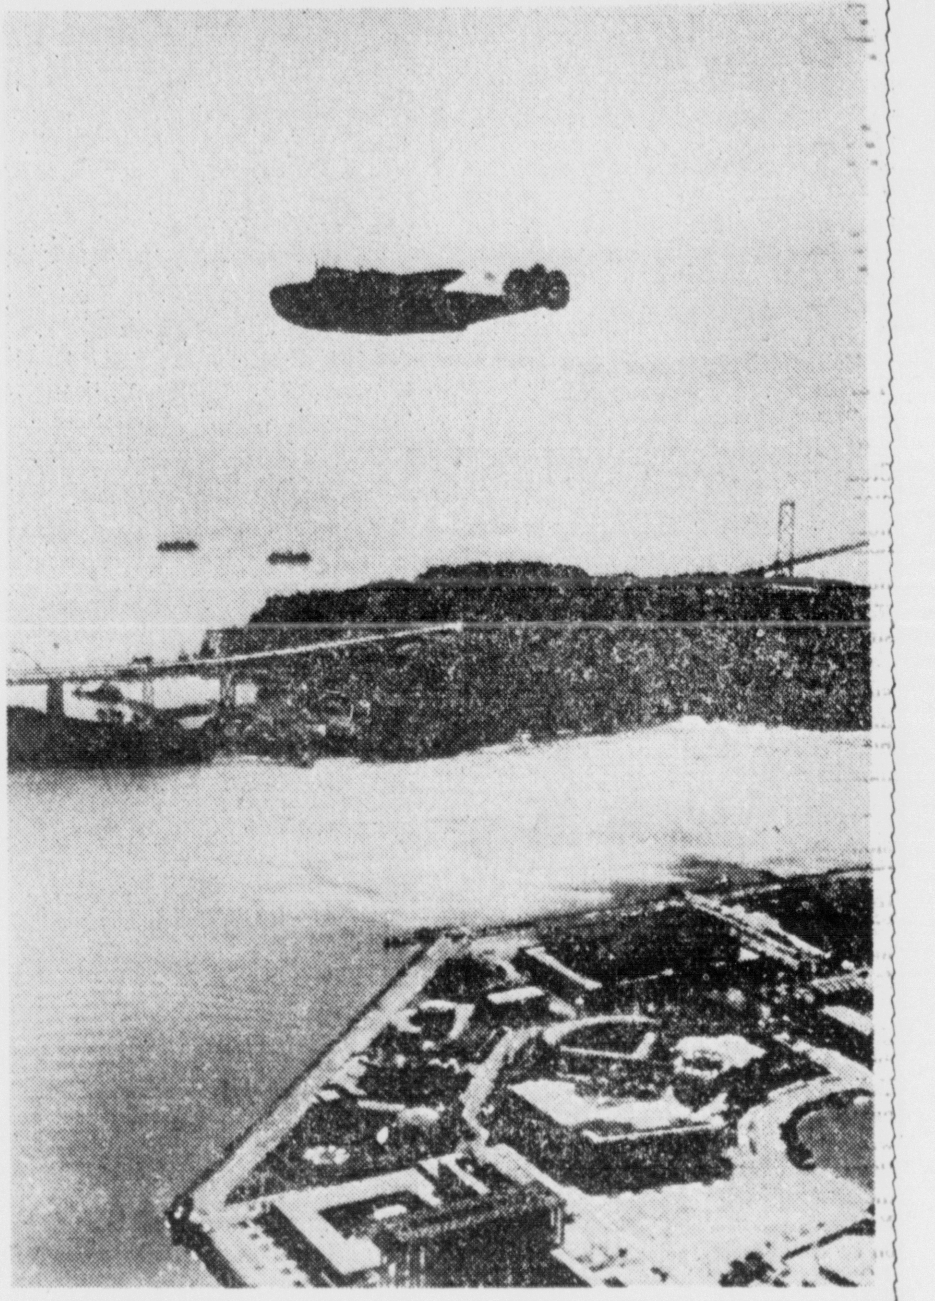
As Ketchum writes:

"Perhaps not since the death of Abraham Lincoln had a tragedy touched so many Americans as did the loss of Will Rogers and Wiley Post. When the story appeared in the newspapers it overshadowed everything that was going on in the world."

Of the thousands of tributes printed after the tragedy, perhaps the best was a brief one by singer John McCormack, Will Rogers' longtime friend: "A smile has disappeared from the lips of America and her eyes are now suffused with tears." We shall not look upon his like again."

Richard M. Ketchum and American Heritage have produced a beautiful biography — almost good enough for its subject.

THE YEARS OF THE FAIR



A PAN AMERICAN flying boat enroute to the Orient soars over Treasure Island, left, the $3,800,000 man-made island in the San Francisco Bay. It was the 1930s. The United States was in the throes of the depression as Europe stood on the brink of World War II when the Bay Area embarked on the biggest building spree in its history. The entire story unfolds in Richard Reinhardt's amusing and poignant illustrated history "Treasure Island: San Francisco's Exposition Years" (The Scrimshaw Press, 169 pages, $12.95). Fantastic photographs recreate downtown San Francisco during the depression; building of two of the longest spans in the world — the 77-million-dollar San Francisco-Oakland Bay and 35-million-dollar Golden Gate bridges, opened in November, 1936 and May, 1937, respectively. To celebrate their completion Treasure Island was built to hold the 1939-1940 Golden Gate International Exposition, Northern California's last world's fair. It all comes alive again — the crowds milling around the Exposition's Portals of the Pacific, the Tower of Sun, Billy Rose's Aquacade and even Willie Vocalite, the Westinghouse robot — as you read Reinhardt's nostalgic book.

Rocks Tremble And Mountains Belch

EARTH WATCH: NOTES ON A RESTLESS PLANET by Jean and Daniel Shepard; Doubleday, 238 pages, $8.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

That this planet upon which we exist so precariously is a restless one, seething with forces seemingly beyond mankind's control, cannot be doubted. Earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, tidal waves, fierce windstorms, mutations of nature all mock man's self-image of omnipotent supremacy over his environment.

This image has been subjected to such especially serious shocks and doubts of late.

In September, 1968, the Smithsonian Institution established the Center for Short-Lived Phenomena, headquartered in Cambridge, Mass., to coordinate information channeled through 2,700 trained observers in 143 countries about sudden, unpredictable environmental changes.

It is from the records of this center that writers Jean and Daniel Shepard have gleaned the material for their book, "Earth Watch."

As does the center, the Shepards divide their coverage into four categories: Earth Science Events, Biological Science Events, Astrophysical Events and Urgent Anthropological Events.

The readers' first reaction is one of surprise at the large number of major upsets that have occurred in the very short time the center has maintained its vigil: islands born of volcanic actions, glacial-created floods, temblors, slides, insect invasions, mass migrations, sealife and animal plagues, oil spill disasters, epidemics, final extinctions of species, meteorites, new discoveries about very old peoples, some long passed from the scene, some still existing in isolation.

The pieces vary greatly in length and in the detail of their descriptions. And the reactions of the reader will vary, too, according to his or her specific interests.

Some of the best and most graphic reports concern the burial of the Peruvian city of Yungay by the great Huascaran ice falls of 1970, the Pozzuoli eruption in Italy in 1970, the Nicaraguan earthquake of 1972, the eruption of Helgafell in Iceland in 1973, Australia's Victorian mouse plague of 1969, Appalachia's mass squirrel migration of 1968, a round-up of oil spill disasters, the red tide off New England of 1972, Mauritania's Kiffa Meteorite of 1970, the 1971 discovery of the Tasaday forest people in the Philippines, and the 1968-71 studies of the Akarijo Indians on Surinam.

There are illustrations, including color plates, and a final chronological tabulation of short-lived phenomena that have occurred since 1968.

In their introduction, however, the co-authors point out that mankind has brought a great deal of the misfortune it blames on natural causes down upon its own heads: "Much of the restlessness of the planet stems from the loss of innocence with respect to our part in altering certain natural processes, and from the conflict between the awareness that we can check the abuse of our environment and the unwillingness to do so."

They append this warning: "If man's demands on earth's resources are so great and his contribution to their replenishment so negligible that he is a liability to both himself and his habitat, there is a remedy. It is the same one which his planet administered in ages past to the great reptiles and other life forms that lacked the ability to sustain themselves in the environment into which they had been born."

In this time of pollution, resource shortages, wars, population congestion, political immorality, etc., that warning seems to hold a stark, personal urgency for us all.

SLEUTHS & SUSPENSE

UNKNOWN MISSION by John Creasey; McKay-Washburn, 256 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

This is early John Creasey, written in 1940, and now first published in the United States.

As spy fiction of more than 30 years ago, it has a "campy" E. Phillips Oppenheim flavor. And yet, within the framework of its time, it was well done, and remains great fun to read.

In the opening months of World War II British agent Bruce Murdoch and his pretty aide, Mary Dell, are assigned to the dangerous mission of recovering some stolen government papers that are otherwise bound for Berlin and Adolf Hitler. The deadly game begins in a rural British inn, and moves to a fictitious neutral Scandinavian nation where Bruce, Mary and their confederates are pitted aginst assorted "baddies" and where they must work against time to prevent the innocent Scandinavian state from being drawn into the cauldron of war.

STRYCHNINE

It is part of a series of World War II "secret agent stories" done by Creasey under the pen-name Norman Deane, and full of action, ploys and counter-ploys.

Our Biggest Park Is At Its Best In The Winter

The setting is Yellowstone National Park in the most dazzling of its seasons — winter.

It's an almost eerie winter scene. Steam rises hundreds of feet into a crisp clear sky. Bison sway their massive heads from side to side, brushing snow from deep buried grass. It's quiet. Millions of pines and firs dressed in tons of snow dampen the sounds of snowcoaches, snowmobiles and ski tourers.

Now, in the second year of Yellowstone's second century, the excitement and beauty of the snow season is available to visitors through expanded services, lodging and snowtime activities.

SKI TOURS AND snowcoach excursions, snowshoe hikes and snowmobile trips in the heart of the park originate from the newly expanded Old Faithful Snow Lodge and Cabins, a winter hostel located in the heart of the park near famous Old Faithful Geyser.

Snowcoach expeditions via 10-passenger, enclosed and heated, over-snow vehicles explore the white winter wonders of Yellowstone country with stops at geyser basins and picture-taking pauses beside wintering wildlife. One day-long expedition takes adventurous snow travelers to the spectacular "Grand Canyon" of the Yellowstone River with a pause for lunch on the canyon rim.

Other snowcoach expeditions ferry travelers from three park entrances at the North, West and South gates to Old Faithful Snow Lodge and Cabins. Geyser basins and wildlife provide enroute entertainment.

THE WILDLIFE show in America's largest national park and wildlife sanctuary is especially impressive in winter.

Buffalo, elk, moose, deer and big horn sheep graze near the trails as winter snows drive animals to lower feeding elevations. Waterfowl rest on streams warmed by thermal springs and geysers. Canada geese reside here year round and the rare and beautiful trumpeter swans may be found gliding in peace and safety.

Yellowstone's winterscapes are a photographer's Utopia. Contrasting colors provide the perfect background for photography. Animals — the park's spontaneous actors — provide close-ups of nature for both amateur and professional camera clickers.

FOR THOSE WISE ENOUGH to plan their visits for the winter, Yellowstone National Park's world famous geysers put on a special spectacular, shooting their white clouds of steam hundreds of feet into the cold, crisp, clean air.

MANY WINTER visitors bring their own snowmobiles or rent them at gate communities while others choose to see the park via the big heated snowcoaches.

Snowmobiles are required to travel the park's many miles of snow-covered roads, which are groomed for easy travel. Snowmobile gas and oil, along with minor repairs, are available at Old Faithful Snow Lodge and Cabins.

To help winter visitors better enjoy Yellowstone's winter wonderland, Yellowstone Park Co. has combined favorite snow activities with transportation and lodging in eight pre-planned vacation packages that range from three days and two nights to eight days and seven nights in duration. Included are ski-touring and snowmobile expeditions and a vacation adventure that combines downhill skiing on Jackson Hole's famous slopes with snow fun in Yellowstone.

Details of the Yellowstone winter vacation packages are available from travel agents or may be obtained along with a brochure and other information about the park by writing Wendy Winter, Yellowstone Park Company, Room 912, Yellowstone National Park, Wyo., 82190.

Christmas In Canada Is Gala Occasion

Christmas in Canada is a potpourri of customs reflecting the unique personalities of the provinces which make up the Canadian mosaic.

The Pacific Coast is particularly Christmas-oriented.

Imagine a Carol Ship silhouetted in lights, bearing a Christmas tree at the masthead and carrying bell-ringers and children's choirs. Followed by a flotilla of brilliantly lit fire boats, tugs, fishing boats and private yachts, it leads the Yuletide fleet that welcomes inbound ships and sends a message of goodwill echoing across the dark waters to crowds waiting around huge bonfires on the shore.

THIS DELIGHTFUL event is held every year on the evenings during the week before Christmas in the harbor of the cosmopolitan Pacific city of Vancouver.

The unique Carol Ship, like a gigantic Christmas parcel glowing with lights, annually draws huge crowds of visitors from all over British Columbia and the western U.S.

Windows along Vancouver's Robson Street (often called Robson strasse), crammed with ethnic delights, exotic gifts and pungent culinary masterpieces, heighten the festive flavor of this glamorous Canadian city.

AT THE WORLD-famous Empress Hotel in Victoria on Vancouver Island, the "Spirit of Christmas Past" stalks the halls as costumed troubadours serenade guests with madrigals. And, once again, the ancient and honorable procession of the Boar's Head wends its traditional way accompanied by liveried lackies, cheeky page boys and the inevitable jester in age-old motley.

The Elizabethan custom of tossing holly springs on a blazing Yule log to symbolize the erasing of last year's mistakes and indiscretions still takes place at the hotel.

Other hotels in the Victoria and Vancouver areas also introduce the Elizabethan note with carolers, boars' heads, surprise gifts, special entertainment for children and menus printed on scrolls tied with gay ribbons. Indeed, the hotels have created such a jolly, old-time Christmas atmosphere that families which traditionally stay home on Christmas now eat out.

FOR THIS REASON, it is an absolute must to make your Vancouver and Victoria Christmas dinner reservations well in advance to get in on all the fun.

Yuletime ski buffs are well catered for in the Vancouver area at Grouse Mountain, Mount Seymour and Whistler Mountain in Garibaldi Park (only 70 miles from the city). Special interdenominational skiers' services are held on the valley floor at Whistler in a beautiful A-frame church, built with funds contributed by the skiers.

TRAVEL PAGE

In Alberta's Rocky Mountains, Banff Springs Hotel and Jasper Park Lodge have special Christmas programs. An Olde English Christmas dinner and Boar's Head ceremonial procession are scheduled for the Banff Springs.

BOTH RESORTS feature a visit by Santa and special children's activities as well as an exciting variety of winter fun: tobogganing, skating, skiing and snowshoeing. Jasper Park Lodge guests can participate in sleigh rides to massive open-air fireplaces for winter barbecues. Carol singing, Christmas and New Year's parties are also featured.

The Christmas season in Toronto got off to a spectacular start in mid-November with the mile-long Santa Claus parade, one of the largest anywhere.

The simple pleasures of the pioneer Canadian Christmas are revived through Dec. 23 at Toronto's Mackenzie House, former mid-19th Century home of the city's first mayor. Decorations are traditional — paper chains, rosettes, candles and other trimmings adorn mantles, archways and staircases.

THE "KISSING Bough," forerunner of the Christmas tree in England, glows with candles and gay home-made objects to delight young and old. The nostalgic aroma of fresh evergreens and cracking wood fires completes the festive picture.

In the basement, hospitable Toronto ladies in period costume prepare cookies and fruit loaves on a wood-burning range. Cranberry punch and piping hot mulled cider are served to visitors.

In French-speaking Quebec, Christmas is a deeply religious event, the most colorful and memorable in the entire year.

FESTIVITIES ARE held in the evening, and are centered on the "reveillon," or Christmas banquet. Its preparation starts weeks and sometimes months in advance, for it is a genuine family reunion and many family members are invited. It is not unusual to invite as many as 30 or 40 relatives to such a party.

The basic principle of the reveillon is that the quality and quantity of food, wine and delicacies must surprass whatever is consumed on other less important holidays.

The feasting commences around 2 or 3 a.m., after a special Midnight Mass and the gift giving around the Christmas tree. It can last until the first rays of dawn. There are countless dishes, all served to the accompaniment of witty conversation, gay laughter, and boisterous singing.

A WIDE VARIETY of home-made and imported wines are served in generous quantities to young and old.

Among the smaller ethnic groups, Canadians whose origins go back to the Ukraine, Poland and other parts of eastern Europe, the custom of spreading a thin layer of straw under the cloth on the Christmas table as a reminder of the stable where Christ was born is still retained. Straw is often strewn under the table and candies and nuts are hidden in it for the children.

In many Canadian churches and homes, the most important and best loved decoration is the creche, or crib, a realistic miniature tableau of the Nativity.

OTHER GROUPS which hold their main celebrations on Christmas Eve serve a distinctive type of food on this occasion. For example, baked carp is a traditional dish in families whose ancestors were Czechoslovakian or Austrian. Codfish, goose and a special kind of rice pudding form a part of the Christmas fare among Scandinavians. In the pudding is an almond, and it is believed that whoever gets the almond is sure to have his wish fulfilled.

Among Estonians the Christmas meal often centers around roast suckling pig rolled in cabbage, cooked in the oven and served with vegetables and sour cream.

In Newfoundland, Canada's island province in the Atlantic, children and adults dress up in odd costumes, usually old clothes like grandma's night-gown or dad's old Stanfields (old fashioned "long-John" winter underwear). Faces are covered with veils, some with Halloween-type masks.

THESE "MUMMERS," as they are called, go from door to door in groups of two to ten. Disguising their voices, they ask to be let in to perform for the householders. The musician of the group plays on a pocket comb covered with cigarette paper while his companions sing.

The mummers are rewarded with candy and Christmas cake. The children are offered a drink made from a mixture of water and thick, sweet syrup while adult mummers are served homemade blueberry and raspberry wines.

This is the joy of Christmas in Canada —where Elizabethan and 17th Century French rituals, colorful ethnic customs and honored pioneer traditions mingle in celebration of the holiday season.

Swiss Tighten Check On Keys

A new system to prevent unauthorized people from taking hotel keys from lobby reception areas has been introduced in Switzerland and already installed in many establishments.

Replacing the old fashioned key hooks is an electronic key bank which gives each guest a room key and a "receipt key," much like the one a person receives when renting a box in a bank vault. Only a guest with a receipt key can get the one for his room without setting off an alarm.

Not All The Red Tape Is Gone From Travel

By MURRAY J. BROWN

A valid U.S. passport is usually all the American tourist needs these days to visit most countries in Western Europe and the Western Hemisphere.

Greece, Turkey and the Scandinavian countires also have eliminated much of the red tape for Americans traveling for pleasure.

But those heading for Eastern Europe, Arica and Asia will find visas, health records and other documents may still be necessary to gain entry.

A VISA IS official approval by a government for the admission, stay and travel within the borders of a country by citizens of other nations. Visas usually are stamped in the passport and are valid for a specified number of entries and period of time.

Some countries issue them free; others charge a fee. For instance, Japan grants visas valid for up to four years without charge while a visa to the African state of Mali valid for 15 days costs $8.

Requirements vary but generally the American must present a valid U.S. passport and an International Certificate of Vaccination, with the completed application and photographs and fees when necessary. Other documents could include proof of onward passage, proof of sufficient funds, and, in the case of the African state of Burundi, proof of the applicant's good character from his hometown police department.

PREPAID TRAVEL arrangements are required by the Soviet Union and other Communist countries in Eastern Europe. All but Bulgaria require visitors to possess visas. Romania grants them free, the USSR charges $2 for postage. Poland collects $5.50 but an American citizen visiting relatives pays $14.50.

All countries in Africa require visas, with the exception of the Central Arican Republic, Morocco and Tunisia.

Visas also are necessary for American visitors to Egypt, Libya, Lebanon, Syria and Jordan. Libya demands they be written in Arabic. No visa is required for U.S. citizens visiting Israel — they are granted free on arrival.

American tourists to Central and South America generally require a passport or other proof of nationality and-or a tourist or transit card. The few that still demand visas grant them free of charge.

TOURIST AND transit cards may be obtained at foreign consulates and other governmental agencies in the United States or from airlines and steamship lines before departure, although some may be obtained at ports of entry. Some of the countries charge a fee while others — including Mexico — do not.

Native-born U.S. citizens need only some form of identification to enter Canada although immigration officers on both sides rarely ask for such proof.

Bermuda and most of the islands in the West Indies also have done away with practically all the old formalities. U.S. citizens now usually need only proof of nationality and outbound transportation.

MOST VISAS must be obtained before departure from the United States although some countries will issue them at border posts and other points of entry or at consular offices overseas.

Information on whether visas are needed can be obtained from government tourist offices, travel agencies, airlines and shipping companies.

In the United States, visas can be secured from foreign diplomatic missions in Washington, D.C., or other cities. If mail services are employed, use registered mail and include a self-addressed envelope with enough stamps for return the same way.

If more than one country is involved, the process will have to be repeated. Allow at least one week to 10 days in each case if the mails have to be used. If hand-delivered, figure on at least two days.

Here's The Reason Why That Paint Job Was Such A Failure

PLAYTHINGS FOR YOUR LITTLE ANGEL

ANY LITTLE GIRL gets a special joy out of something her daddy built for her with his own hands. Here are a couple of ideas, out of Steve Ellingson's treasury of patterns and plans. At top, actor Tom Kennedy and Claudia Dehring show you settings of furniture scaled to fit the popular 11½-inch tall fashion model dolls. Included are patio, living room and bedroom sets plus tote-about wardrobe and backrop. It's pattern number 361, costing $1. Just trace the pattern parts onto wood, saw them out and assemble. Scrap wood is all you needs All very simple. In bottom photo is a child-size kitchen with all the appliances that mother uses. The Kiddy Kitchen is perfect for the playhouse or playroom. The refrigerator has two doors, freezer compartment and shelves — just like the real thing. The dutch cabinet has open-grooved shelves for displaying dishes, and drawers for dinnerware and silver. The sink is equipped with plastic dishpan and taps, while the range has four simulated burners and an oven. The set is almost as much fun for dad to built as it is for small daughter to enjoy afterwards. It is pattern 363, and costs $2. Send your orders and checks to Steve Ellingson, Independent-Journal pattern department, Post Office Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif., 91409. Include your zip code number.

The most common cause of a bad paint job is not the quality of the paint nor the lack of skill in handling a roller or a brush.

It's the failure to prepare the surface properly.

WHAT USUALLY happens is that five minutes are spent on the preparation, several hours on the painting. Unless you have exceptionally clean walls and ceilings, almost as much time should be spent on getting the surfaces ready as in painting them.

Just how much time can't be pinpointed because of the differences in the condition of the surfaces, but five or 10 minutes are not enough even when everything seems to be visibly clean.

Dusting or vacuuming is an absolute must to rid the walls and ceiling of a room of tiny particles of dirt not visible to the naked eye.

If you are painting a kitchen, especially, it can be assumed that some grease has attached itself to the surfaces even if an exhaust fan has been used periodically. This must be washed off with warm water and a detergent and permitted to dry thoroughly before going ahead with the job.

SINCE PAINT will not cling to a glossy surface, it is vital that all glossy spots be sanded to remove the shine. When all or most of the surface is glossy — and sanding would be a real task — you should apply a coat of preparation liquid designed especially for this purpose.

Whether you have plaster or gypsum board walls, there may be cracks, holes or other openings that should be repaired before any paint is applied. Use patching plaster for these repairs and sand down the patch level with the surrounding surface after it has hardened. Apply a primer to the repaired areas.

Some painters use a little of the paint — thinned a bit — that will be used for the final coat.

(If you're a do-it-yourselfer, you'll want a copy of Andy Lang's handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," available by sending $1 to Andy Lang at Box 5, Teaneck, N.J. 07666.)

HERE ARE THOSE ANSWERS—

By ANDY LANG

Q. — I want to install asphalt shingles on the outside walls of our house. I have a pretty good idea of how to do this, but the one thing I would like to know is whether they can be applied over the wood siding now on the house.

A. — Yes, provided the old siding is carefully gone over to see that it is securely attached everywhere. The one difficulty you may find is in cutting asphalt shingles. There are several ways to do this, but most of them require some skill and lots of practice. You may be better off renting an asphalt shingle cutter, which does the job easily and neatly.

Q. — We have an old birch table with a finish on it that looks like varnish. My wife wants me to take off the old finish and give the table a limed-oak effect that she says she saw on some furniture in a department store. How is this done?

A. — I could tell you, but it wouldn't do any good with the kind of table you have. The finish she is talking about is called limed oak. As the term implies, it is used principally on oak or, at least, on a wood with open pores. The limed effect is produced by filling the pores with white paint. On a wood with closed pores, it simply won't work.

Q. — Our blacktop driveway has some holes in it. The rest of the driveway is in good condition. Can I repair it myself with one of the blacktop patching materials I see advertised or does it require a special skill?

A. — You can do it yourself. Use a good quality product and follow the instructions carefully. I have found that, after you complete the patch, it's a good idea to sprinkle sand over it, then run your car over it once or twice to pack it down.

Fine Art Of Bonsai Is A Fascinating Exercise In Patience

If you'd like to grow one of those picturesque, dwarfed or shaped in Japanese fashion, don't let the name bonsai intimidate you.

It is true that in Japan a gardener may start a young bonsai plant that will come to perfection in the lifetime of his grandchildren. Patience is a big factor in shaping and training a specimen to the desired form. But, if patience isn't a virtue of yours, most nurseries offer prestarted or already-grown bonsai plants in pots.

You can grow and enjoy the creation at home.

Many nurseries have bonsai kits available, but for those who wish to start one from a seedling, or shop for unique-looking specimens to train, there are simplified procedures to follow that will yield faster results. A bonsai fashioned from a year-old seedling can be a prized possession in less than 10 years and perhaps five, depending upon the plant.

If you find a larger specimen in a nursery container you can have an attractive piece immediately.

WHEN STARTING with older plants, look for irregular growth rather than shapely ones. Prune unwanted branches to add interest to your creation. Keep in mind, as you prune, the shape you are trying to achieve. There are books available that provide in-depth information on the art of bonsai, and illustrations to give ideas on structure and shapes.

Shopping for year-old seedlings to bonsai is an entertaining adventure.

Using young plants has certain advantages. The trunk and branches will be pliable and easy to train. Authoritative bonsai literature will show how to wire the branches and trunks to achieve artistic shapes. Pruning young plants is confined to removing a few unwanted branches with sharp shears, then pinching back new growth as it appears. This results in stouter trunks and smaller foliage.

START YOUR seedling in a small pot.

A variety of bonsai containers is available at most nurseries. These are usually shallow — longer and iwder than they are dep. Increase the size of the container from year to year until the plant has reached the ultimate size you desire.

When placing the plant in the container, try tilting it slightly for dramatic effect. If the bowl is oblong, set the plant closer to one end than the other. If the container is round, place the bonsai in the center.

Soil for bonsai specimen should be porous and not excessively rich. Your nurseryman can recommend a planting mixture to use.

DRAINAGE HOLES in the container are necessary and should be covered with a fine wire screen or pieces of broken crockery — set over the holes to prevent soil loss. After putting in a layer of gravel in the bottom of the container, add a layer of sand. Place the plant in the container, spread out its roots and then add the soil mixture. Firm the soil and water thorougly with a fine spray.

Caring for bonsai plants is different than that of shrubs or trees in the garden, or growing in redwood tubs. The bonsai plants depend on your help to live in a small area of soil.

Watering is very important —once a day with a fine mist is average. In hot weather the plants may need water two or three times a day.

KEEP BONSAI plants out of direct hot sun and avoid exposing them to strong, drying winds. Cold weather isn't genrally a threat, as most bonsais are naturally hardy: Conifers, deciduous shrubs and trees, or hardy evergreens. Naturally, if you're using a tender plant, you would afford it winter protection.

Whatever your choice of plant is, and whether you're looking for older specimens or bonsai seedlings, choosing the plants is half the fun. There's a wealth of plant material available and your imagination can run wild.

Remember, plants that are naturally slow-growing and picturesque are the best bets. A few to consider include: Pines, Junipers, Japanese Maples, Spruce, Cedars, Yews, Wisteria, Quince —and even Azaleas.

'Talk To Your Plants'

Jerry Baker, a familiar figure on television, is the author of "Talk to Your Plants" (Nash, $7.95), subtitled: "And Other Gardening Know-How I Learned from Grandma Putt." Its a compedium of offbeat gardening ideas, both old and new.

A CHECKLIST FOR MARIN GARDENERS

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

✓ If you haven't already invested in a Christmas tree, look over the "living" Christmas trees at local nurseries. These can be kept in containers and brought indoors each year for a while and finally planted outdoors permanently.

✓ Hardy garden Lilies for bloom next spring and summer should be planted now.

✓ America's favorite flower makes a wonderful Christmas gift. Why not give rose bushes to home owners on your Christmas list?

✓ Make your first planting of Gladiolus as soon as they show up in nurseries. Some are already there, waiting for you to take home and plant.

✓ For the amazement of your children, grow a bulb or three in a bowl filled with gravel and some water or in a hyacinth glass. Even adults like it.

✓ Substitute greenery and other natural materials for electric bulbs in your holiday decor this energy crisis year.

THE REDGRAVES

A Closely-Knitted Family That Is Composed Of Individualists

The year was 1967, and for the first time in 25 years, two sisters, Vanessa and Lynn Redgrave, were rivals for Hollywood's coveted Oscar.

Vanessa was up for an Academy Award for her performance in "Morgan"; Lynn for "Georgy Girl." The two earlier siblings who had vied for the statuette were Joan Fontaine and Olivia de Haviland. Miss Fontaine won, sparking a sisterly feud.

No such spat occurred between the Redgrave girls. The reason may be due in part to the fact that Elizabeth Taylor took the best-actress Oscar home that night. The main credit, however, rests in the reality that Vanessa and Lynn are chips off the old blockbuster of talent named Sir Michael Redgrave.

On Sunday Redgrave will narrate the National Theater of the Deaf's dramatization of Dylan Thomas' classic "A Child's Christmas in Wales" on the "CBS Festival of the Lively Arts for Young People" on the CBS Television Network.

REDGRAVE IS an exceptional as a parent as he is an actor.

He married, in 1934, Rachel Kempson, an actress he met while making his professional debut with the Liverpool Repertory Theatre. Today, the Redgrave family — son Corin is also an actor — is an extraordinarily flexible but united family.

Redgrave impressed on his children that an actor can't always leave his offspring a grand patrimony, but he can give them an education. He insisted that each child learn one language perfectly, for example. Redgrave himself was educated in France and Germany and at England's Cambridge University, from which he graduated in 1930 with honors in French, German and English.

When Vanessa was 8, Walt Disney wanted her to play Alice in his production of "Alice In Wonderland." But her parents refused to permit it, insisting she continue her schooling.

YET, VANESSA showed theatrical leanings early on, writing plays and acting them out at home. "And she had a mercurial temperament," says her father, "which is absolutely right for the theatre."

Lynn, however, was somewhat of a late bloomer.

As a child, she knew exactly what she would do when she grew up — jump horses in the show ring. And so she did, until the age of 15. Then she turned to her second love — cooking — and dreamt of starting a catering service for people who no longer employed cooks. But her plan was short-lived. One day, she notes, as she revisited Stratford-on-Avon, "It came to me in a blinding flash, suddenly that I wanted to act."

SHE HASN'T looked back since. Nor, ineed, do any of the Redgraves.

"We keep being offered fabulous fees to make joint appearances in plays and movies," says Sir Michael, "but, honestly, I think that would be just a stunt."

So the Redgraves march to success their own ways. Yet the family bonds remain intact.

SIR MICHAEL REDGRAVE, patriarch of Britain's most famous theatrical family, is the narrator of the Eugene O'Neill Center's National Theater of the Deaf dramatization of Dylan Thomas' "A Child's Christmas in Wales," to be shown on the "Festival of the Lively Arts for Young People" Sunday at 6 p.m. on Channels 5 and 10.

Kids Join Merv For Yule Show

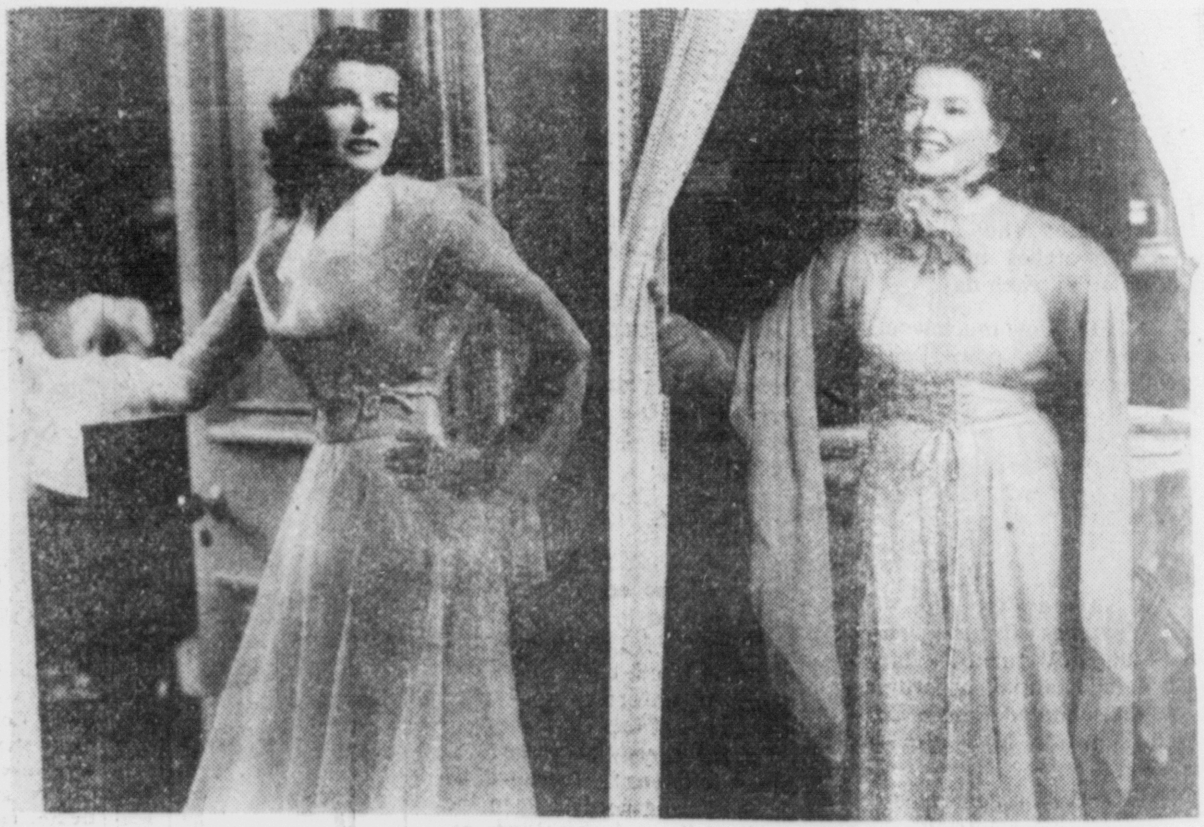
"Merv Griffin and the Christmas Kids", an hour-long musical holiday special starring Griffin and some of television's talented youngsters, will be seen on Channel 4 tonight at 7 p.m.

The program opens with a group of young ballerinas dancing through a snow-covered Christmas village, knocking on doors which open to reveal the guest stars, including Ricky Segall, Eric Scott, Mary Elizabeth McDonough, Kim Richards, The Mitchell Singing Boys, and special guest star Rodney Allen Rippy.

Among the other "Christmas Kids" featured are pianist Leland Greenwald, guitarist Randy Gray and young John Sheldon.

Merv Griffin is the only adult on the program, except for Santa.

The talented young performers, ranging in age from 3 to 15, all sing, perform and act in skits in keeping with the holiday theme. Rodney Allen Rippy sings "Santa Claus is Coming to Town" in his own inimitable style.



KATHARINE HEPBURN, 1940 and 1973

Same Actress And Same Dress

Katharine Hepburn, making her television dramatic debut in Tennessee Williams' "The Glass Menagerie" on the ABC Television Network Sunday at 8:30 p.m., comes on in the second act in a dress her character — Amanda Wingfield — has treasured for years.

As Amanda she says "I found an old dress in the trunk. . . it broke my heart when I had to let it out. . . I led the cotillion in this dress years ago."

What she doesn't say — as Katharine Hepburn — is that she also worte it in "Philadelphia Story," filmed 33 years ago. She has had it ever since. It seemsd right for Amanda's cherished memories, and so — with a few alterations by costume designer Patricia Zipprodt — the dress designed for Tracy Lord in "Philadelphia Story" becomes Amanda's treasure in "The Glass Menagerie."

One obvious addition is the high neckline, which has become a Hepburn trademark during the years since "Philadelphia Story." The other frills are obvious to the discerning eye and, as Amanda says, Miss Zipprodt "had to let it out a little."

But only a little.

Energy Crisis And Television

By JAY SHARBUTT

NEW YORK (AP) — About 66,200,000 homes in the United States have one or more television sets, says the A. C. Nielsen ratings company.

It estimates the average household watches more than six hours of TV each day.

QUESTION: How much would it ease the current power crisis if we cut down on our television viewing by just one hour each day?

Experts say there's no ready answer. It depends on where you live, the severity of your area's power shortage and its type of power.

Right here in Fun City, the energy savings from a one-hour-a-day TV turnoff alone could be substantial, according to the Consolidated Edison Co., which supplies New York's electricity.

CON ED SAYS it generates 70 per cent of this electricity by burning oil, and notes there's a severe shortage of oil here and elsewhere in the U.S. because of the Arab oil cutoff.

Now, the Nielsen ratings people say there's about four million black and white color TV sets —the latter require far more power to operate than the former — in New York City.

Con Ed calculates that if all the owners of these sets cut just one hour off their regular viewing schedule each day for a year, they'd reduce the city's need for oil by 630,000 barrels in that year.

TAKING A different approach, what about suggesting the networks trim their evening schedules by, say, an hour or half hour, with the idea of encouraging viewers to turn off their sets and perhaps their lights as well earlier each night and thus help ease the current power crisis?

The networks take a very dim view of any suggested dimout, although it must be said in their defense they didn't summon the man with the butterfly net when we asked about program cutbacks.

CBS simply said it has no plans for any cutbacks.

"WHILE WE are keenly aware of the energy shortage and the need to conserve power," said ABC, "we are not planning to cut back any of our news or entertainment programming at this time.

"If the energy shortage continues to intensify, there will be an increasing need to keep the public fully and objectively informed on all developments, as we are doing . . . the public interest, therefore, requires our maintaining a full broadcast service."

NBC also said it plans no cutback in its television schedule.

"SINCE ONE of the primary effects of the energy shortage will be curtailment of travel, requiring people to spend more time at home," it said, "it seems to us the public will be relying even more on television for entertainment and information, and a cutback would not be in the public interest."

John-Boy Makes Debut As Singer

Emmy Award-winning Richard Thomas is like the rest of us: he gets a bit apprehensive when he does something for the first time.

Thomas, of course, has been impressive as an actor. Now, he's doing something different, making his television singing debut as the special guest star on "The Bobby Van and Elaine Joyce Special" Monday at 10 p.m., on the CBS Television Network.

RICHARD THOMAS
'No threat to Sinatra'

"WHEN BOBBY and Elaine first asked me to appear on the special, and sing, I was terrified," says Thomas, who won an Emmy last season for his role as John-Boy on "The Waltons" on the CBS Network. "But I've known them both a long time and feel very comfortable with them. I really wasn't that hard to convince, because it's fun to do something different."

Actually, Thomas' television singing debut is a "comeback" of sorts for the 22-year-old actor. His first, and last, real singing appearance before an audience was at the age of 6, when he sang "You Gotta Have Heart" in a summer-stock production of "Damn Yankees."

"I really have had no professional singing experience since then," says Thomas. "So, I told Bobby and Elaine that they would have to take me by the hand and lead me, which they did. I may not worry Frank Sinatra, but it's been a real kick to sing and do comedy on a variety special like this.

WITH SEVERAL movie roles to his credit, plus "The Waltons," Thomas expects to expand his acting scope with more firsts. He was host-narrator for the D'Oyly Carte production of the classic Gilbert and Sullivan comic opera "H.M.S. Pinafore" on the "CBS Festival of the Lively Arts for Young People" in November. And then, in January, carring his expansion further, he'll star with Sarah Miles in a Los Angeles stage production of George Bernard Shaw's "Saint Joan."

"I think it's important that an actor expand in whatever way he can," Thomas says. "It keeps you on your toes and, after all, living is just one long learning process."

A Program That Involves Some 75,000 Volunteers

"The Killers" — which will examine genetic defects Monday at 8 p.m. on Channel 9 — has become the largest health project in the history of American television, according to series producer David Prowitt.

"The response from individuals and organizations across the country has been overwhelming," Prowitt said. "It now appears that more than 75,000 volunteers will have worked on the project by the time the series ends next spring."

"The Killers" consists of five 90-minute documentaries on the medical conditions that kill three out of every four Americans. The project also includes local follow-up efforts in more than 200 communities, according to Prowitt.

FOLLOWING THE first program in the series — an examination of heart disease — local stations launched projects that ranged from phone-in question-and-answer sessions with doctors, to filmed reports on local coronary care facilities.

More than 50 national organizations are supporting the project, and, in many cities, local chapters are working with public television stations on follow-up efforts.

In addition, "The Killers" is being used in high schools and junior colleges across the country, Prowitt said.

"We don't know exactly how many classrooms are using the project," he added, "but we do know we will have distributed more than 125,000 specially prepard cards for teachers by the time the series ends."

THE SERIES, which was produced by the WNET Science Program Group under a grant from Bristol-Myers Co., is designed to explain what causes disease and also what can be done to prevent it.

On the genetics program, for example, a wide range of screening and testing procedures are examined. In addition, the program shows how parents of children who are victims of genetic defects are coping with the problem.

In subsequent months, "The Killers" will examine pulmonary disease, trauma and cancer.

"The Killers" is public television's third major effort in the area of health. In 1971, "The Turned On Crisis" examind the country's drug problem and launched public television's first community follow-up effort. A year later, the special "VD Blues" presented an unusual look at venereal disease.

A YOUNG PRIEST, Tom Courtenay, right, unaware that he has only a short time to live is sent by his bishop, Dean Jagger, left, to a remote Indian village to learn about life and death from the Indian tribespeople in the "GE Theater" presentation of "I Heard the Owl Call My Name," Tuesday at 9:30 p.m. on Channels 5 and 10.

Director Takes His Cast North

"I Heard The Owl Call My Name," the first of a new series of 90-minute contemporary dramas, marks the return of the "GE Theater" to television on Tuesday on the CBS Television Network from 9:30 to 11 p.m.

Shot entirely on location on the rugged coast of Canada's British Columbia, "I Heard The Owl Call My Name" stars Dean Jagger and Tom Courtenay and was adapted from Margaret Craven's novel by Gerald Di Pego. The holiday presentation also marks the return of Emmy winning producer-director Daryl Duke to Vancouver, where he did "Almanac," the first TV show ever telecast there.

SO DUKE WAS on familiar ground when he assembled the cast and crew for "I heard The Owl Call My Name" — a true story about a young Anglican priest who, unaware that he has only a short time to live, is sent to a remote Canadian Indian village by his bishop. There, he gradually realizes that death is near.

By the time the "owl has called his name," the Indians have shown him that death, like life, is both beautiful and ugly, full of pain and joy. And he knows why the bishop sent him to this place.

Daryl Duke brought his stars and technical crew up to Ahousat, an isolated village on Vancouver Island, for 26 days of shooting in an area that could only be reached by plane or water taxi. There, he engaged the local Nootka, Ahousat and Coast Indians for roles in the film; some of them turned out to be the sons and daughters of Indians he had worked with years ago in the same region.

FOR TOM COURTENAY, the role of the young priest was a trying one. Nothing in his background or previous performances — he has starred in such films as "Dr. Zhivago," "The Loneliness Of The Long Distance Runner," "A Day In The Life Of Ivan Desinovich" and "Billy Liar" — prepared him for this role.

Unlike Director Duke, Courtenay, a Britisher, had never seen a North American Indian before flying to the West Coast for this role, but his inexperience with primitive Canadian customs and folklore fit right into his portrayal of a priest who had to agonize with unfamiliar and more primitive ways of life.

During the filming of "Owl," Courtenay learned many of the same things as the character he plays. It's summed up by Dean Jagger, that Hollywood institution, now in his 70s, who won an Oscar for "12 O'Clock High," in the role of the bishop:

"THE INDIAN knows his village and feels for his village as no white man for his country, his town, or even for his own bit of land. The village is not the strip of land four miles long and three miles wide that is his as long as the sun rises and the moon sets. The myths are the village, and the black and white killer whales that herd the fish to the end of the inlet to devour them. The village is the salmon who comes up river to spawn, the seal who follows the salmon and bites off his head, the bluejay whose name is like the sound he makes.

"The village is the talking bird, the owl, who calls the name of the man who is going to die. The fifty-foot totem by the church is the village, and the Cedar-man who stands at the bottom holding up the eagle, the wolf and the raven!"

TUNING IN THE TV

By JACK GAVER

Two mid-season replacements at CBS will be half-hour series, "Dirty Sally", with Jeanette Nolan in the title role, and something tentatively titled "Great Day", a comedy starring Esther Rolle in expansion of her current character in the "Maude" series. The character Miss Nolan plays is a spinoff from a two-part "Gunsmoke" story two years ago. The new shows replace "Calucci's Dept." and "Roll Out", both new last fall.

Cliff Robertson will star in a two-hour movie-for-television for ABC airing later this season. It is "My Father's House," based on the novel by Phillip Kunhardt Jr. about how a high-pressure publishing executive is led to rediscover his past after a heart attack.

A new CBS one-hour weekly drama series that will have its premiere Feb. 10 is "Apple's Way", which is about a successful big-city architect of today who moves his family of wife and four children back to the small Iowa town where he grew up. The series was created by Earl Hamner, who is responsible for "The Waltons" on BBS. "Apple's Way" replaces "The New Perry Mason", cancelled.

NBC has signed Burt Reynolds for a series of prime-time specials for the 1974-75 season.

A future "Barnaby Jones" episode on CBS will have the Services of Bonnie Ebsen, daughter of the star of the series, Buddy Ebsen. This will be her acting debut on television.

The spring of 1974 will bring to ABC another special starring Marlo Thomas, "Free to Be . . . You and Me", an hour inspired by the star's successful record album of the same title.

Judson Laire, remembered from the "Mama" series of many seasons ago, is a new addition to the cast of "The Edge of Night," the CBS daytime serial, playing a judge.

HELEN HUNT is cast as a young girl homesteading with her parents in the Wyoming Territory in the motion picture "Pioneer Woman," a motion picture salute to the women who contributed to the westward movement of America and to the growth of the new region. The 90-minute feature film can be seen Wednesday at 8:30 p.m. on Channels 7 and 11.

MARILYN IS HER MODEL

Connie Revels In Sex Symbol Role

(Editor's Note: The TV motion picture, "The Sex Symbol," discussed in the story below is based upon the novel, "The Symbol," by Alvah Bessie of Terra Linda. Bssie also wrote the play for television, but says the script has since been revised by another writer over his objections.)

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Marilyn Monroe has been dead for a decade, but who and what she was will be recreated by another blonde actress, Connie Stevens, in a 90-minute television movie, "The Sex Symbol."

CONNIE STEVENS
A change of image

The story is about the tragedy of a movie queen, but Screen Gems and ABC-TV are doing their best to make it appear to be a conglomerate of all the great glamour girls of the past.

Both companies want to escape law suits and other troubles arising from a biographical study of Monroe.

MISS STEVENS, a vivacious beauty who is as bright as she is sexy, has no such compunctions.

"I remember Marilyn very clearly," said Connie, "and I thought she was terrific. She was sexy, and she was beautiful. And she had one great thing going for her: other women didn't resent Marilyn Monroe.

"I never knew Marilyn personally, but I was at an awards party one time and she tripped when she passed my table. I grabbed her to keep her from falling. She just looked at me as if I didn't exist."

CONNIE, WHO co-starred this past week on "Bing Crosby's Sun Valley Christmas Show," said, "For the record this isn't supposed to be a story about Marilyn.

"But I'm using her for the model because she is the ultimate sex symbol with all the neuroses and problems that go with it. There isn't anyone around like her. Raquel Welch has a beautiful face and body, but that's as far as the symbol goes.

"Screen Gems suggested I look into the backgrounds of all the glamour girls — Jayne Mansfield, Carol Lombard, Jean Harlow and Rita Hayworth. I have, but I'm concentrating on Marilyn."

CONNIE IS HAVING a special screening of "The Prince and the Showgirl" held so she can study Monroe more closely.

"That picture and 'The Misfits' are the most representative movies she ever made," Connie said.

"I'm proud that they wanted me to play the part. It's a virtuoso role. It represents a lot of first for me. First time I've ever done a real tragedy. First time I'll be doing a lot of nude scenes for television.

"AND IT REPRESENTS a change in my image. I think my work in night clubs has changed the general attitude that I was mostly an ingenue and a comedienne. A sex element has become part of what I do."

Connie said there were people and organizations in Hollywood who were determined that "The Sex Symbol" was shelved.

"A lot of people don't want this picture made because they think it is too personally involved with Marilyn," she explained. "Several members of the cast have quit and have been replaced — even before shooting started. There has been a lot of pressure to stop the picture.

"Marilyn wasn't emotionally equipped to cope with the destructive elements of the movie industry. Neither are most glamour queens. This movie shows the rotten side of show business and how women accept it or reject it.

"The difference between Marilyn and me is that I reject it."

Rodney Pays Sammy Visit

Little Rodney Allen Rippy, the hamburger commercial kid, is joined by four Santas — Sammy Davis, Jack Cassidy, Tennessee Ernie Ford and Florence Henderson — in the Christmas edition of "Sammy Davis Starring in NBC Follies" Thursday at 10 p.m. on Channels 3 and 4.

Also featured in the show's Christmas salute is the International Children's Choir, singing its theme song, "Let There Be Peace, Let It Begin With Me."

Cassidy sings a Toyland medley, backed by a collection of walking Christmas packages, the Follies Girls.

Rodney, in the big holiday number, comes out of a street-corner crush and approaches Santa (Sammy), who gives him a special toy and a special song, "Have Yourself a Merry Little Christmas." The other Santas sing and dance to tunes of the season.

And a ho-ho-ho time is enjoyed by all.

COUNTRY MUSIC star Diana Trask guest stars on "Love American Style" as the new bride of a country music idol portrayed by Mel Tillis, on "Love and the Cryin' Cowboy," to be shown on Friday at 10 p.m. on Channels 7 and 11.

Bay Area Youth Is Heard Again In Season's Songs

One of the San Francisco Bay Area's most praised series of locally produced television specials, "The Young Sound of Christmas," will have its 13th consecutive showing Friday at 8 p.m. on Channel 7.

The highlight of this year's broadcast will be the appearance of television star Lorne Greene, title performer in the ABC-TV series "Griff" and star of the long-running western series "Bonanza."

In addition to serving as celebrity host for the annual televised Christmas musicale, Greene will perform with Walter Helms Junior High School Choir of San Pablo, the deeply moving "The Desiderata — You Are a Child of the Universe." This music was based on a 12th Century poem which is a father's wish to his daughter.

The word Desiderata is a longing or something to be wished for.

Other musical groups featured in this year's telecast include the Pinole Valley High School A'Capella Choir and Chamber Singers, Lincoln Elementary School Choir from Oakland, Portola Avenue School Chorus from Livermore, Marina Junior High School String Orchestra and Chorus from San Francisco, Santa Rosa Junior College Madrigal Singers, San Leandro High School's Swing Ensemble, Marin's Redwood High School's Swing Ensemble from Larkspur, and Tyrrell Junior High School's Tyrrell Two Tones from Hayward.

The Redwood High School students are scheduled for three numbers — "The Christmas Song," "Winter Wonderland" and "I Wonder as I Wander," the last a solo by Barbara Fanning.

Other program highlights will include a "Jazz Gloria" by the Tyrrell Junior High School group, the traditional "White Christmas" by San Leandro High School, "Calypso Noel" by the Lincoln Elementary School children with soloist, and "Glory to God on the Highest" by the Santa Rosa Junior College madrigal singers.

R. Edwin Bowker is producer and director of the program, which will again be shown without commercials.

Sesame Producers Thinking About Commercial Shows

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Children's Television Workshop, producers of public television's award-winning "Sesame Street" and "Electric Company," says it's thinking about commercial TV ventures to help finance its public television efforts.

But a spokesman for CTW, a non-profit corporation heavily supported by federal funds, emphasized the idea is neither a certainty nor is it even under heavy consideration right now.

CTW officials aren't giving it "any higher priority at the moment than any one of a number of things we're considering," said Robert A. Hatch, CTW's vice-president for public affairs.

"SO I THINK that as far as we could go," he added, "is to say that it's one of many things that's under consideration at the Workshop as it explores means of survival as an experimental educational center."

He said CTW faces a financial crunch that primarily came about because the U.S. Office of Education, which gave CTW six million dollars the last fiscal year, plans to halve that amount this year.

Another factor, he said, has been a sharp reduction in financial support from private foundations for CTW's two children's shows.

HE WAS specifically asked if CTW might form a commercial arm to produce children's shows in hope of syndicating them or selling them to networks with the sole idea of plowing all profits back into the workshop's public television projects.

The question of CTW producing shows for commercial TV — either on a regular or an infrequent basis — was prompted by a Julie Andrews special on ABC-TV, "Julie on Sesame Street."

The program, aired recently, featured the Muppets of "Sesame Street" and the setting on which they appear on public television.

HATCH, ASKED if this wasn't laying CTW open to charges of commercialism, said, "I would hope not. We've got to live, we've got to exist. We're a non-profit operation and right now we're facing a drying-up of government and foundation money."

He said the net income from overseas sales of "Sesame Street" and the sale of related playthings, records and educational materials came to about two million dollars last year.

However, Hatch said, "our operating budget to make 'Sesame' and the 'Electric Company' was 11.8 million dollars, so you can see that doesn't cut very much of that big, big pie."

ALTHOUGH HE described the fee from Miss Andrews' special as small, he said the real benefit was the national prime-time exposure of "Sesame Street" to millions of viewers who may never have seen the show before on television.

But what income would that produce for the Workshop?

"Well," Hatch said, "I guess a larger audience will always mean we have a better chance to make a case with Congress, with the Corporation for Public Broadcasting, with others who'd support us."

FOR SEN. HENRY M. JACKSON (D-Wash:)*

Didn't selling our wheat to the Russians trigger higher wheat prices in our country?—B. Evans, Marion, Ind.

● Our government has failed to keep an accounting of foreign wheat sales, and we've been taken to the cleaners so far. Sales to the Soviets triggered huge price increases in bread, meat and poultry products here, and U.S. taxpayers paid $362 million in subsidies so the Russians could buy our wheat. Even Secretary George Shultz admitted we got burned. By the way, there have been rumors that Russia has been re-selling our wheat at handsome prices to countries like Italy. We're investigating this, too. Under the terms of the agreement, Russia is permitted to trans-ship our wheat only to Eastern European countries. American grain companies have already completed negotiations for more sales to the Russians, and I'm calling for restrictions on any exports that might upset food prices.

FOR TERRY ANNE MEEUWSEN, 1973 Miss America*

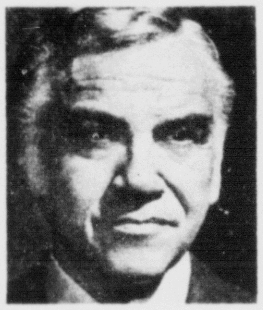
I understand you came from a mixed-religion family. Has this caused you any discomfort?—L. Maxwell, Reno, Nev.

● Not at all. My father is Catholic, my mother is Lutheran. My two brothers and sister and I took turns going to both churches with our parents. We learned to share both of their religions.



FOR LORNE GREENE

I read that you are an advocate of acupuncture. True?—Debra Kotecki, Marinette, Wis.

● Yes. I had a bad back about six years ago that had not responded to conventional treatment. Someone on the "Bonanza" set recommended an Oriental doctor who did acupuncture. I'd never heard of it, but I figured I had nothing to lose. And yes, it did help me.

FOR GEN. CREIGHTON W. ABRAMS,*
Army Chief of Staff

Why is the Pentagon always investing in new weapons systems that grow obsolete as soon as they're developed?—Ray Forney, Washington D.C.

● We keep updating our weapons because each time we have faced a major war, we have barely gotten ready in time. In World War II, it was months before we could act; in Korea, it was weeks. In future wars, we will have only days to get ready. With your support, we won't have to pay the price of being unprepared.

FOR ERMA BOMBECK, columnist*

Does any of your three children want to follow in your footsteps and become a writer?—G. D. Kent, Lansing, Mich.

● My kids would not follow me into a lifeboat if it were the last one leaving the Titanic. They have seen first-hand the work and the frustration of writing. One wants to be a food taster for Totie Fields, another wants to be an only child, and the third (according to college testing exams) aspires to become a weak king.

FOR SUSAN DEY, Laurie on "The Partridge Family"*

What do you think of Women's Lib?—D. E. F., Hobbs, N.M.

● Which one? Within the woman, or exterior liberation? If you are talking about outside the home, then just look around a Hollywood set. The only women are in wardrobe and hairdressers. There aren't even good acting parts for women. But in the home, that's different. There are women who like waiting on men. I happen to like doing my boyfriend's laundry, for example.

FOR FLIP WILSON

What is your real name, and how did you get the name "Flip"?—Pamela J. Smith, Gary, Ind.

● When I was in the Air Force, I used to entertain the troops with crazy, off-beat routines. The guys used to say, "He's flipped." And so I became Flip. My real name is Clerow.

FOR JOE LOUIS

As heavyweight champion, you fought all comers. Who hit you the hardest?—John Williams, San Diego, Calif.

● Uncle Sam—in the pocketbook!

FOR CHER BONO, singer*

You're always saying Sonny sings out of tune. Is that true, or is he just acting?—Terry Hendricks, Refugio, Texas

● Sonny actually has a very pleasant voice. We both agree he isn't the greatest male vocalist around, but he certainly isn't the worst.

FOR REP. GEORGE H. MAHON (D-Tex.),*
chairman of the House Appropriations Committee

How much has the dollar slipped in value in the last year or so?—B. T. Goron, Asbury Park, N.J.

● The dollar was devalued last year by 7.89 percent. This year, the dollar has been devalued by 10 percent, but actually the dollar has fallen further than just 10 plus 7.89 percent. The acceleration value of other currencies and the world monetary situation generally makes it correct to say that the dollar has lost about 30 percent of its value in recent months.

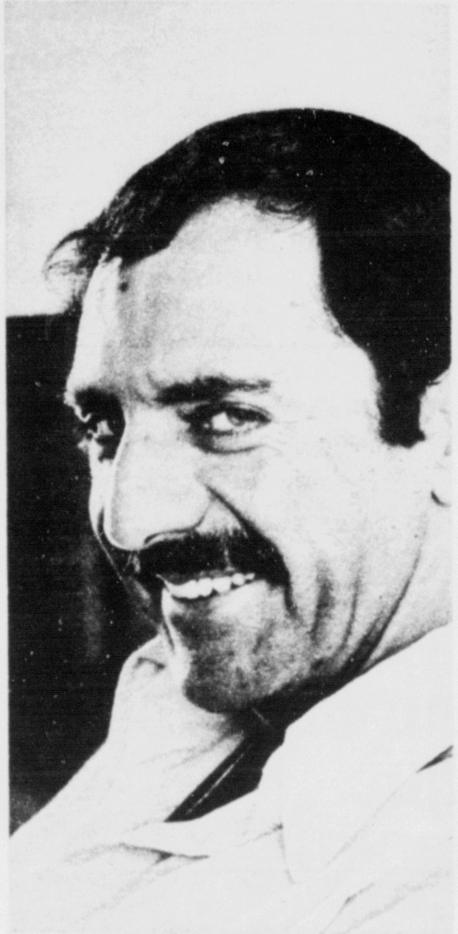
The Day FDR Met My Mother's Quince Jelly

By William Peter Blatty

Author of "The Exorcist"

"Suddenly, flashbulbs began to explode, FDR dropped the gold-plated scissors in horror, and a covey of startled and uncertain Secret Service men reached for revolvers and surrounded the car. Too late. My mother had gotten to the President."



Jill Krementz

William Peter Blatty

William Peter Blatty became a best-selling author, and then some, with "The Exorcist," which has sold six million copies in U.S. editions and has now been translated into 17 languages. In his new book, "I'll Tell Them I Remember You," he writes about his mother—and about experiences that convinced him there was life after death. The Pittsburgh Press wrote: "No matter what one believes about immortality or eternity, the final chapters of this beautifully written book will be difficult to refute."

"Mother was unstoppable and she knew it."

You would have loved my mother. An immigrant, destitute, suffering, loving, illiterate, defiant, a lion, a giant, she supported five children in New York, on Manhattan, on that heart-squeezing island where the sidewalks leap snarling, in the place where the kiss of the rich is indifference and the sleep of the poor is ice wounds that never knit and the fire-escape flame in August night without end; where they sleep without sleep. And in this place, in this bullying, terrifying place, my mother, in an elevator, desperate and hungry, desperate and pleading with an arrogant social worker, a woman dispatched by the city to look into our eligibility for charity, for Home Relief, hauled off and punched the proud woman in the stomach when she called her "Mrs. Blatty" in a condescending tone. She told girls that I was trying to impress, "You very fat" and is solely responsible for the fact that I am the only living mortal in the universe to have won a "fixed" beautiful baby contest. Her page of life had been printed in boldface. No Everest eluded her reach.

Listen! In 1939, in the summer, the President, Franklin Delano Roosevelt, our Number One official, commander in chief of the armies and the caissons, of the windswept armadas and the U.S. Marines, happened by our little neighborhood slum to officiate at the opening of the Queens Midtown Tunnel. The tunnel spilled out onto East 35th Street, two doors down from our tenement apartment building. It had once been a rain-catching lot where I'd moped and cursed fate and poled timbers indefinitely across mud-sullen ponds strewn with hopes. "When he comin'?" rumbled Mama like Vesuvius in ponder when I told her FDR would be loitering around. "I wanna meet him." When I advised her that it couldn't be done, she advised me in return, "You cuckoo, Willie."

On the day of the ceremony, my mother and I were standing at the outer circumference of a cordon of spectators. Mama's left hand held a brown paper shopping bag. I ignored it; the bag was her custom. All eyes at the time were on FDR as he reached from his car with a gold-plated scissors and neatly snipped the broad silken multicolored ribbon that drooped from side to side across the entrance to the tunnel like an unconvinced rainbow. Then, before anyone knew what was happening, my mother was grimly advancing on the President.

Suddenly, flashbulbs began to explode, FDR dropped the gold-plated scissors in horror, and a covey of startled and uncertain Secret Service men reached for revolvers and surrounded the car.

Too late. My mother had gotten to the President.

"I wanna shake you hand," she told him warningly in a voice of quiet command; then reached out and took his hand in a grip which had the power of her mesmerizing presence, imbued with an illusion of crunching strength. FDR started numbly. He might have been thinking, it occurred to me then, about a possible upcoming meeting with Stalin, though of course I can't be sure; I was only a boy and not entirely reliable. But this I remember, this I know: when my mother leaned over and reached in the shopping bag, several Secret Service men leaped from their socks and never noticed the time, but they barely got a glove or a thought on my mother before she had withdrawn from the bag a rather large, sticky jar filled with murky and rust-colored substance. She handed it over to the dumbfounded President.

"Homemade quince jelly," she grunted. Then she added, "For when you have company."

The President went visiting some planets for a while; then he turned on the sun with his flashing bright smile and he took my mother's hand in his again and he spoke to her softly and gently. He doubtless said, "Thank you," but I couldn't make it out.

Two Secret Service men escorted my mother to the spectators' circle, and the moment that her gaze locked on mine, I saw her eyes flicker briefly with triumph. She was unstoppable and she knew it.

"What did he say to you, Mama?" I asked her when again she was standing at my side.

"He say to me, 'Willie, you son, he's cuckoo.'"

She was dynamite.

She still is. Though I tend now to see her as she was in those days; as she is in the cracked, brownish photo now before me that was taken in 1936 by a weary old man in Central Park. It had cost her a dime: she had bargained him to that. It is framed in a yellowing, tattered cardboard. At the top it says, "Somewhere in the U.S.A." My mother is staring at the lens of the camera. Rigidly corseted, chin held high, she is squinting into sunlight. Her shoes are torn. She looks at once vulnerable and unvanquished. She is wearing a thrift-shop middy skirt and blouse and a California sport hat made of felt; the front brim is pushed all the way up and back as if in jaunty defiance of the odds. The odds are not small: her husband has left her; she can barely speak English; she has less than a grammar school education. She is 43. With no job. No skills.

But see how proudly her back is arched; and from a face of carved walnut her eyes great and dark leap with boldness, with challenge; though within them, very faint and far back and pain deep, glows a light that is meek and pleads, "Peace! Give us peace!"

The light is very tired this day. Never mind. A satisfied wiliness creases her eyes. It has been a good day peddling jelly in the streets and her hand holds the strings of a cake box from Cushman's. "Willie, surprise!" she will call to me, beaming. Stubborn and truculent, an anomaly, an irresistible force, in the heart of her champion's heart is a rose. You cannot tell that from the photo. From the photo you can only tell that she is beautiful, patrician in feature and bearing: a darkly complexioned Ethel Barrymore, but with Anna Magnani's fire.

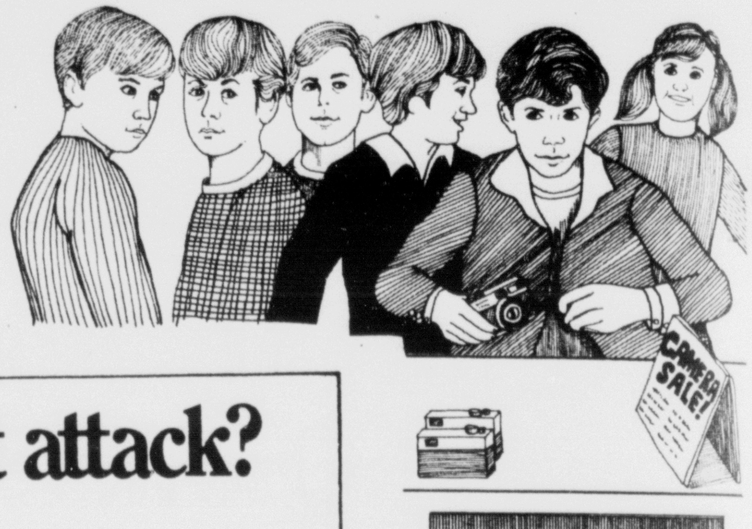
People Quiz

By John E. Gibson

Children:

How Well Do You Understand Them?



CAMERA SALE!

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. Gifted children tend to be like skyrockets. Their brilliance develops early, shoots skyward with the approach of the teen years, but diminishes gradually after maturity sets in.

2. When it comes to handling unruly or spirited youngsters and inspiring good behavior, an adult of the same sex has the inside track.

3. Boys are more open, more outgoing and less given to subterfuge and deceit than girls are.

4. Whether a child gets a name that's easy for him to live with, or is handicapped with a handle he's unhappy with, is likely to depend on whether he was born first, last, or in between.

5. A child is less likely to become involved in delinquent behavior when he's alone than when he's with other children.

6. The satisfaction a child between the ages of 8 and 11 derives from his leisure-time activities has a direct bearing on how well adjusted he will be when he reaches the age of 30.

ANSWERS

1. False. As one behavioral scientist observes after evaluating the findings of studies of gifted children: "Such individuals appear to have a longer mental growth span than others. They appear to continue growing in mental age even into their seniority, whereas others decline." Studies show that the ability of gifted children to think, reason and do various forms of mental work tends to increase with each passing birthday – long after middle-age has set in.

2. False—as shown by National Institute of Mental Health studies. It was found that boys tended to respond more favorably to a woman's influence, while men had an edge when it came to keeping girls on their best behavior. Conclusion of the investigators: "Young children are motivated to please an opposite-sex adult more than an adult of the same sex."

3. True—as evidenced by a study of the personality dimensions of over 3,000 seven- to fifteen-year-old boys and girls. Girls, though less obstreperous and better behaved than boys, were found to be appreciably less frank and outspoken, more emotional, more inclined to conceal their real feelings, to "put on a good face," to resort to various wiles and subterfuges. The boys, in addition to being more optimistic and easy-going, tended to be more inconsiderate and callous toward others, had a far greater disregard for danger, and shared a penchant for making fools of other people, devising means to upset them.

4. True—as shown by the findings of a psychiatric study of the things that go on in parents' minds when naming their children, and the reasons why one offspring may draw a name he likes and a brother or sister may end up with a label he wishes his parents hadn't foisted on him. While it is true that other factors influence the naming of offspring, the investigation showed that "Birth order enters into the naming situation, and first children often bear the heavy burden of multi-syllabic, family-tradition-conveying names, while later children are named by indulging and self-indulgent parents who return to the favorite names of childhood, remembered from nursery rhymes and fairy tales."

5. True—according to University of Washington studies of 800 children, who were monitored by observers and given opportunities to steal when alone and when in the presence of other children. Findings: "Group presence led to significantly more stealing."

6. True—Studies conducted at the Institute of Human Development, University of California, have demonstrated a definite relationship "between childhood leisure-time activities and satisfactions and psychological adjustment at age 30." The age period of 8 to 11 tended to be the most predictive. The more a child is getting out of life at that time, the fewer personality conflicts and emotional problems he'll have when he reaches what are likely to be the most productive years of his life. fw

True or False: A child is less likely to become involved in delinquent behavior when he's alone than when he's with other children. (See number 5)

Saffola® will help lower his cholesterol.

Following the doctor's orders isn't always easy. So when he recommends a low saturated fat diet, it's nice to get some help. Unlike the high-priced spread, Saffola (and, in fact, most margarines) contains no cholesterol. But that's only the beginning. Saffola Margarine is made from safflower oil – lower in saturated fats, higher in polyunsaturates than corn oil. In conjunction with a low saturated fat diet, Saffola actually helps reduce the level of blood cholesterol.

It's reassuring to know that if your doctor recommends cutting down on saturated fats, you don't have to cut down on flavor.

Saffola tastes so much like the high-priced spread, chances are your family won't notice the difference.

ROAST GOOSE BURGUNDY

With Orange and Cranberry Stuffing

- 1 10-12-lb. ready-to-cook goose, thawed
- 4 cups water
- 1 onion studded with 2 whole cloves
- 1 bay leaf
- ¼ teaspoon whole black peppercorns
- ½ teaspoon salt

Stuffing:

- ¼ cup butter or margarine
- 1 cup chopped onion
- 1 cup chopped celery
- ½ cup chopped parsley
- 1 large clove garlic, chopped
- 1 teaspoon thyme leaves
- 1 teaspoon sage leaves
- 1 teaspoon savory leaves
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon ground black pepper

In a candle-lit dining room: Roast Goose Burgundy with Orange and Cranberry Stuffing; Baked Smoked Ham with Apricot-Bourbon Glaze; Savory Green Beans and Red Peppers; and Baked Curried Fruit are ready to be served.

- 1 pkg. (7 ozs.) herb-seasoned croutons
- 1 can (6 ozs.) frozen orange juice concentrate, thawed, undiluted
- 2 tablespoons honey
- ½ cup chopped fresh cranberries
- ⅓ cup water
- ⅓ cup burgundy

Burgundy Glaze:

- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted
- 2 tablespoons honey
- ½ cup burgundy or dry red wine
- ½ teaspoon liquid gravy seasoning

Burgundy Sauce:

- ½ cup goose drippings
- 6 tablespoons flour
- 3 cups goose broth
- 1 cup burgundy or dry red wine
- 1 teaspoon salt
- Few twists freshly ground black pepper
- 2 teaspoons liquid gravy seasoning
- 2 tablespoons frozen orange juice concentrate, thawed

Garnish

- Parsley
- 2 cups fresh cranberries
- 6 orange-slice twists
- 2 pkgs. (1 lb. each) frozen bacon-flavored potato rounds

1. Preheat oven to 400°F.

2. Remove neck and giblets from body cavity; rinse. Place neck, heart and gizzard in 2-qt. saucepan with 4 cups water, clove-studded onion, bay leaf, peppercorns and ½ teaspoon salt. Bring to boiling. Cover, boil gently about 1½-2 hours, until very tender. Add goose liver last 20 minutes of cooking.

3. Remove heart, gizzard and liver and chop finely. Use neck meat for sandwiches; discard onion and cloves. Save broth (you should have 3 cups).

4. Remove excess fat from body cavity and excess neck skin. (Reserve fat and render for use in other cooking if desired.) Rinse bird and drain.

5. Tie wings flat against body with cord around each wing and across back.

6. Make stuffing: In large skillet, heat butter until melted. Add onion, celery, parsley and garlic and sauté, stirring frequently, for 5 minutes. Stir in thyme, sage, savory, salt and pepper.

7. Turn vegetable-herb mixture into large bowl. Add croutons, orange juice concentrate, honey, cranberries, water and the burgundy. Mix well with large spoon.

8. To stuff: Fill neck and body cavity loosely. Fasten neck skin to back with skewer. Close body cavity with skewers, poultry pins or stitching. Tie legs together tightly with cord.

9. Place goose, breast side up, on rack in shallow foil-lined roasting pan. Insert meat thermometer deep into inside thigh muscle.

10. Prepare Burgundy Glaze: Combine all glaze ingredients in small saucepan, heat to boiling point.

11. Brush goose liberally with glaze. Roast goose, breast side up, 30 minutes. Remove from oven, turn goose breast side down and baste again with glaze. Return to oven and roast 30 minutes longer.

12. During roasting, spoon, pour or siphon off accumulated fat. This should be done at half-hour intervals so that the fat doesn't brown excessively.

13. After roasting for 1 hour, reduce the oven temperature to 325°F. Turn the goose breast side up again, and continue roasting.

14. Roast until thermometer in thigh registers 180°-185°F. Stuffing temperature should also be checked and it should register 165°F.

15. If a thermometer is not used, press meaty part of leg between protected fingers. It should feel very soft. Also prick thigh with a fork. The juices running out of thigh should be beige in color, not pink. The skin should be deep mahogany brown and crisp.

16. Place goose on heated serving platter. Cover loosely with foil to keep warm.

17. Make gravy: Pour ½ cup drippings into 2-qt. saucepan, blend in flour smoothly. Add reserved goose broth and burgundy. Bring to boiling, stirring. Season with salt, pepper, liquid gravy seasoning and frozen orange juice concentrate.

18. To serve: Garnish goose platter with parsley frosted cranberry garland and orange twists. Spoon hot potato rounds (prepared as pkg. label directs) on the side of goose.

Makes 6-8 servings,
5½ cups gravy

SAVORY GREEN BEANS AND RED PEPPERS

2 lbs. fresh whole green beans, stemmed
1½ cups boiling water
½ teaspoon salt
2 red peppers, seeded and cut in strips*
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
Few twists freshly ground black pepper

1. Cook green beans in boiling, salted water about 10-15 minutes, or until as tender as you like. Toss beans once during cooking to cook evenly.

2. Add pepper strips and cook 2 minutes longer. Drain, save liquid, either to drink or to use in soups or gravy.

3. Add butter and pepper, tossing until well combined. Serve immediately. Makes 6 servings

BAKED HAM WITH APRICOT-BOURBON GLAZE

1 (12-13 lbs.) fully cooked smoked ham
1 cup apricot jam
2 tablespoons bourbon
5 drops green food coloring
Water
Candied citron, cut into thin strips
15 dried apricots, soaked briefly in ¾ cup warm water
3 whole Maraschino cherries, drained
Blanched whole almonds

1. Preheat oven to 325°F. Place ham fat side up in shallow foil-lined roasting pan. Insert meat thermometer so that tip is in center of thickest part of meat and does not touch bone or rest in fat. Do not add water. Do not cover.

2. Roast ham for approximately 3 hours 15 minutes, allowing 10-15 minutes per pound. Meat thermometer should read 130°F.

3. Forty-five minutes before end of baking time, remove ham from oven. Remove rind with sharp knife and kitchen shears.

4. In small bowl, combine apricot preserves and bourbon. Set aside 2 tablespoons glaze for garnish.

5. Brush ham with apricot glaze; return to oven. Bake until done, brushing 3-4 times with glaze. When golden brown remove from oven and transfer to serving platter. Cover loosely with foil to keep warm.

6. Meanwhile, prepare garnish: While ham is baking, combine food coloring and water; soak citron in water for about 10 minutes to tint bright green.

7. To garnish as pictured: Form 3 apricot flowers on the ham. For each flower overlap 5 apricots in a circle, place cherry in center. Make stems from the strips of citron and leaves from almonds. Brush reserved glaze on apricots, cherries and almonds to make them glisten.

Blue Cheese Filled Mushrooms

DANABLU STUFFED MUSHROOMS

1 lb. large fresh mushrooms
½ lb. Danish blue cheese, mashed
½ lb. (2 sticks) butter or margarine, softened
1 cup fine-curd creamed cottage cheese
Paprika or finely chopped parsley

1. Rinse quickly, pat dry and remove stems from mushrooms (save stems for use in soups, stews or sauces, etc.).

2. In a medium bowl, combine remaining ingredients; blend well with electric mixer.

3. Spoon or pipe through a large No. 8 star pastry tube into mushroom caps. Sprinkle with paprika or parsley if desired. Refrigerate covered if not serving immediately.

Makes 15-18 stuffed mushrooms

BAKED CURRIED FRUIT

1 can (1 lb. 14 ozs.) cling peach halves, drained
1 can (1 lb. 14 ozs.) pear halves, drained
1 can (1 lb. 13½ ozs.) sliced pineapple, drained
½ cup Maraschino cherries, drained
1 can (1 lb. 14 ozs.) apricot halves
½ cup syrup from apricots
⅓ cup butter or margarine
3 teaspoons curry powder
¾ cup light-brown sugar

1. Preheat oven to 350°F. Drain all fruits, except apricots. Reserve ½ cup apricot syrup, then drain. Pat fruits lightly with paper towels.

2. Arrange fruits in a large shallow baking pan.

3. In small skillet combine apricot syrup, butter, curry powder and brown sugar. Heat to boiling, stirring until butter melts and sugar dissolves. Drizzle syrup mixure over fruit.

4. Bake 30 minutes. To serve: Gently spoon fruits into casserole, serving dish or chafing dish; serve hot. Makes 2½ qts.

Make-ahead note: Can be made ahead through Step 3. Refrigerate, covered. Bake just before serving.

Editor's note: Can also be made using 1 lb. 1 oz. cans of fruit, ¼ cup Maraschino cherries and same amount of syrup-curry mixture. Makes 1¼ qts.

DEVILED EGGS WORCESTER

12 hard-cooked eggs
4 tablespoons mayonnaise
2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
2 tablespoons finely chopped sweet-pickle relish, well-drained
½ teaspoon salt
1 jar (2 ozs.) red salmon caviar, optional

1. Peel and halve eggs. Remove yolks and mash with a fork. (Or a glass pie plate is fine for this.) Set whites aside.

2. To yolks, add mayonnaise, Worcestershire sauce, pickle relish and salt. Blend well.

3. Spoon lightly or pipe through a pastry tube into reserved egg-white halves. Arrange on plate, cover with plastic film and refrigerate.

4. Just before serving, garnish with red salmon caviar if desired. Makes 24 stuffed eggs

TIPS ON "DOING" A GOOSE

How much to buy: Allow ½ lb. ready-to-cook weight per 3-ounce serving.

Thawing and storage: You can thaw a goose three ways–in your refrigerator, by leaving it in your sink under running cold water, or by placing it in a paper bag and letting it thaw at room temperature. Always leave the bird in its original wrap. A 10-14-lb. goose will take 1½-2 days in a refrigerator; 5-6 hours in cool water; or 10-12 hours at room temperature. Refrigerate or cook goose immediately after thawing.

Roasting time: A 10-12-lb. goose takes 1 hour at 400°F., plus another 2-2½ hours at 325°F.

It's a light dessert delight: Eggnog Chiffon Pie.

EGGNOG CHIFFON PIE

Chocolate Pie Shell

¾ cup semisweet chocolate morsels
2 teaspoons vegetable shortening
1 cup very finely chopped walnuts

1. Line a 9-inch pie plate with enough aluminum foil to extend about an inch over edge; keep foil smooth and even.

2. In top of double boiler, over hot, not boiling, water, melt chocolate and shortening. Remove from heat. Blend well. Stir in walnuts.

3. Working quickly with spatula or back of large spoon, press warm chocolate mixture evenly onto bottom and sides of foil-lined pie plate.

4. Chill in refrigerator about 30 minutes, or until firm.

5. Holding foil at edges, carefully lift firm shell out of pie plate. Gently peel off foil. Return shell to pie plate. Place in refrigerator.

Eggnog Filling

2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
¼ cup cold water
2 eggs, separated
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon ground nutmeg
2 cups canned eggnog
1 teaspoon pure vanilla extract
¼ cup light or golden rum
¼ cup sugar
1 cup (½ pt.) heavy cream, whipped, optional
Sweet cooking-chocolate curls, optional

1. Sprinkle gelatin over cold water; soften 5 minutes.

2. In top of double boiler combine lightly beaten egg yolks, salt, nutmeg and eggnog. Cook over hot, not boiling, water 12-15 minutes, stirring until mixture thickens slightly and lightly coats a spoon.

3. Stir in softened gelatin until completely dissolved. Blend in vanilla extract and rum. Chill over ice water, stirring frequently, until consistency of unbeaten egg white.

4. In medium bowl beat egg whites until soft peaks form. Gradually beat in sugar until stiff peaks form.

5. Fold beaten whites into eggnog mixture. Chill over ice water until mixture mounds slightly when dropped from a spoon.

6. Turn into chilled chocolate shell. Refrigerate 3 hours, or until filling is set.

7. If desired, garnish with whipped cream rosettes and chocolate curls. In a hurry? Lightly spread whipped cream on top of pie and lightly sprinkle with ground nutmeg.

Makes 8 servings

Pearl Bailey: "Add a Little Dash of Yourself"

"I cook just like I do shows: whatever crosses my mind."

Pearl's cooking wizardry has now been published in book form: "Pearl's Kitchen" (Harcourt, Brace, Jovanovich, $6.95).

By Pearl Bailey

In conversation with
Helen Dorsey

I cook just like I do shows: whatever crosses my mind.

I enjoy spontaneity. That's why I never use measuring cups and measuring spoons. You've got to inject a little bit of yourself into what you're doing, otherwise it isn't any fun! Therefore, my recipes are guidelines. Just use your imagination.

PEARL'S TURKEY

Take a great big onion, a stick of butter and some garlic and cram that into the turkey with some bacon. Sometimes I lay some bacon across the top of him. Put some salt, pepper and monosodium glutamate in him and that's it. And that makes it moist on the inside. (By the way, you can do the same thing with roast chicken.)

PEARL'S RICE PUDDING

4 cups cooked brown rice
1 qt. milk
½ pound (about 1½ cups) raisins
5 eggs, lightly beaten
1 cup sugar
6 tablespoons butter or margarine, cut up
1 tablespoon pure vanilla extract

Place all ingredients in a 3-qt. casserole; mix well. Bake uncovered in a preheated 350°F. oven for 5 minutes; stir well. Bake 1 hour longer, or until pudding is set. Serve warm or cold, with vanilla ice cream, if desired. Makes 10 servings

1 can Borden Eagle® Brand Sweetened Condensed Milk* (not evaporated milk)
1 cup coarsely chopped Diamond® Walnuts
½ teaspoon vanilla extract
1 cup Diamond® Walnut halves

*Magnolia® or Dime® Brands may be used

1. MELT chocolate & butterscotch morsels with sweetened condensed milk in top of double boiler over hot (not boiling) water. Stir occasionally till morsels melt and mixture begins to thicken. Remove from heat; add chopped walnuts and vanilla. Blend well. Chill for 1 hour till mixture thickens. Line bottom of 9" pie pan with a 12" square of foil. Place ¾ cup walnut halves in bottom of pan, forming 2" wide flat ring.

2. SPOON chocolate mixture in small mounds on top of walnuts to form ring. Decorate with remaining walnuts.

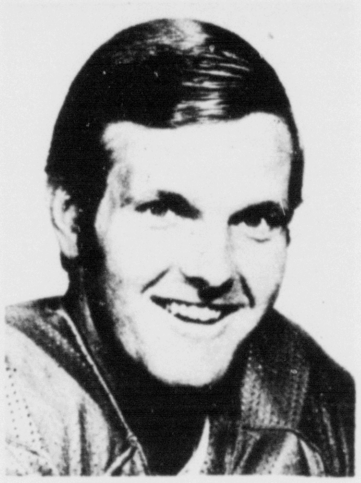
The Dolphins'
BOB GRIESE:
"I Think of Myself as a Chess Player"



Bob Griese, quarterback of the defending Super Bowl champion Miami Dolphins, is the "All-American boy" of pro football. Blond, blue-eyed and married with two children, Griese dresses like a business executive off the field—and as a matter of fact lives that role as a sales representative for National Airlines and Sears-Roebuck.... His approach to football is just as businesslike. "In a game, I think of myself as a chess player," he says. "If you know exactly what's going on, you can maneuver your people like chess pieces and manipulate your offense to take advantage of what the defense is showing."... Preparation is a key to Griese's success. Each evening, he studies game films and takes copious notes, to the point where he is ready for almost every defense move in the next game.... Griese led the Dolphins to the American Football Conference playoffs three years ago and, finally, to a Super Bowl title last January.... The 190-pound native of Evansville, Ind., dreamed of playing for Notre Dame, but when he was turned down, he enrolled at Purdue. In 1965, he got his revenge by leading his team to an upset win over the No. 1-ranked Irish.... Griese disdains the "rah rah" approach in leading his team. "It's not necessary when you have great professionals who know their jobs," he says. "All you do is call the right play at the right time and they'll execute it for you."

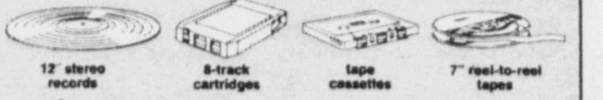
ALL SELECTIONS* SHOWN ARE AVAILABLE ON



* Selections marked with a star are not available in reel tapes

Here's a great new offer—exclusive with the Columbia Record & Tape Club! We not only offer you a big introductory package of 11 stereo tapes or records for only $1.97—we also give you an all-transistor radio as an extra bonus for joining.

Just mail the application together with your check or money order for $1.97 to order your 11 stereo tapes or records (and your transistor radio). Be sure to indicate whether you want cartridges, cassettes, reel tapes or records. In exchange...

You agree to buy just nine more selections (at regular Club prices) in the coming two years. That's right!—you'll have two full years in which to buy just nine selections...so you are not obligated to buy a record or tape every month, or even every other month! And you may cancel your membership at any time after you've purchased your nine selections.

Your own charge account will be opened upon enrollment...and the selections you order as a member will be mailed and billed at the regular Club prices: cartridges and cassettes, $6.98; reel tapes, $7.98; records, $4.98 or $5.98...plus processing and postage. (Occasional special selections may be somewhat higher.)

You may accept or reject selections as follows: every four weeks (13 times a year) you will receive a new copy of the Club's music magazine, which describes the Selection of the Month for each musical interest...plus hundreds of alternate selections from every field of music. In addition, about six times a year we will offer some special selections (usually at a discount off regular Club prices). A response card will be enclosed with each magazine.

...if you do not want any selection offered mail the response card by the date specified

...if you want only the Selection of the Month for your musical interest, you need do nothing—it will be shipped to you automatically

...if you want any of the other selections offered just order them on the response card and mail it by the date specified.

You will always have at least 10 days in which to make a decision. If for any reason you do not have 10 days in which to decide, you may return the regular selection at our expense and you will receive full credit for it.

You'll be eligible for the Club's bonus plan upon completing your enrollment agreement—a plan which enables you to save at least 33% on all your future purchases. This is the most convenient way possible to build a record or tape library at the greatest savings possible—so act now while you can still take advantage of this special offer!

Helps Shrink Painful Swelling Of Hemorrhoidal Tissues Caused By Inflammation And Infection

Also Gives Prompt, Temporary Relief in Many Cases from Pain and Burning Itch in Such Tissues.

There's an exclusive medication which actually helps shrink painful swelling of hemorrhoidal tissues caused by inflammation. And in many cases gives prompt relief for hours from rectal itching and pain in such tissues.

Tests by doctors on patients showed while it gently relieved such pain, it also helped reduce swelling of these tissues.

The medication used in the tests was Preparation H®. No prescription is needed for Preparation H. In ointment or suppository form.

INFLATABLE SEAT BELT
Safer in overturns?

Here's the latest in the car-safety field. As shown, inflatable seat belts combine the traditional seat belt with an inflatable air-bag device—a system that has been the subject of many experiments. According to the Allied Chemical Corp. in Morristown, N.J., where the inflatable seat belt was developed, the new seat belt is inflated by a compressed gas cylinder under the seat in a time of 10 to 15 milliseconds, as a hidden sensor detects a crash. The belt expands to a pillow of six inches in diameter to protect the passenger's lap and chest. Unlike the air-bag system, the belt remains inflated, providing longer safety to the passengers should the car overturn. Whether the inflatable seat belts can also be used as water wings remains to be seen.

Tony Bennett

QUOTE: One reason he's still successful after all these years, says singer Tony Bennett, is because people like mistakes. "Live audiences are a challenge. If I goof, they know it. Mistakes are spontaneous, and the results are better than any comedy writer could make up. It shows I'm human, I don't want to make mistakes—but when I do, it's a great accident." UNQUOTE.

LOVE STORY
Who could die of loneliness?

"My little 'grandchild' would lean over and kiss me and pat me and kiss me again. It would just lift me . . . lift me right up high. Who could ever go home and die of loneliness after that?" octogenarian Lutie Cone asked a group of senior citizens recently. Mrs. Cone of Nashville, Tenn., is just one of nearly 10,000 volunteers currently working in children's institutions under a federally funded program called Foster Grandparents, which operates all over the country to bring together low-income senior citizens and institutionalized children. "It just goes to show that us old folks aren't ready for the shelf yet!" says Mrs. Cone.

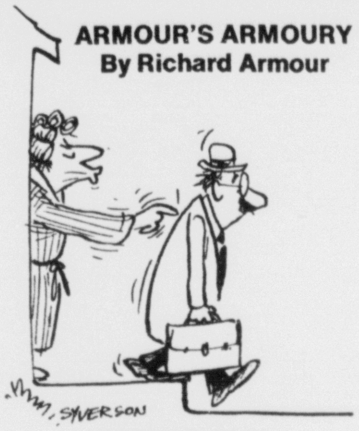
ARMOUR'S ARMOURY
By Richard Armour



FORGET FULL

Things I forget are such as these:
My driver's license and my keys,
My checkbook and my credit card
(Which makes a purchase rather hard),
My glasses, which I oft misplace,
And just as oft my glasses case.

But still, as I proclaim in verse,
Things could, in truth, be even worse.
I might forget to don my pants,
And people then would look askance.
I might forget what should be known,
Such as my street address, my phone.
I might forget still more things yet,
Just what they are, though, I forget.

Wife watching tiresome TV program, to husband: "I wish they'd stop giving the public what it wants!"

When four-year-old Mark asked why his father had to go to work, he was advised, "Because I have to earn money to pay for this house."

And Mark replied earnestly, "Can't Grandpa pay for it? He's not doing anything."

Some time ago, one of the little girls in my neighborhood stopped in to see me. She had a new puppy and was all excited, but mentioned they were keeping it out in the garage. When I asked her why they were keeping the puppy in the garage, her reply was, "Well, it has to stay out there until it is heartbroken."
